ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

FINAL

Vol. 77, No. 52. (77th Year) ST. LOUIS, TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1955—36 PAGES PRICE 5 CENTS

REZONING ON JUNK YARDS AT HOUSING AREA ASSAILED AS SHORT-SIGHTED

Master Code Modified by Aldermen After Spending of $4,000,000 on Carr Project to End Blight.

By HARRY WILENSKY
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

City officials today cited two junk yards in the neighborhood of Carr Square Village as examples of the harm resulting from short-sighted actions by the Board of Aldermen. After $4,000,000 was spent developing the public housing project in an effort to eliminate slum conditions, the master zoning ordinance was modified by the board so that the junk yards could be located in the neighborhood.

In other cases where aldermen have done rezoning favors for individuals in their wards, neighborhoods have been blighted by establishment of rooming houses, garages, filling stations or other enterprises that detract from the general character of the neighborhood.

Narrow Thinking Assailed.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker has protested against narrow thinking in the Board of Aldermen, and appealed for election of aldermen who will refuse to put individual considerations above welfare of the community as a whole.

He expressed the hope that a number of civic-minded candidates will file for party nomination for aldermen in the 14 even-numbered wards in the March 11 primary election before the deadline Monday night.

Spot zoning—reclassification of a small tract to permit use out of keeping with the rest of the neighborhood—has been denounced by the Mayor as "blight by city ordinance." Many such bills have been passed over the opposition of the City Plan Commission, the Building Commissioner and the Director of Public Safety.

"Aldermanic courtesy" is the device by means of which mayoral vetoes are overcome. Under this system, an alderman claims the final voice in matters he says affect only his ward, and the other aldermen usually vote with him so that they will have the same legislative privilege when a similar project of their own comes up.

Some aldermen — William A. Stolar of the Twenty-eighth Ward and a number of others—have resisted pressure for spot zoning in their own districts and have voted to sustain the Mayor's vetoes.

Mayor Vetoes Bills.

Bills to permit location of the junk yards in the neighborhood of Carr Square Village were introduced by Alderman John T. Curry of the Fifth Ward. The area had been zoned for multiple-family use. Over the Mayor's veto last year, the Aldermen voted to rezone those two lots for unrestricted use.

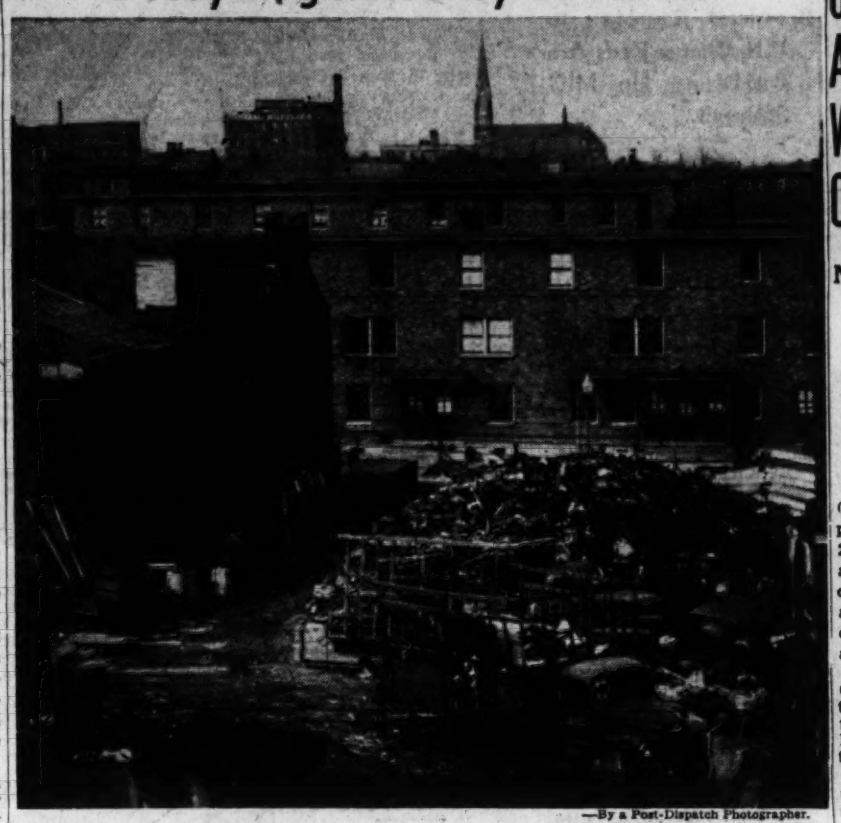

It had been hoped that the development of modern apartments, playgrounds and lawn space would stimulate improvement of nearby blocks outside the housing project.

As a result of the spot zoning, Carr Square Village tenants look out of their front windows into a 50-foot-wide junk yard at 1630 Cole street, containing piles of scrap iron, discarded automobile tires and other junk.

The other junk yard is on the northwest corner of O'Fallon street and Blair avenue, a short block east of the housing project. The jumble of old bathtubs, bottles and other discarded items

BAR CUSTOMER DIES AFTER BEING SHOT IN HOLDUP

John S. Bernal Had Told Robber 'Go Ahead and Shoot, I'm Not Afraid of You.'

John S. Bernal was shot and wounded fatally early today as he advanced toward two armed robbers at the Londoff Cocktail Lounge, 2357 Palm street, where he was a customer, telling them—"Go ahead and shoot, I'm not afraid of you."

Bernal, 33 years old, of 2318 Sullivan avenue, died at City Hospital of a wound near the heart three hours after he was shot. The shooting was witnessed by 20 other customers and employes of the cocktail lounge. The robbers, who were masked and armed with revolvers, fled with $500 taken from the safe and a cash register.

Bernal's death was the second killing in a holdup in St. Louis in less than 24 hours. A criminal was tentatively identified as one of the robbers from a police photograph and the man is being sought.

Entered by Side Door.

The robbers, hatless and wearing dark overcoats, entered the dimly lighted basement cocktail lounge at 1 a.m., by a side entrance. Both had scarves covering portions of their faces. One man stood near the center of the room, covering customers and waitresses with his revolver. "This is a stickup, don't move," the robber warned.

Harry Londoff, brother of Johnny Londoff, the owner, was behind the bar. The second robber ordered Londoff to empty the cash register, and hand him a bag of money from the safe behind the bar. Londoff said the bag contained $350, and that he gave the robber $150 from the cash register.

Both robbers were backing toward the side entrance when Bernal, who had been sitting at the bar, slid off a stool and advanced toward the men.

Fires Three Shots.

One robber fired three shots. Two went wild, smashing glasses and a glass panel in a case at the back bar. The third struck Bernal, who fell to his knees. As the robbers turned and dashed up the stairs, Bernal tried to get to his feet, then sprawled on the floor. He was unconscious when police arrived, and he died without making a statement.

Police speculated that Bernal

1840 WASHINGTON STATUE IN TOGA IS BEING RENOVATED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) —An 1840 statue of George Washington in Roman toga is being renovated by the Smithsonian Institution for public viewing.

Lights will be focused on the statue and the wall behind it will be tinted a light blue, a spokesman for the institution said last night.

He said the sculptor of the statue was Horatio Greenough of Massachusetts, who finished the project in Florence, Italy.

The statue, with Washington bare to the waist and about 11 feet high, was placed on the Capitol grounds in 1846. It was moved to the Smithsonian Institution in 1908 because of damage to the statue by severe weather.

LOW TAXES AFTER POOR POTATO CROP CLOSE SCHOOLS

ST. AGATHA, Me., Feb. 22 (AP) — This little Aroostook county potato town ordered its public schools closed yesterday because there isn't enough money in the town treasury to pay teachers.

"Our teachers haven't been paid for 15 weeks and we decided we just couldn't go on without funds," said School Superintendent Galen I. Veayo.

Veayo said a poor potato season—a large part of last season's crop was damaged—has drastically reduced the amount of tax collections. He said the 17 teachers "have been wonderful about the situation but they're just like everyone else—they can't afford to go on working for nothing."

The town has a population of 1300. The schools, with 430 pupils, consume 62 per cent of the annual budget. Town Manager Sylvio Michaud said only 42 per cent of the 1954 tax bill of $69,000 has been paid. The town still owes $5000 of a $15,000 loan it obtained.

2 UNIDENTIFIED SUBMARINES SEEN OFF N. CAROLINA COAST

NORFOLK, Va., Feb. 22 (AP) —Atlantic Fleet headquarters received a report from the Coast Guard that two unidentified submarines were sighted today three to five miles off Nags Head, N.C., a fleet spokesman said.

The report said the submarines were heading southward.

A spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet submarine force said there were no United States submarines in the area.

The report was relayed to Washington where Navy headquarters said planes had been sent out to check on the sightings.

WOMAN SHOOTS, WOUNDS PRIEST AS HE SAYS MASS

She Is Former Mental Patient—Two Men in South Side Church Disarm Her.

The Rev. Andrew B. Schlerhoff was shot and wounded today by a woman former mental patient while he was saying mass at Immaculate Conception Catholic Church, Lafayette avenue and Longfellow boulevard.

Two men in the church overpowered the woman, Mrs. Hubert Samson, 1807 South Compton avenue, after she fired one shot from a .22-caliber rifle at the priest, who was struck in the left leg.

Father Schlerhoff limped down the altar steps to a chair in the sanctuary. His vestments were removed before he was taken to City Hospital, where it was found he had lost a considerable amount of blood, although the wound was not considered serious.

The priest had just closed the tabernacle, after distributing communion, when Mrs. Samson, carrying the rifle in a large bag, walked down the middle aisle and stepped into a pew near the altar. About 50 persons were in the church.

Mrs. Samson gave police a rambling account of grievances she held against priests of the parish. She said she bought the rifle last night at a downtown department store.

The woman told Police Capt. John A. Buck of the Lynch street station she had not wanted to kill Father Schlerhoff, but to wound him. Mrs. Samson is separated from her husband, who lives in Frankenstein, Mo.

A relative of Mrs. Samson told police she had been a patient at the state mental hospital at Farmington, Mo., and also at a sanatorium in the St. Louis area.

Police dissuaded Mrs. Samson from attending the consecration of Auxiliary Bishop Leo C. Byrne at St. Louis Cathedral last June after they had been told she planned to shoot Catholic prelates at the ceremony.

After Father Schlerhoff was shot, Msgr. James P. Johnston, pastor of Immaculate Conception parish, completed the mass, then asked persons in the church to pray for the wounded priest and the woman who shot him. Father Schlerhoff, ordained April 4, 1948, has been stationed at the church for the last five years.

COST-CUTTING PLAN OK'D BY UNION TO KEEP PLANT GOING

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 22—About 1400 union employes of the Otis Elevator Co. plant here voted overwhelmingly yesterday to accept a series of cost-cutting proposals which Otis executives said would be necessary to permit continued operation of the plant in this area.

The vote to accept, taken by both the office and production divisions of Local 453, CIO International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers, was 1004 for and 383 against, with two blank ballots.

The proposals presented by Leroy A. Peterson, company president, in mid-January, called for employes to agree to cut down such expenses as bonuses paid during waiting time between piece-work. They were asked to ease union seniority rules to permit more inter-plant transfers. And they were asked to permit more efficient use of equipment and elimination of lost time and lost motion.

Liberal (Kan.) Woman Wins U.S.-British Pancake Race

LIBERAL, Kan., Feb. 22 (AP) —The international pancake racing title remained in the United States today when Mrs. Binnie Dick scurried over a 415-yard S-shaped course here in one minute 5.1 seconds to better by 13.4 seconds the time turned in by Mrs. Doris Millward, winner of a similar race earlier in the day at Olney, England.

It was the third time in six years of competition that this town has captured the title. Mrs. Dick, 28 years old, won the race last year in one minute 7.7 seconds. Her time today against about 20 contestants topped the previous record of one minute 7.2 seconds set by Mrs. Isobel Dix of Olney in 1953.

In Olney Mrs. Millward, 30, covered the course in 1 minute, 18½ seconds, flipping her cake in a skillet three times en route as regulations require. Her time was slow because the streets were slippery. Eight others made the race there.

On Shrove Tuesday 150 years ago an Olney woman was so busy making pancakes that she forgot about church services until the bell rang. She dashed off to the services with a skillet and pancakes in hand, establishing the tradition that has been an annual event since.

Mrs. Dick now has won the Liberal leg of the Shrove Tuesday race three times and is not eligible for further competition. As she stepped over the finish line today, watched by a crowd of several thousand persons, she received the traditional congratulatory kiss from H. J. Legg, British Consul at Kansas City, Mo.

CHIANG'S PLANES ATTACK 200 RED WAR JUNKS NORTH OF NANCHISHAN

Nationalists Also Renew Assaults on Buildup on Taishans—Enemy Ships Reported Destroyed.

By SPENCER MOOSA

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 22 (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek's warplanes today attacked more than 200 armed motorized junks about 12½ miles north of Nanchishan island and renewed their attacks on the Red buildup base on the Taishans, the Nationalist air force reported.

It was not clear whether the Communist craft were the same that earlier today raised fears that the Reds were about to launch their long-expected attack on Nanchishan.

The air force said that up until 4 p.m. its planes had destroyed one gunboat of about 700 tons and five armed motorized junks. It also claimed damage to two other warships of an unspecified type and "a considerable number" of junks.

A communique said two waves of Nationalist planes hammered the Taishan islands, destroying "many" military installations.

It was the second series of raids on the Taishans in the day. Nationalist planes roared over in four pre-dawn waves and the air force claimed at least two vessels sunk and hits or possible hits on other craft.

Reports on Red Convoy.

About noon, official Nationalist reports said Communist war vessels were heading toward Nanchishan and Nationalist planes and warships were rushing to engage them.

But there was no attack on Nanchishan and no immediate clash between Nationalists and Reds.

Later reports said the Red convoy apparently had no immediate designs on Nanchishan. It appeared the Red vessels diverted their course to mainland harbors. Official quarters said the Red maneuver might have been a training exercise.

Nanchishan has been the northernmost outpost of Chiang's island chain off Red China since the Tachen evacuation. It is 120 miles north of Formosa, 20 miles off the mainland, and manned by about 5000 Nationalist regulars and guerrillas.

There never has been any indication that the United States might consider it among the related positions and territories deemed essential to the defense of Formosa and the Pescadores.

The Reds may be trying to learn United States intentions, as they did in the Tachen area, when they captured Yikiangshan eight miles away.

The Nationalists said they would have preferred to fight, but they pulled out under the protection of the United States Seventh Fleet.

Speculation on Red Plans.

There is speculation here the Communists feel a threatening buildup might get them Nanchishan, too, without a fight.

Any overt move against the island would present a new hour of decision for the United States—going to its defense, aiding in its evacuation, as in the Tachens, or standing back and letting the Reds seize it.

Nationalist spokesmen have repeatedly asserted, since the Tachen pullout, that no more offshore islands will be given up without a fight.

Foreign Minister George Yeh, recently returned from a long visit to the United States, has declared, "so far as my government is concerned, we will defend all the offshore islands."

Asked if that meant with or without American aid, he replied, "We shall welcome American support in defense of any of the offshore islands."

DAMAGED COTTON FIBER FALLS ON TOWN, CAUSES STIR

HORSEHEADS, N.Y., Feb. 22 (AP)—A gray, cob-webby substance that fell out of the sky here and spread over an area half-a-mile square was identified today after exhaustive tests as heavily-damaged cotton fiber.

Dr. Charles B. Rutenber, professor of chemistry at Elmira College, said the condition of the fiber indicated that it was waste material or had been damaged in some sort of explosion.

At first, scientists were stumped in efforts to identify it.

The fiber fell over a residential area of this south-central New York village and draped over houses, trees and bushes.

Rutenber said that the substance was radioactive but not dangerously so, and that this was not surprising in view of the atomic tests now underway.

PRESIDENT'S ROAD PROGRAM FOR 101 BILLIONS FOR TEN YEARS SENT TO CONGRESS

St. Louis Sailor Killed in Blast On Submarine on West Coast

W. J. Woods Wrote to Mother and Told of Similar Accident on Ship Last Year.

Seaman William Joel Woods, St. Louis sonarman killed Sunday night in a series of explosions aboard the submarine Pomodon at San Francisco, wrote his mother here last year that a similar accident occurred aboard the same vessel at sea between Oct. 1 and Oct. 11, 1954.

In Washington, the Navy denied any such previous explosion had occurred. Woods, in his letter, said a "battery blow up" had killed three persons and injured seven.

Woods, 19-year-old son of Mrs. Georgia Woods, 1304 South Florissant road, Ferguson, and Hereil Woods, who lives at the Milner Hotel, 1734 Washington avenue, had been assigned to the Pomodon since Feb. 1, 1954. He was one of three known dead as a result of explosions in the forward battery room Sunday.

Five persons were assumed dead. Navy rescue workers wear-

URGES NETWORK SUITABLE FOR ATOMIC AGE AND HEAVIER TRAFFIC

(Text on Page 1B.)

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 — President Eisenhower sent to Congress today his recommendation for a 101-billion-dollar 10-year construction program to bring the nation's streets and highways up to a standard acceptable in the atomic age.

The plan was substantially the same as that drawn up by a special presidential committee headed by Gen. Lucius D. Clay (retired) and made public Jan. 11. The 101 billions would be spent by Federal, state and local agencies. The total Federal expenditures would be about 31 billions.

Mr. Eisenhower's twice-postponed special message was the last of the major messages to the new Democrat-controlled Congress. It was not received at the Capitol with much enthusiasm by Congressmen who will have something to say about its acceptance.

Calls in Democrats.

The President called Republican and Democratic leaders to the White House yesterday to discuss the program and apparently failed to sell the Democrats on it. Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem.), New Mexico, chairman of the Public Works Committee, emerged from the conference to say he had not changed his earlier opinion that the Clay report was "so full of holes it would sink."

Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, chairman of the public works committee subcommittee on highways, objected to some aspects of the proposed financing. He has introduced a bill to leave unchanged the present basic financing arrangements but to increase the federal contribution from $875,000,000 to $1,600,000,000 a year and increase the federal share in some categories.

Hearings on the Gore bill started yesterday.

After the Clay report was made public the American Automobile Association objected to it because it allowed toll roads to be a part of the 40,000-mile interstate highway system and because of the proposed bond-issue method of financing part of the federal contribution.

Byrd's Objection.

Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, said the financing procedures "violate financing principles, defy budgetary control and evade federal debt law." Byrd said interest on the 30-year taxable bonds proposed by the committee would amount to more than $11,500,000,000 if they were paid off on schedule. At this rate, he said, every dollar borrowed would cost taxpayers $1.55.

As to financing, the President said today:

"A sound federal highway program, I believe, can and should stand on its own feet, with highway users providing the total dollars necessary for improvement and new construction. Financing of interstate and federal aid systems should be based on the planned use of increasing revenues from present gas and diesel oil taxes, augmented in limited instances with tolls.

"I am inclined to the view that it is sounder to finance this program by special bond issues, to be paid off by the abovementioned revenues which will be collected during the useful life of the roads and pledged to this purpose, rather than by an increase in general revenue obligations."

Mr. Eisenhower's use of the word "pledged" indicated a possible departure from the Clay recommendations. The Clay committee emphatically turned down suggestions that revenue from gasoline and oil taxes be earmarked formally for highway expenditures.

Excise taxes on gasoline and diesel oil now are two cents a gallon and are scheduled to drop automatically to a cent and a half a gallon on April 1 unless excise tax laws are renewed for another year, as now seems likely.

Mr. Eisenhower cited the following "evidence that action, comprehensive and quick and forward-looking is needed":

1. Each year more than 36,000 persons are killed and

SECOND SHOT IN ATOM TESTS JARS LAS VEGAS

Nevada City Is 75 Miles From Site of Blast—Flash Seen in Los Angeles.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

The "George shot"—this was Washington's birthday—rattled windows and awoke many persons not already up in this city of 50,000, which lies 75 miles southeast of the Atomic Energy Commission's test site. There were no reports of damage.

Seventeen Congressmen and 200 military observers watched the detonation of the nuclear device, set off from the top of a 300-foot tower on Yucca flat at 5:45 a.m.

The orange flash was visible in Los Angeles, 275 airline miles to the southwest, and Sacramento, 325 miles to the northwest.

Observers at the AEC control point, about 10 miles from the blast, felt two distinct shocks as the sound wave rumbled around the low mountains circling the flat. Two shocks also were felt in Las Vegas.

Today's shot was the thirty-third at Nevada test site.

The atomic cloud rose more than 20,000 feet and an ice cap formed on top of the familiar mushroom. Within a half hour winds began shearing the cloud and it was blown east and southeast in the general direction of St. George, Utah, and northern Arizona.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority warned all pilots planning flights within 300 miles of Grand Canyon airport to check first with CAA. Southern Utah and a large rectangular segment of Arizona were closed to aircraft from 15,000 to 26,000 feet much of the morning.

The Congressmen viewed the test from News Nob, at least eight miles from the tower. They were the first of three groups of legislators invited to witness tests in the new series.

The military observers were in trenches 4000 yards from ground zero. No maneuvers were scheduled, however.

Forty planes including 24 F84s from the Tactical Air Command were engaged in aerial sorties during the test.

The AEC said 33 various experiments, including civil effects tests, were held in connection with the explosion. The nature of these was not immediately disclosed.

AEC officials decided yesterday to try the medium-size shot and not the big explosion from a 500-foot tower, which was slated to open the series last Tuesday.

SOUTHEAST ASIA TREATY NATIONS CONVENE TONIGHT

Dulles in Bangkok—Delegates Discussing Armed Force, Economic Aid.

By OLEN CLEMENTS

BANGKOK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Delegates assembling today for the Southeast Asia treaty conference centered their attention on two main topics—setting up a military force for Southeast Asia and economic help for countries threatened by Communist infiltration.

Both projects took on urgent meaning with reports of Communist activities in Laos and in Red China's Yunnan province, both just outside Thailand, the host country.

The conference of eight nations open tomorrow morning (tonight United States time).

None of the delegates on hand would discuss their plans publicly. They conferred country by country today.

Peace and Freedom.

"Our purpose here is peace and freedom and I am confident that we shall find ways to make that purpose one that will prevail," Dulles said.

Noting that he had arrived on Washington's birthday, Dulles said Washington "laid down principles which he hoped would enable us to preserve our freedom and, by conduct and example, help others also to be free. We have tried to live up to those ideals and, indeed, that is why we are here today."

Prime Minister Mohammed Ali of Pakistan arrived tonight and said economic considerations would be as important as military deliberations.

"We must step up military as well as economic strength of these countries," he told newspaper men, "but military strength will serve no purpose unless there is economic strength."

The French contingent, under Henri Bonnet, arrived early today from Paris.

Philippine, Australian, New Zealand and Thai delegations went to Bangkok airport, along with Thai Premier Pibul Songgram, to meet Dulles.

Pibul Songgram said the question of a military organization for Southeast Asia probably would be delegated to a committee of military men.

He told reporters yesterday that Thai dissidents in Red China have built up an army of 20,000 men in Yunnan province and would attack if the Communists decide to invade Thailand.

Pibul Songgram said his coun-

Churchill Puffed Up Over Mark Of 153,405 Cigars in 60 Years

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

Allowing for leap years, this would bring his total to about 153,405 cigars, which probably makes him one of the leading cigar smokers of the world.

Churchill's estimate of his prowess as a cigar smoker was disclosed by Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino before he left Sunday for Rome with Premier Scelba after a five-day visit to London.

Martino, a former professor of physiology and dean of the University of Messina, was impressed when he saw Churchill light a big cigar after a dinner Wednesday night. The Prime Minister then told about his customary consumption of cigars.

HOUSE GROUP SENDS TAX CUT BILL TO FLOOR BY 16-TO-9 VOTE

Republican Leaders Predict Eisenhower Will Throw Influence Against Measure at Proper Time.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Houpse Ways and Means Committee voted 16 to 9 today to send to the House floor a bitterly disputed bill to cut income taxes $20 a person starting next Jan. 1.

The final committee action ratified a decision yesterday to wrap the income tax cut into an Eisenhower Administration proposal to postpone almost 3 billion dallars in excise and corporation tax cuts, now set for April 1.

All 15 committee Democrats and one Republican, Representative Baker of Tennessee, supported the combined bill. Nine Republicans opposed it.

Chairman Cooper (Dem.), Tennessee, announcing the action, predicted the House will pass the combined measure.

President May Act.

They discussed the tax measure with the Chief Executive at their regular weekly White House meeting.

Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland and Representative Leslie Arends (Rep.), Ill., told reporters they are both opposed to the Democratic proposition. Arends said it "smacks of politics, 100 per cent."

They declined to quote Mr. Eisenhower's views, but Knowland said he expects the President "will make his views known very clearly at the proper time." Mr. Eisenhower said in his budget message to Congress last year that he "hoped" to be able to recommend tax cuts next year but said none were warranted this year.

Wants Issue Taken to Voters.

Arends said he believes the issue should be taken to the voters with emphasis on what the tax cut would mean in reducing federal receipts. His suggestion brought up the possibility that Mr. Eisenhower might make a national radio-television speech against a tax cut.

The House Ways and Means Committee voted 15-10 late yesterday, amid a barrage of charges and counter charges, to wrap the $20 tax cut into an Administration bill to postpone for another year almost three billion dollars worth of reductions scheduled for April 1 in corporation income and excise taxes. The committee was to meet again this afternoon to take final action on the combined measure, but this was considered routine.

Republicans Look to Byrd.

Republican leaders promised to fight the tax reduction when it comes up for House debate Thursday, but they conceded it may be a losing battle. They thought chances for killing it will be better in the Senate, where the opposition of Senator Harry E. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, could swing several other Democrats against it.

(The Associated Press quoted Byrd, who is chairman of the Finance Committe as repeating his opposition to tax reductions until the budget is balanced. Senator George (Dem.), Georgia, senior member of the committee, termed the House committee move "unwise and unfortunate."

(Representative Halleck (Rep.), Indiana, told the Associated Press today he "certainly" would advise President Eisenhower to veto any income tax cut bill. He predicted, however, Republicans would defeat the tax-cut proposal in the House Thursday.

(Democratic sponsors of the move differed. They said they saw little chance that House members, after voting earlier for a $10,000-a-year pay hike for themselves, would kill a tax cut affecting every taxpayer.

May Fight Whole Bill.

(Halleck said that if Republicans cannot knock out the income tax cut, then they would oppose the entire bill. He said responsibility for killing the corporation and excise tax extensions—if the bill is defeated or vetoed—would rest with Democrats.)

Representative Daniel A. Reed (Rep.), New York, senior committee Republican, charged that the Democrats are trying to "buy votes" for the 1956 election campaign with "unpardonable irresponsibility." They would increase the federal deficit at a time of unsettled world conditions, he said.

Committee Chairman Jere Cooper (Dem.), Tennessee, replied that Democrats are trying to balance what he called "discriminatory tax favors the Republican Administration and Congress gave to corporations and stockholders last year when there was a bigger federal deficit.

The Democratic strategy was devised at a meeting of House leaders Saturday after Democrats became convinced that President Eisenhower was almost certain to recommend a tax cut when Congress returns next year.

SUNKEN SHIP BLASTS WRECK GENOA DOCKS

Carbide Cargo Blows Up—Windows Shattered Mile Away.

GENOA, Italy, Feb. 22 (AP)—A sunken Swedish motorship exploded on the bed of Genoa's harbor last night as water reached its cargo of 400 tons of carbide. A series of about 20 blasts wrecked part of thedocks. Windows were shattered as far as a mile away.

The ship was the 4147-ton Nordanland, sunk last Saturday in Genoa's worst storm in 50 years. While firemen fought the blaze, oil escaped from the ship's engine tanks and spread flaming across the harbor, endangering nearby docks. Scores of barrels pitched off two piers by the explosion caught fire in the sea of burning oil.

The explosion sent smoke and flames 40 yards into the air. flames 40 yards into the air. Meanwhile the storm raged on, tearing a fifth 100-foot gap in the 40-foot high breakwater.

Waves of hot air accompanied the blasts 36 feet under the water. A dock guard was hurled along the dock by the first violent blast. He suffered a hand injury and shock.

From outside the harbor, the United States aircraft carrier Antietam started its own helicopter "ferry service" to bring aboard the 200 sailors who had been ashore when the carrier hastily put out to sea Saturday night to avoid damage. Waves still were so high it was decided to use helicopter rather than boats to bring the men aboard.

Adding to Genoa's difficulties, the 7647-ton Dutch freighter Grootekerk arrived today with a fire blazing in its No. 1 hold near a cargo of chemicals, matches and alcohol. Port authorities, fearing an explosion, ordered it towed two miles offshore.

A second ship was sunk in this harbor Saturday night by the storm. It was the unmanned American tanker Camas Meadows, consigned for scrapping. A number of smaller craft and tugs also went down. The damage to port installations alone was estimated at about $6,000,000.

100 SCHOOL BUS DRIVERS 'SICK,' PUPILS VACATION

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22—Thousands of school children, many of them with chronic heart and limb ailments, received an extra holiday yesterday when a hundred bus drivers reported "sick."

The drivers let it be known that they were indisposed because John Doud, forgot to pick up some children in Brooklyn Friday and was suspended without pay for a week.

The walkout ended a few hours later when Doud's suspension was reduced to three days. About 18,000 children were affected but school authorities were unable to say how many made their way to school by methods other than the regular school busses.

PRESIDENT TO HOLD PRESS CONFERENCE TOMORROW

The President has almost recovered from a cold and will hold a press conference tomorrow.

The cold, which Mr. Eisenhower caught while quail hunting in Georgia, has "virtually cleared up," the White House said.

STUDY OF ST. LOUIS TO CINCINNATI TOLL ROAD OK'D

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 22 (UP)—Representatives of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio have agreed to a joint survey of the possibility of a St. Louis-to-Cincinnati toll road.

Evan Howell and Albert Wedeking, representing the Illinois and Indiana toll road commissions respectively, will meet in Chicago next Tuesday to name the firm which will do the survey.

The study will be financed by the three states on the basis of the route's mileage in each state. Ohio decided not to send a delegate to Chicago meeting.

The plan was ratified yesterday at an eight-state conference on transportation called by Indiana Gov. George Craig. About 200 persons representing Illinois, Kentucky, Ohio, Iowa, Michigan, Alabama, Nebraska and Indiana attended.

In addition to Craig, Govs. William Stratton of Illinois, Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, Victor E. Anderson of Nebraska and Lawrence Wetherby of Kentucky were present.

A proposal for a Chicago-to-Miami toll road was also discussed. The Alabama delegation said Gov. James Folsom would co-operate in such a project.

CHURCHILL SHUNS IDEA OF HALTING A-BOMB TESTS

LONDON, Feb. 22 (UP)—Prime Minister Churchill today rejected the idea of halting further atom bomb tests while East-West disarmament talks are under way.

"I should certainly not associate myself in any way with such a decision at the present time," Churchill told a questioner in the House of Commons.

Three Labor party members asked Churchill to back proposals to stop all A-bomb or H-bomb tests.

Churchill said he would speak on atomic matters next week during debate on Britain's 1955-56 defense program, which is built around the decision to develop the hydrogen bomb in this country.

WOMAN HELD AS RED SPY, TRIED TO USE CHARM ON ROKS

SEOUL, Feb. 22 (UP)—A professional entertainer arrested as a Communist spy has admitted she tried to charm secrets out of Republic of Korea army officers, police said today.

They said the 31-year-old woman was trained in North Korea and sent here late last year by the Reds. She "attempted to encourage a mass desertion in the ROK army" while working as an agent in a kisaeng house (the equivalent of a Japanese geisha house), police said.

N. KOREA RADIO REJECTS DEMAND FOR TRUCE CHECK

Broadcast Replies to U.N. Charge Reds Are Building Up MIG Strength.

TOKYO, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Pyongyang radio tonight said North Korea has rejected a United Nations Command demand that three neutral nations truce inspection teams go to North Korea to look for evidence of Communist violation of the Korean armistice agreement.

Maj. Gen. Leslie D. Carter, senior Allied member of the Korean Military Armistice Commission, told the commission yesterday the Reds were building up their MIG strength. He demanded the charges be looked into and "the perpetrators of this crime be punished."

The Pyongyang broadcast said North Korea's chief delegate to the armistice commission. Lt. Gen. Lee Sang Cho, had rejected the request in a letter to the Neutral Nations Supervisory Commission. Lee called the charges "trickery which cannot be permitted. The N.N.S.C. should not be deceived by them."

Carter's request grew out of the Feb. 5 battle between a flight of American Sabrejets and Communist MIG-15s in international waters over the Yellow Sea. Two MIGs were shot down after attempting to attack a United States Air Force RB-45 reconnaissance jet bomber.

The Communists had protested against the alleged interference of North Korean territory and said its jets from Korean bases had attacked the U.N. patrol.

At the time of the armistice signing, North Korea had no jets—on record—within its boundaries.

Carter, in his charges yesterday said Communist air activities in North Korea since the armistice "have mounted from zero . . . to a high tempo.

"The identity of the MIG-type planes is definitely established by undisputable visual and photographic identification," he told the Communists.

Carter said the Communist were operating MIGs from six bases within North Korea and asked that the four-power neutral commission dispatch teams to these areas for on-the-spot checks.

BRITAIN STILL TOPS WORLD AUTO EXPORTS, BONN GAINING

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders reported last night Britain still leads the world in automobile exports, with West Germany making rapid progress in second place.

Other figures included the United States, 206,544 against 154,400; France, 101,323 against 81,339, and Italy, 40,758 against 30,155.

Britain to Revolutionize Navy To Conform With Atomic Age

Striking Force Will Be Organized Around Fast Carriers and Guided Missile Ships.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Britain today announced plans to revolutionize its Navy and even its sea battle tactics to conform with the age of atomic and hydrogen bombs.

The Royal Navy's striking force of the future will be organized around fast carriers and guided missile ships of great firepower.

In introducing Navy estimates for the fiscal year beginning April 1, J. P. L. Thomas, the First Lord of the Admiralty, predicted "changes in certain types of naval warfare comparable to that once brought about bythe introduction of the dreadnaught" early in this century.

Thomas, the civilian head of the Navy, explained the program in a white paper presented to Parliament. He denied that the development of weapons of mass destruction had diminished the need for navies.

He said that modern ships "by their ability to disperse and reconcentrate at will remain, in the thermonuclear era, both and elusive and a hard-hitting fighting force."

The statement fixed Navy costs in the coming fiscal year at £391,550,000 ($1,096,340,000) or £11,750,000 ($32,900,000) less than the current year. Mutual defense assistance from the United States was estimated at £6,500,000 ($18,200,000) compared with £14,000,000 ($39,200,000) in the current year.

Primary emphasis was given to development of guided missile ships to replace Britain's old cruiser fleet. These will be similar to vessels of this type already operating in the United States Navy.

The white paper envisaged sea battles of the future fought at ranges hardly thought of even in World War II. They would involve guided missile exchanges between surface fleets and between ships and swarms of aircraft.

At the end of World War II, a good part of the British Navy was placed in reserve—in the "mothball" fleet. There has been little new construction since. Emphasis on whatever new building has occurred has been on small, speedy minesweepers and submarine destroyers. Thomas said the Navy had reached a point where "a substantial program of replacement is essential."

"The first operational ship application of the guided missile will be a purely ship-to-air weapon," Thomas said. "But a system will be developed in the years ahead capable of operating a ship-to-ship weapon from the same equipment."

MALENKOV NEARLY ECLIPSED BY RED CURTAINS AT OPERA

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev, the Soviet Communist party chief, headed a parade of dignitaries into a Bolshoi theater front row stage box last night.

Premier Bulganin and other government figures, including former Premier Georgi Malenkov, were in the party for a performance of White Russian folk music and dancing to which all western ambassadors were called in suddenly.

Reporters asked why.

One well-informed Russian-speaking envoy said "it was obviously so we would all see who sat where."

This is what they saw:

Khrushchev was followed in by Bulganin, deputy premier Lazar Kaganovich, and A. I. Mikoyan, former minister of trade but still a deputy premier. They took seats in the front row of the stag box in that order.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was in the second row. Malenkov sat in the rear of the box, partly hidden by the red brocade curtains.

ZHUKOV SAYS U.S. IS DEAF TO RED PEACE POLICIES

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 (UP)—Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov told a Russian television audience tonight that Russia's "peaceful policy" has found no "favorable echoes" in the West.

Zhukov stressed Russia's peaceful intentions.

"The pacific policy of the U.S.S.R. has not raised any favorable echces on the part of the capitalist countries," he said, "notably in the United States which is carrying on a policy of preparation for war and propaganda."

In a warning to the West, the defense minister said:

"We are ready to reply to all attacks. Those who do not take the lessons of history into account, like Hitler, and who attempt to adopt a position of force against the U.S.S.R. should remember his fate."

FAURE TO ASK ASSEMBLY FOR OK TOMORROW

Starts Picking Cabinet After His Own Party, Radical Socialists, Decides to Back Him.

PARIS, Feb. 22 (UP)—Edgar Faure will ask the General Assembly tomorrow to confirm him as premier.

He started picking his cabinet today after winning support of his own radical Socialist party and the Social Republican followers of Gen. Charles de Gaulle. Observers said this support virtually assures his approval as France's twenty-first postwar premier.

The radical Socialists voted 121 to 48, with one blank ballot, to back Faure. The Gaullists voted 87 to 30, with five abstentions, to join his government.

Faure called on Gaston Monnerville, president of the Senate, where the Paris pacts on German rearmament are stalled by the government crisis. Informed sources said he asked Monnerville to clear the way for quick debate and approval of the treaties to restore the confidence of the Western Allies in France.

Faure is the fourth political leader to try to form a cabinet since fellow Radical Socialist Pierre Mendes-France was overthrown Feb. 5 with the help of members of his own party. But he is only the second man to seek formal assembly approval in the current crisis.

The other, Socialist Christian Pineau, was voted down by the Assembly Saturday. Independent Antoine Pinay and Pierre Pflimlin of the Popular Republican movement gave up without asking for a formal vote.

ROK RESERVES ACTIVATED

SEOUL, Feb. 22 (UP)—The first two Republic of Korea army reserve divisions were formally activated today under the military assistance agreement with the United States.

The new divisions are the Thirtieth and Thirty-first. Eight other reserve divisions will be organized this year under the pact.

BUSINESSES MUST SUPPORT PRIVATE COLLEGE SYSTEM, EXECUTIVE SAYS

Standard Oil Chairman Addresses Washington U. Convocation, Receives Honorary Degree.

Business men and corporations have an "abiding responsibility" to help provide the financial support urgently needed by private colleges and universities, Robert E. Wilson, Chicago, chairman of the board of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, said here last night.

"The final hope of support for the college is the business institution itself," he told 400 business and industrial leaders at a dinner meeting of the Washington University Second Century Convocation.

Speaking at the Women's Building on the campus, Wilson declared: "I am thinking of the business man as donor, if for no other reason than that he has been a prime beneficiary of our private educational system."

A recent survey of 33,500 business executives found that 88 per cent of them had college background and that 71 per cent had attended independent, privately-supported colleges and universities, he pointed out.

Convocation Ends Tonight.

The four-day convocation, marking the beginning of the university's second century of operation, will end tonight with an address by Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, special and personal envoy of the President of the Philippines. Romulo will speak at 8 p.m. in the university Field House.

Future plans of the university will be outlined by Chancellor Ethan A. H. Shepley. Music for the concluding assembly will be by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

Wilson, who was awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws by the university, said American business and industry today need "men with the broad outlook, men with a sure grasp of their intellectual heritage, mentally and morally disciplined and trained to evaluate data and arrive at sound conclusions."

He said colleges and universities have played an important role in producing this type of executive.

Half Are in the Red.

However, nearly half the private colleges and universities in the United States are operating in the red, Wilson said.

"Most of them badly need new dormitories or other facilities," he added. "Some have been forced to dip into their endowment capital, or, what is worse, curtail their teaching staffs." Some teachers have been compelled by financial needs to take jobs in industry or with tax-supported institutions, he said.

Because of the close relationship of business and education, colleges and universities "have a primary responsibility to help preserve our democratic system of freedom and opportunity," Wilson declared.

"It also follows that private enterprise has an equally great responsibility to foster and preserve a system of education in which all subjects are open to the freely inquiring mind."

Wilson said the plight of private educational institutions was caused by "soaring" operating costs. Endowment income, he added, has not kept pace with costs.

Pointing out that tuition has been raised an average of 60 per cent since 1940, he said private institutions can "scarcely go higher as long as state university tuition is so far below cost."

"If present conditions continue," he warned, "we face the very real danger that many of these fine independent colleges, which have contributed so much more than their proportionate share to the intellectual, religious and scientific leadership of the nation, will be forced to close their doors."

This would be particularly unfortunate in view of the "unprecedented wave of prospective students now sweeping through the public schools" and nearing college age, he added.

GAMBLER'S HOME RAIDED, DAILY TAKE PUT AT $600

Harry J. McCutcheon, who described himself as a "self-employed speculator" and took in an estimated $600 a day in the handbook business, was free on a $5000 bond today following a raid yesterday at his home in Clayton by sheriff's deputies and Clayton police.

When Capt. P. K. Moeller, head of the sheriff's gambling squad, knocked at the door of McCutcheon's home at 8114 Vena avenue, McCutcheon called out, "You got a search warrant?" Capt. Moeller said he did, and the door was opened.

Officers found 90 betting tabs on a kitchen table. Scratch sheets and other material was found throughout the house. They found $400 on a dresser, which McCutcheon said, "I got from oil wells." An additional $2535 was stuffed in a shirt pocket in a closet.

Capt. Moeller estimated McCutcheon did about $600 worth of business each day. Officers said they received eight telephone calls while there for 30 minutes. McCutcheon, who was held on an open charge, said he had been operating about three weeks.

SKID ROW LAWYER ENDS FIRST MONTH AS AID TO JUDGE

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (AP)—A member of the bar who spent too much time at the kind with bottles has finished the first month on the road back from Skid Row.

The occasion was observed yesterday with a fancy cake cutting in the Monroe street branch of the municipal court where the lawyer, William G. Wood, has been getting $5 a day as an adviser to the judge.

Judge Hyman Feldman reported Wood "has new teeth, new interest and a new outlook on life."

The judge found Wood in January in the line of derelicts who appear before him each morning. He recognized him as a former law school teacher and capable lawyer who had turned bum.

Judge Feldman offered to pay the daily compensation out of his own pocket if Wood would give up drink and help out in court.

35,000 FREEDOM MEDALS, PAMPHLETS DROPPED IN AREA

Three Civil Air Patrol planes dropped a total of 35,000 Freedom Bell medallions and pamphlets on residential areas in the St. Louis area today as part of the current Crusade for Freedom.

Also dropped were "Truth Dollar" envelopes in which contributions to finance operation of Radio Free Europe may be mailed to the postmaster. Radio Free Europe beams broadcasts to persons behind the Iron Curtain. The medallions were of the type transported behind the Iron Curtain by ballons launched from free territory.

A fourth plane in the group under the command of Col. William S. Blanke made simflar drops at Columbia, Jefferson City and St. Joseph. Kirk Jeffrey, vice president of the Manchester Bank of St. Louis, is chairman of the St. Louis Crusade for Freedom.

BANKS, SCHOOLS AND MANY OFFICES OBSERVE HOLIDAY

Banks, schools and all city, state and federal offices in St. Louis and St. Louis county were closed today in observance of the 223rd anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Because of the legal holiday, motorists were not required to put coins in parking meters but all other traffic regulations, including hours when parking is permitted and the length of time is permitted, were still in effect.

Most stores and business firms remained open, but only special delivery mail was being delivered. Regular collection schedules were being maintained, however, and windows at the Main Post Office will be open until 6 p.m. for receipt of mail and sale of stamps.

RALSTON PURINA SHUT DOWN SECOND DAY BY STRIKE

Ralston Purina Co.'s St. Louis plant continued closed for production today because of refusal of union workers to cross picket lines of the AFL American Federation of Technical Engineers. No negotiations have been scheduled.

In addition to the plant at Eighth street and Chouteau avenue, where 350 men are employed, three smaller installations having a total of about 100 workers also are shut down. They include an elevator along the river, a warehouse in East St. Louis, and a sanitation products plant at 4142 Union boulevard.

The strike was begun yesterday by laboratory technicians at the nutritional research laboratory in the company's general offices, which were not closed. Negotiations for a contract broke down over the union's demands for a union shop and wage increases averaging 10 cents an hour.

OTTO ANHEIUSER DIES OF AUTO CRASH INJURIES

Otto Anheiuser, a taxicab driver, 402A Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis, died in St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, today of injuries suffered Sunday night when he was thrown from his maehine in a two-car accident on Illinois Highway 157, three miles east of Parks Airport.

The taxicab struck a concrete bridge abutment after colliding with a car driven by Cloyd R. Drennan, 5150 North Park Drive, East St. Louis, police reported. Two passengers were hurt. Drennan was uninjured.

GROCER'S SON FATALLY SHOT BY HOLDUP MAN

Two Robbers Fled Without Loot After One Exchanges Pistol Shots With Victim.

Tony Anthony, a clerk in his father's market at 4837 Founthin avenue, died late yesterday of head wounds suffered five hours earlier when he exchanged pistol shots with one of two men who tried to rob the store.

Anthony, 40 years old, also was shot in the right arm and left leg. He died at Homer G. Phillips Hospital. He lived at 4865 Kossuth avenue.

The holdup men, both Negroes, escaped without taking any money.

Tony Anthony was behind the meat counter at the rear when the first man came in and waited there. The proprietor, Charles Anthony, was near the cash register at the front when the second man entered, holding a handkerchief over his face and a paper bag in his hand.

The second robber pointed a revolver at the father and demanded, "Give me the money or I'll kill you."

Tony, seeing what was happening at the front, yelled, "Get out of here!" and reached for a pistol near at hand. At that point the robber at the meat counter started shooting, and he and the clerk fired several shots at each other.

A hat left by one of them had a bullet hole high in the crown. Tony, also known as Tony Anastasiou, fired three times.

One customer, Mrs. Velma Dill, 4831 Fountain, was making a purchase when the men came in but they ignored her. She is a Negro. The store is Gold Star Market No. 9.

$1298, COFFEE WORTH $1853 STOLEN IN TWO BURGLARIES

Coffee valued at $1853 and $1298 in cash were stolen in separate burglaries over the weekend, police reported yesterday.

Eighty-two cases of coffee valued $1853 were taken from a warehouse at 111 West Schirmer street, John Constantino, owner, reported. Entry was gained through a hole cut in the roof of the one-story building. The cases of coffee, which weighed a total of 1968 pounds, apparently were taken out a side door, police said.

A total of $1298 in cash was taken from two safes in Mangel's of St. Louis, Inc., women's clothing store at 415 North Sixth street, Robert Krendell, manager, reported to police. Police said the burglars apparently hid in the basement of the store when it was closed Saturday night.

WOUNDED MAN TELLS POLICE ACQUAINTANCE SHOT HIM

James W. Penrose, 22 years old, of 4170 Cleveland avenue, was in City Hospital today suffering from a gunshot wound in the left side inflicted under circumstances which police are investigating.

Penrose, a truck driver, told police he was shot by an acquaintance in Tower Grove Park last night with whom he had been riding in a car with four companions. Subsequently, Penrose said, he visited a relative and then went to a tavern before going to the hospital.

3 YOUNG GIRLS IN FAMILY DIE IN FIRE IN HOME

Tarpaper-Covered House in Madison Razed — Children Were One, 2 and 3 Years Old.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

The three young daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stewart Jr. were burned to death today in a fire which roared through their three-room tarpaper-covered house at 120 Carver avenue, Madison.

Dead were Sandra, 3 years old; Wanda, 2, and Linda, 1, Negroes.

Police said the fire apparently resulted from explosion of an oil heater. Damage to the dwelling was estimated at $1000.

The children's mother, Ernestine, 20, said she went to a next-door neighbor's about 10 a.m. and on her return five minutes later found the interior of the house in flames.

Neighbors restrained her from dashing into the house after the children.

Madison and Venice firemen used water from a tank truck to fight the flames as there are no fire hydrants nearby. Bodies of the children were found huddled on a studio couch.

6700 BUY CITY AUTO STICKERS ON FIRST DAY OF ARRESTS

About 6700 city automobile licenses were sold at City Hall yesterday, the first day in which arrests were made for not having a 1955 sticker. The License Collector's office was closed today because of the holiday.

Police continued today to arrest motorists who do not have the new sticker. A total of 150 was given summonses yesterday.

License Collector Joseph T. Hayden said about 235 persons appeared at his office yesterday seeking duplicate stickers, but most of them were required to buy new licenses.

To obtain a duplicate, an applicant must provide the receipt issued at the time of the initial purchase and a copy of the police report on the theft. Hayden cautioned motorists against attaching stickers to the windshields with tape.

SUES FOR $35,000 DAMAGES IN GOLF CART ACCIDENT

A suit for $35,000 damages was filed in circuit court here yesterday for injuries allegedly suffered last summer when an automotive golf cart overturned near the eleventh hole on the Meadowbrook Country Club in St. Louis county.

The suit was filed by Samuel H. Goldman, a salesman, 8007 Stanford avenue, University City, charging that Harry Shapiro, president of a real estate firm at 822 Chestnut street, was negligent in operating the cart in which Goldman was a passenger last July 25, and caused it to overturn.

Goldman suffered a broken right leg, sprained left leg, a fractured finger and bruises, the suit alleged.

Schlafly Assails Job Patronage In School Building Department

Board Member Calls for Election of 'Blue-Ribbon' Slate to End Such Practices.

The Board of Education's building department was assailed last night by board member Daniel L. Schlafly as the largest reservoir of political patronage jobs in St. Louis.

He called for election of the five "blue ribbon" School Board candidates, sponsored by the Citizens' School Improvement Committee, to end patronage in the department, which has 1100 employes.

Speaking to leaders of the mothers' committee of the citizens' group at campaign headquarters, 621 North Kingshighway, Schlafly said some persons seek election to the board because they "like to control political patronage."

The "blue ribbon" candidates, however, are running because they "believe in serving the best interests of our children and improving the educational system," he asserted.

Election of the citizens' slate, April 5, he said, would insure a majority on the board which would work effectively to centralize administration of the school system under one official.

The candidates are Oscar W. Gergs, Mrs. Edward M. Harrington, Carl W. Messinger, Clem F. Storckman, incumbent, and Dr. W. A. Younge, Negro physician, each of whom spoke.

Messinger told the meeting that the slate is "completely uncommitted to any group, corporation or union. We are uncommitted people, able to judge issues on their own merits. Because we are not committed, we have a better chance of keeping on the track."

Members of the School Board's legislative committee—Storckman, chairman; Schlafly and Oscar A. Ehrhardt—went to Jefferson City today to present bills the board has approved to St. Louis members of the Legislature for introduction.

Among the measures is one that would abolish the building department as a separate branch of the school system. The bill would eliminate the job of school building commissioner and give his duties to the superintendent of instruction.

The committee yesterday heard a statement on behalf of the St. Louis Teachers' Co-operative Council asking the School Board to seek an amendment to the State Constitution that would increase the maximum school tax rate the board can set without holding an election.

James S. McClellan, attorney for the council, described as "wholly unrealistic" the present ceiling of 89 cents for each $100 of assessed property valuation. Committee members said it was a problem that required action, but that plans would have to be worked out carefully.

Voters will be asked March 11 to retain the $1.15 levy.

SEGREGATION TO END IN FALL IN LADUE SCHOOLS

An end of racial segregation in the public schools of Ladue, effective next September, was voted unanimously last night by the Ladue Board of Education, School Superintendent Ivan C. Nicholas reported.

The step was recommended by the executive committee of the Ladue Parents' Council after a series of meetings, Nicholas said.

At present, about 63 Ladue Negro students are attending schools outside the district. They will be eligible to attend the hitherto white schools next fall and the number is expected to rise to about 67 by then, Nicholas said. About 45 of these would enter the seven elementary schools and 22 would enroll in the high school, he added. White enrollment is now 2327.

MAIN LOCKS AT ALTON OPENED TO RIVER TRAFFIC

The main locks in the Mississippi river at Alton, out of operation since Oct. 20 for repairs, have been opened to traffic, Col. George E. White Jr., district engineer of the St. Louis Corps of Engineers, announced today.

The locks were closed to install a new upper gate sill and new lock gates, each weighing 98 tons. The work was the second major overhaul performed on the locks since they were placed in service about 17 years ago.

U.S. SUPREME COURT ASKED TO REVIEW DOLAN APPEAL

The United States Supreme Court yesterday was asked to review the Court of Appeals decision upholding the perjury conviction of former Patrolman Elmer Dolan.

A petition for a writ of certiorari was filed at Washington for Dolan by Attorney Stanley Rosenblum. It is expected that 30 days may elapse before the court decides whether to review the case.

The Court of Appeals last month upheld the convictions of Dolan and former Police Lt. Louis Shoulders. The convictions resulted from testimony they gave a federal grand jury concerning the haidling of the Greenlease ransom money. Shoulders, serving a three-year term, decided to drop his appeal from the convection and seek a parole instead. Dolan, serving two years, is continuing his appeal efforts, following rejection of his application for parole.

THREE ARE INDICTED ON WIRETAP CHARGE

New York State Inquiry to Be Requested in Assembly.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP) — Recent discovery of a wiretap center operated in a Manhattan apartment has brought grand jury indictments against three men and proposals for a state wiretap inquiry.

Indicted yesterday were two telephone company employes, Carl R. Ruh and Walter Asmann. The third man was Warren B. Shannon, whose apartment allegedly served as the wiretap listening center.

The indictment accused all three of conspiracy and unlawful possession of wiretapping equipment and seven felony counts involving alleged actual wiretapping of telephones.

Named in the indictment as having had their phones tapped were Marge Wilson, whose apartment si shared by former burlesque star Ann Corio; Rudolph Heineman, Igrid Dail, and three phones of E. R. Squibb and Sons.

All said they had no idea why anyone would tap their phones.

In announcing the indictments, Ditrsict Attorney Frank S. Hogan said it is still "too early" to say what the Manhattan wiretap setup was all about.

Although police raided the East Side apartment Feb. 11, Hogan said he did not learn of it until Feb. 17 when the New York City anti-crime committee, a private agency, called attention to it.

Hogan criticized the committee for failing to tell him about the wiretap discovery earlier.

In Albany, Republican legislative leaders found the wiretap reports disturbing enough to warrant a full-scale investigation by a joint legislative committee. Assemblyman Oswald D. Heck and Senator Walter J. Mahoney, planned to present a resolution today for an inquiry.

The Assembly Speaker and Senate Majority Leader issued a statement saying it was time for "drastic action against highly skilled professional Peeping Toms and those who hire their scurrilous services." They continued:

"The increasing use of wiretapping and other technically fantastic electronic listening devices apparently has become a standard modus operandi for some business pirates, social scavengers and unscrupulous political opportunists.

BAR CUSTOMER DIES AFTER BEING SHOT IN HOLDUP

may have recognized the holdup men as neighborhood acquaintances. Bernal, who was unmarried, lived with his mother, Mrs. Martha Bernal. He formerly worked for a loan firm, but recently was unemployed.

I. A. Long, president of the Police Board, said today a survey is being conducted as to how best to deploy the police force to combat robbers. Long pointed out that the recent employment by the board of more than 60 school crossing guards has released additional officers for general police duty.

The Londoff Cocktail Lounge was the scene last June 13 of a shooting in which three men were wounded. Two bystanders were shot in a pistol fight between Police Sgt. Lee Soete and Paul Baykoski, a former convict, also wounded. The fight occurred after Sgt. Soete was called to the establishment to disarm Baykoski, who had displayed a pistol.

An aftermath of that shooting was the wounding of Mrs. Raymond Weichelt 10 days later by men who followed her to her East St. Louis home and stabbed her. Mrs. Weichelt, a waitress at the cocktail lounge, told police she had been warned to change her eyewitness account of the shooting.

The Johnny Londoff Motor Co., 2359 Palm street, also owned by the cocktail lounge proprietor, was robbed of $3000 last month by three young men, who held up Londoff, a customer and six employes. The robbers fled through a side door, and ran east in Mallinckrodt street. That route was taken by the holdup men in their flight early today, police were told.

REZONING FOR JUNK YARDS AT HOUSING PROJECT ASSAILED

is around the corner from classrooms of O'Fallon School.

Another example of spot zoning cited by planning officials as a source of decay is in the 3400 block of Arlington avenue, where some lots have been reclassified for local business and other lots wedged in between are still zoned for single-family residences. Alderman Edgar J. Feely of the Twentieth Ward arranged the rezoning to oblige individuals who wanted to operate improvised parking lots in their back yards to provide parking space near the Chevrolet plant.

A planning engineer commented:

"This butchering of a residential block is one of the worst to be found in the city. Creation of the parking lots has resulted in noise, dirt, a dangerous traffic condition and general lowering of property values. A narrow alley serves as both exit and entrance to the parking lots, making it next to impossible for property owners and tenants to use their own garages.

"This area before the zoning change was at the dividing line between the conservation and the rehabilitation district. There is little question but that the resultant blight caused by the spot zones has now placed this neighborhood into the rehabilitation classification and one step further toward a slum."

Other spot zoning measures sponsored by Alderman Feely have changed a 97-foot lot on Ashland avenue from single-family to a commercial classification, and have reclassified the rear of three residential lots on Arlington into an industrial district.

Alderman Raymond Leisure of the Seventh Ward was responsible for two zoning changes against which the Mayor protested in vain. One reclassified a 30-foot lot on Fourteenth street near Soulard street from multiple-family to business use. The other permitted business use of a small lot in a residential area at Missouri and Geyer avenues.

Other Spot Zoning Cases.

Alderman Everett J. Taylor of the Twenty-seventh Ward put through three spot zoning measures. One reclassified a 50-foot lot on Robin avenue from single- to two-family use. Another changed a small lot on Riverview boulevard from single to multiple family. The third permitted business use of a 36-foot lot in a residential district on Plover avenue, although the late Mayor Joseph M. Darst protested that there was ample space for commercial establishments nearby.

Former Alderman Louis G. Berra of the Twenty-fourth Ward was responsible for three rezoning measures passed over mayoral vetoes. These reclassified the corner of Edwards avenue and Bischoff street from single-family to commercial, permitted business use of the corner of McCausland and Glades avenues, and permitted multiple-family use of dwelings in a single-family district at Berthold and Clayton avenues.

When he was First Ward Alderman, John W. Hoerr put through a spot zoning bill which changed classification of a 70-foot lot on Michigan avenue near Mott street from two-family to business.

Alderman Carl Guetschow of the Twenty-third ward was responsible for rezoning a single-family lot at Fyler avenue and Regal place for business.

Ziegenbalg's Measure.

Alderman Walter W. Ziegenbalg of the Fouth Ward put through reclassification of a lot on Reber place near January avenue from single-family to two-family.

Alderman DeWitte T. Lawson of the Nineteenth Ward had the corner of Franklin and Cardinal avenues rezoned for more general business use.

In addition to paving the way for the junk yards, Alderman Curry had the corner of Fifteenth street and Cass avenue spot-zoned for unrestricted use.

In all, there have been 22 spot zoning changes since the master zoning ordinance was enacted in 1950. Twenty of these bills were vetoed by the Mayor.

Six more persons filed yesterday as candidates for the Board of Aldermen, raising the total seeking nomination in the 14 even-numbered wards to 37.

Among those who filed yesterday were two incumbents—William C Brady, Democrat, Twenty-sixth ward, and Alfred I. Harris, Democrat, Twenty-second ward.

The other new filings also were by Democrats. They include: Donald Bell, real estate dealer, 3742 California avenue, Tenth ward; Charles W. Dixon, merchant, 2300 South Third street, Eighth ward; Archie Blaine, clerk, 2601 Walnut street, Sixth ward, and E. (Broadway) Bradley, 1431 Granville place, Twenty-sixth ward. Thus far no Democrats have filed in the Second and Twenty-fourth wards and no Republicans in the Fourth, Eighth, Sixteenth and Twentieth wards.

SOUTHEAST ASIA TREATY NATIONS CONVENE TONIGHT

try could handle internal subversion and Red infiltration but if any external force attacked, then it would need help.

One aspect of the common military establishment already has been suggested by Philippines Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Garcia. He said he would propose a common air force for collective Southeast Asia defense.

Australia's External Affairs Minister, Richard Casey, arrived yesterday after visiting Laos. The other Communist threat developing across the Thai border has been reported there.

Casey said the political situation in Laos, Cambodia and South Viet Nam was not impossible of solution but "I can't pretend it is easy of solution." He said he saw no reason for immediate concern about the situation in Laos. Dissidents in two Laos provinces controlled by the Communists have been reported to be dangerous to the peace of Southeast Asia.

The Communists, led by the Peiping radio in Red China, were treating the conference as an American plot to "get Asians to do the dying for United States aggression in Asia."

Session in Throne Hall.

The conference will open in the Anunda Samakom throne hall.

The number of policemen around the meeting hall, hotels, main intersections and the road to the airport was increased slightly, but no extraordinary preparations could be noted.

A radio truck lumbers through the city with loudspeaker asking thieves, pickpockets and naked children to stay off the streets this week so Bangkok can present its best face to foreigners.

More than 40 miles of streets have been widened. Paint has been splashed through hotel corridors and lobbies.

English-speaking Thai girl secretaries have been assigned to more than 100 foreign correspondents covering the conferences.

ST. LOUIS SAILOR KILLED IN BLAST ON SUBMARINE

ies were being charged at Hunters Point Naval Shipyard, preparatory to going to sea.

Woods' letter to his mother, written from San Francisco Oct. 11, indicated that the Pomodon had returned there for repairs after sailing for the Orient from its base at San Diego Oct. 1.

The Navy has ordered an inquiry into Sunday's disaster, after announcing that the explosions were "presumed to have been caused by excessive hydrogen which is given off by storage batteries while they are being charged."

The letter from Seaman Woods, apparently written shortly after the Pomodon arrived in San Francisco, was quoted in part by his mother as follows:

"Dear Mom—

"Well, here we are back in the states. We are up here in San Francisco and will be for quite a while. We were about 900 miles out at sea, and had a battery blow up, and it killed three men and hurt seven others. It caused $1,257,000 damage. Believe me, that ain't hay, and it wasn't funny. . . ."

The Pomodon, which was commissioned Nov. 9, 1945, at Portsmouth, N.H., was converted later to an ultra modern Guppy II-type craft, with snorkel system.

At San Francisco, members of the submarine's crew, including Lt. Comdr. Charles Almy, San Diego, commander of the vessel, were under orders not to discuss the disaster with newspaper men.

Mrs. Woods told the Post-Dispatch her son attended Cleveland High School and entered the Navy Dec. 19, 1952. He attended sonar school at San Diego. From Feb. 1, 1954, to Aug. 1 of last year he was aboard the Pomodon on a cruise to Siberian waters and Indochina, she said.

PRESIDENT'S ROAD PROGRAM IS SENT TO CONGRESS

more than 1,000,000 injured on the highways. The economic cost of the accident toll is more than $4,300,000,00 a year.

2. The physical condition of the present road network increases the cost of vehicle operation; this increased cost is estimated at 5 billion dollars a year.

3. The present highway system in critical atomic target areas "would be the breeder of a deadly congestion within hours of an attack." In case of an atomic attack, the road net must permit quick evacuation, mobilization of defense forces and maintenance of essential functions.

4. Existing traffic jams only faintly foreshadow those of 10 years hence unless roads are rapidly improved.

More than half of the President's message was devoted to material emphasizing the need for action. He then listed the sums of money the Federal Government would expend on urban, rural, primary and secondary road systems. Only two paragraphs, those quoted previously, were devoted to the controversial toll road and financing proposals.

The President said he was forwarding the Clay report and would submit shortly a new report by the Bureau of Public Roads. These reports provide a solid foundation for a sound program, he said. But he added that "inescapably, the vastness of the highway enterprise fosters varieties of proposals which must be resolved into a national highway pattern."

Total federal expenditures for 10 years under the President's program would be $31,225,000,000. Of this 25 billion dollars would be for the key interstate system, responsibility for which would be assumed largely by the Federal Government; $5,250,000,000 for federal-aid primary and secondary roads; $750,000,000 for federal-aid urban streets, and $225,000,000 for forest highways.

Present plans call for the spending of 47 billion dollars in the next decade, so the 101 billion proposal would be an increase of 54 billion. The federal share would rise from less than 9 billion to more than 31 billions under the President's program with the Government paying for about 30 per cent of the highway program instead of 19 per cent.

The Clay committee recommended that a large part of the federal contribution be financed by borrowing 20 billions at 3 per cent interest. The bonds thus sold would not become part of the federal debt, which is crowding the legal ceiling. An additional 5 billions would be obtained from taxing gasoline filling stations and other facilities along the highways.

The borrowing would be accomplished through a federal highway corporation which would be set up by Congress as an independent agency. The Treasury would guarantee the corporation's bonds.

QUEEN ELIZABETH ATTENDS PARTY AT U.S. EMBASSY

LONDON, Feb. 22 (UP) — American Ambassador Winthrop Aldrich gave the outstanding party of the London social season tonight with Queen Elizabeth II as honored guest.

It was the Queen's first visit to the United States Embassy. Among those accepting invitations were Prime Minister and Lady Churchill, American Ambassador to the United Nations Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., British minister of state Anthony Nutting, the envoys of Italy, Germany, Australia, Austria and Canada and Winthrup Rockefeller, the American oil millionaire.

There were 300 persons in all at the Washington birthday dinner-dance, with the Queen escorted by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, but the guest list was not published.

The embassy occupies the former residence of Barbara Hutton, a fabulously luxurious property, redecorated and converted at a cost of $250,000.

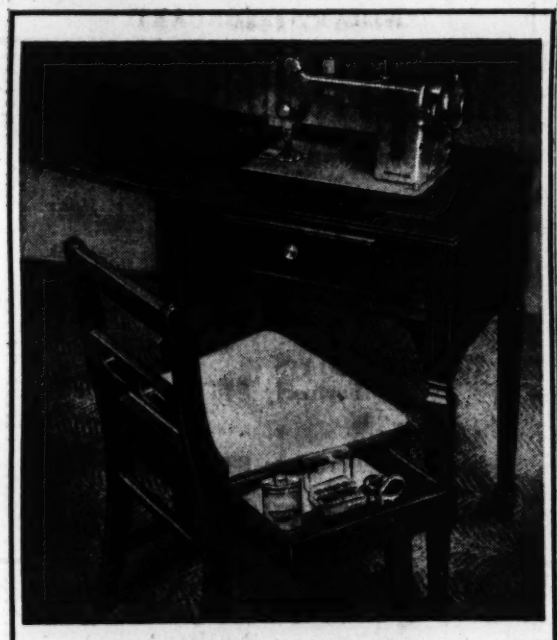

CAP PISTOLS BELIEVED CAUSE OF OIL TANK BLAST, 2 KILLED

SALINA, Kan., Feb. 22 (AP) —Two boys, playing with cap pistols, were killed yesterday in the explosion of three crude-oil storage tanks on the Marymount College campus. A third boy was injured.

Fire Department Lt. Lawrence Tinkler said it was possible firing of the cap pistols may have touched off the blast.

Killed were Jerry Atkinson and Bobby Kohrs, each 10 years old. The injured boy is Leland Robert Tinkler, son of Lt. Tinkler.

LEADS THE WAY TO BEAUTY!

Until today you might as well have been putting your expensive creams on glass!

MAX FACTOR'S new discovery, SECRET-KEY throws open the barrier in your skin that's been holding back your creams and lotions!

"WHY is it that women with dry skin—women with oily skin—and women with the problems of blackheads and blemishes, never seem to get the help they long for—even when the strictest beauty routine is followed with expensive treatment preparations?"

. . . For years, we at Max Factor searched for the answer to this puzzling question. And this search revealed the startling fact that there is a chemical barrier in the skin itself that keeps creams and lotions "on the outside looking in"—as though they were smoothed on glass!

This barrier develops when skin lacks correct pH* balance. Meaning, it is either too acid or too alkaline. And very few women do have correct skin balance.

We set out to discover a way to break through the barrier—to enable creams and lotions to get through to bring needed help to parched or oil-clogged skin cells.

We found the way—discovered the SECRET KEY — a remarkable liquid formulation which returns the skin to correct acidity-alkalinity balance . . . and by so doing opens the way through for creams and lotions to do their beautifying work.

We followed with exactly the right corrective treatment groups for the dry, the oily, the disturbed and the normal skin . . . Each group formulated to follow right behind the Secret Key and help the skin to help itself.

With the Secret Key and your corrective treatment group—suddenly you will begin to notice a real improvement!

Today, I am happy to be able to turn over to you the Secret Key that can open the way to the skin beauty you have longed for.

MORSE DELAYS SENATE ACTION ON PAY INCREASE

$7500 Measure Put Over Till Tomorrow—Kefauver Says It Will be Passed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Senator Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said today he believes a two-day delay in the Senate vote on a congressional pay increase bill will not hurt its chances of passage at all.

Kefauver, floor manager for the measure, said he thinks the $7500 pay boost—a 50 per cent rise—will pass the Senate by a good margin.

Senator Morse (Dem.), Oregon, thwarted hopes of Senate leaders to push the bill yesterday afternoon. Morse said the Senate had no right to push the measure through without giving the country time to make known its views on the politically touchy issue.

When Morse objected to voting yesterday, leaders agreed to put the bill over until Wednesday. A debate limitation then should bring a final decision that day.

Morse told the Senate he will offer amendments to increase expense allowances in lieu of a salary rise.

House Action.

The House last week voted a $10,000 increase in the present $15,000 congressional pay. Neither it nor the Senate version would change the $3000 income tax exemption allowed all members of Congress. Both bills also carry boosts ranging from $7500 to $10,000 for all federal judges.

The Senate Territories subcommittee resumed a hearing today on statehood legislation for both Alaska and Hawaii. It is concerned at this time with the probable effect of statehood for Alaska on the national defense.

James H. Douglas, Under Secretary of the Air Force, was designated to testify on behalf of Secretary of Defense Wilson, who has advised the committee that the Defense Department "believes it would be in the interest of the national security that Alaska remain a federal territory for the present."

Chairman Jackson (Dem.), Washington, recalled that in 1950, Gen. Nathan F. Twining, now Air Force chief of staff but then head of Air, Naval and Army forces in Alaska, had supported statehood for the territory "as a defense measure."

Secretary of the Interior McKay told the subcommittee yesterday he favored statehood for Alaska if a vast area north of the Yukon river and west of 160 degrees longitude were set aside for possible designation as a military reservation. He said the population, economy and fiscal position of Alaska compare favorably with other western states at the time of their admission.

State Department Stand.

The State Department, meanwhile, flatly recommended statehood for both territories, disclosing its stand in a letter written to the subcommittee by Assistant Secretary Thruston B. Morton.

Statehood for both, Morton said, would "support American foreign policy and strengthen the position of the United States in international relations."

The Senate yesterday allotted $125,000 to an investigation of the Eisenhower Administration's federal employe security program.

Senators also approved the full $190,000 budget asked for the next year by its Investigations subcommittee and an additional $150,000 to continue a probe of union welfare funds. A labor subcommittee also has $40,000 left over from a previous allowance for the welfare fund investigation.

The House and Senate celebrated George Washington's birthday today by hearing a reading of the first President's most famous political testament—his Farewell Address.

RUBIROSA DIVORCE HEARING SET BY DOMINICAN COURT

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Feb. 22 (AP)—The federal court of the Dominican Republic has scheduled a hearing March 10 in the divorce suit filed by Porfirio Rubirosa against Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton.

The court set the date yesterday, five days after notice of the action was filed. An attorney for the Dominican playboy-diplomat said Miss Hutton failed to advise the court of her address as required by law if she intended to contest the suit.

Rubirosa brought the action on ground of incompatibility. He and Miss Hutton were married in New York Dec. 30, 1953, and separated the following March.

ARKANSAS HOUSE PASSES SCHOOL SEGREGATION BILL

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 22 (AP)—The House passed yesterday—after three minutes of debate—a bill designed to keep segregation in Arkansas schools.

The bill, which doesn't mention Negroes or segregation, would set up an assignment officer in each school district. This official would assign each pupil to a district school. A complicated formula is set up for appeals. The vote for the bill was 58-20. It now goes to the Senate.

An emergency clause, which would have made it effective immediately on signing by Gov. Orval Faubus, failed by one vote.

America House for W. Berlin.

BERLIN, Feb 22 (AP) — The West Berlin senate yesterday approved United States State Department plans to erect a new $238,000 America House in this city. America Houses, in most West German cities, are primarily lending libraries. The emphasis is on books about the United States.

NEW ZEALAND, BRITAIN JOIN IN ATOMIC PROJECT

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Britain and New Zealand have joined forces to produce heavy water and electric power at the Wairakei hot springs on New Zealand's north island.

The United Kingdom atomic energy authority announced yesterday formation of a company to carry out the $5,600,000 project.

Some atomic power plants use heavy water to control the reaction. It is composed of oxygen and and isotope of hydrogen called deuterium, whose nucleus is made up of a neutron and a proton. The nucleus of ordinary hydrogen contains only one proton.

TOO YOUNG TO ENTER STEER IN BOY'S CLASS, WINS SHOW

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Feb. 22 (AP)—Dan Wade Crenwelge, 7 years old, was too young to enter his 815-pound Hereford steer in the boys' division of the San Antonio Livestock Exposition yesterday. He had to enter it in the open class along with the adults' entries.

Last night the farm boy from Fredericksburg, Tex., saw his steer—named "Shorty" after the boy's grandfather—crowned grand champion steer of the show. Shorty will be sold at auction Friday.

Last year's grand champion sold for $12,750. Another grand champion, also named Shorty, sold for $21,000 in 1951.

HURT IN ESCAPING FIRE

Miss Edith Porter, of 3879 Delmar boulevard, suffered contusions early today when she fell 30 feet from a rope fire escape after fire broke out in a closet of her third-floor apartment.

Damage was estimated by firemen at $50. Miss Porter, a Negro, was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital.

AGREES TO MOSLEM WOMEN REMOVING VEILS FOR PHOTOS

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Feb. 22 (AP) — The spiritual leader of Capetown's Malay community agreed today to permit Moslem women to remove their veils to be photographed for the national population register. But he said he hoped the photographers would be women.

The population register now is being compiled throughout South Africa.

About a quarter of Capetown's Malay women wear veils.

MATUSOW NAMES FOUR EX-REDS HE SAYS ALSO LIED

Will Plead Guilty Only If Johnson, Bentley, Budenz, Crouch Are Prosecuted, He Says.

EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 — Harvey Matusow acknowledged today that he was guilty of "many crimes" but said he was unwilling to plead guilty and pay his debt to society unless others he named as having borne false witness in federal proceedings also were indicted and prosecuted.

Among those he mentioned in this respect were Paul Crouch, Louis Budenz, Elizabeth Bentley and Manning Johnson, all former Communists who, like Matusow, have frequently been used by the Government and congressional committees in investigations of subversion.

Matusow's statement brought an angry charge from Senator John L. McClelland (Dem.), Arkansas, that the self-styled reformed liar was trying to capitalize on his role as a former Government witness through publication of a book or was attempting to aid Communists whom he had helped to convict.

"If you are charged, is it now your intention to plead guilty and pay your debts?" McClellan demanded.

"If I am charged, it depends on who else is charged in the indictment," Matusow said. "I won't be a scapegoat. But if the Government also charges Crouch, Bentley, Johnson and Budenz, I will gladly join them in any federal prison. Otherwise, no."

Apology to Antioch.

Matusow said he was willing to turn over whatever money he made on his forthcoming book, "False Witness," to educational institutions. He mentioned specifically Antioch College, in Ohio, about which, he said, he had testified falsely before congressional committees.

Matuow conceded that he had been advised by attorneys that it would be difficult for the Government to convict him of perjury.

Earlier, Matusow was questioned closely about his testimony yesterday that conversations he had had with Miss Bentley showed she had lied in her testimony before congressional committees.

He said Miss Bentley told him in October 1952 that she was having to "find material" to give investigating committees and was not going to be a witness again unless she was placed on a salary.

Miss Bentley told him, Matusow said, that she was broke and "sick of being sued." She wept frequently during their conversation, he went on, and advised him that "you are a young man and you can go out and get a job."

Bentley Complaint.

Miss Bentley complained that she could not get a job as a teacher and that testifying "is the only kind of work I can get," Matusow said.

The committee has page proofs of Matusow's book and today opened an attack on certain parts of it to show that it contains statements which are "demonstrably untrue."

The Senators, pursuing the theme that Matusow is in this for the money, gained admission from him that he had called several persons relative to obtaining a publisher for his book or a subsidy for him while he was working on it. Among these he named Jack Anderson, member of the staff of Columnist Drew Pearson and Joseph Alsop, also a columnist. The subsidy he had in mind was $1500, he said.

He also said he called an aid to Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, with the idea of branding as false certain material he had used against Mansfield in the 1952 senatorial campaign, and thus expose similar material which was being used against Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, in his race for the Senate from Montana last year.

Names Surine.

Matusow said some of the material used against Mansfield was supplied to him by Don Surine, member of the staff of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican.

Surine also supplied him a tape recording used against Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.), Washington, Matusow said. The recording purported to be an indorsement of Jackson, when he was running for Congress, by officers of the International Longshoremen's Union, which has been described as Communist-dominated. Other material he wanted to tell about, Matusow said, were contrived attacks upon Adlai Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee.

Inquiry Planned in Reversal by Lamb Case Witness.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP) —A United States grand jury is about to look into the conflicting testimony of Mrs. Marie Natvig, Miami Beach (Fla.) divorcee who linked publisher-broadcaster Edward Lamb with Communism but later switched her story completely around.

The latest development in the complex Lamb case came yesterday with the announcement by Attorney General Brownell that the Federal Communications Commission had handed the Justice Department a transcript of Mrs. Natvig's testimony. Brownell said a grand jury would begin an investigation next Monday.

Lamb has denied all allegations against his loyalty and has termed the inquiry a frame-up. He is a Toledo (O.) lawyer. Besides publishing the Erie Dispatch, he owns radio and TV properties in Florida and Ohio.

4000 SIGN HIGHWAY PETITIONS IN COUNTY

Only 2111 Names Needed—Expressways Bond Issue Election Is Aim.

Initiative petitions for an election on a proposed $8,500,000 bond issue to provide St. Louis county's share of right-of-way costs for four expressways will be presented to the County Council March 2, it was announced today.

Charles DeWitt, who was named permanent chairman of the Citizens Committee for Expressways in St. Louis county at a meeting last night, said 4000 signatures have been obtained on the petitions whereas only 2111 are required to initiate the election.

Members of the County Council will be invited to attend the next meeting of the committee next Tuesday night in the Council room in the Courthouse at Clayton, he said. The councilmen will be informed of the aims of the committee and will be asked to help in achieving them, DeWitt said.

The bond issue would pay one-half the costs of right-of-way acquisition for the county portions of the proposed Daniel Boone, Mark Twain and Ozark expressways and all the right-of-way cost for an Outer Belt expressway which is not yet a state project. Remaining cost of right-of-way and construction of the Daniel Boone, Mark Twain and Ozark projects would be borne by the state and federal governments.

DeWitt said from 300 to 400 signatures were obtained in Richmond Heights where most of the opposition to the Daniel Boone route has taken shape.

Under state law, if the signatures on the petitions are found to be those of duly registered voters, the Council must approve such an election.

BAR UNIT FAVORS SOCIAL SECURITY FOR ATTORNEYS

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (AP) — The policy-making body of the American Bar Association yesterday approved a resolution calling for social security for "lawyers and other professional people."

By a voice vote, the A.B.A. house of delegates adopted the resolution as recommended by its board of governors.

Approval was not unanimous and followed considerable discussion from the floor at the mid-year meeting of the delegates.

Karl C. Williams, Rockford, Ill., president of the Illinois Bar Association, opposed the resolution, saying he was against inclusion of lawyers in social security because "ours is a profession, not a vocation or calling, and is regulated by canons and ethics."

He said he feared such a move would put the legal profession in a position where it would "in time yield to some kind of regulation by Government."

E. Smythe Gambrell, Atlanta, Ga., was nominated president-elect of the A.B.A. today. The nomination is tantamount to election.

60 EXTRA COAST GUARD OFFICER SCHOOL OPENINGS

There are 60 extra openings for United States Coast Guard Reserve commissions in the present fiscal year, Capt. George C. Carlstedt, commander of the Second Coast Guard District, announced today.

A re-evaluation of reserve officers' billets has required an extra 60-member officers' candidates class, beginning March 23 at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn., Capt. Carlstedt said. The class will last 16 weeks.

College graduates between 21 and 26 years old, with a bachelor's degree in fields other than dentistry, medicine or theology are eligible. Applicants must be completely processed by the Coast Guard office here before March 11. Graduates are commissioned ensigns in the Coast Guard Reserve and are required to serve three years' active duty with the regular Coast Guard.

GEN. 'HOWLING MAD' SMITH QUITS BOYS-AID RACE TRACK

LA JOLLA, Calif., Feb. 22 (AP)—Retired Marine Corps Gen. Holland M. (Howling Mad) Smith disclosed yesterday that he has resigned as president of the California branch of Boys, Inc., the organization set up by two Texas millionaires to benefit boys from horse racing profits.

Smith said that he has now severed all connections with the Del Mar Turf Club, first racing track acquired by the Texans Clint Murchison and Sid Richardson in their boys-aid plan.

The retired general, who commanded Marines in the Pacific during World War II, declined to give a reason. Friends say he has indicated dissatisfaction with the progress of the Boys, Inc., movement.

OUTLINES DUTIES OF VETERINARIANS IN ATOM ATTACK

AEC Official Says First Job Would Be to Aid People, Then Help With Farm Problems.

In the event of nuclear attack, Missouri veterinarians will be used first as medical men for aid to human beings, then as experts on farm problems from fall-out, Lt. Col. Bernard Trum of the Atomic Energy Commission, Oak Ridge, said here yesterday.

Speaking to the opening session of the sixty-third annual convention of the Missouri Veterinary Medical association, he suggests ordinary hay shelters as the most practical rural protection for humans and cattle from effects of a fall-out.

"We are thinking about the area outside the blast point, of course," the officer of the Army Veterinary Corps said. "If the bomb falls, no shelter is of value in the first zone, as has been pointed out repeatedly. You are done if you are there, that is all.

"But afterward the fall-out begins, generally in about an hour. From available intruments, the course of the cloud can be plotted and persons within range can be warned, if communications exist. They should leave, if possible. If they remain, prescribed shelters should provide protection in most instances."

As to the effects on crop and pasture lands, Trum said research by the AEC had developed a "pretty good idea" of the problem but no start had as yet been made in disseminating a recommended course of action to be followed by veterinarians. The officer said he expected this would be done in the future, using conventions of state groups, among others.

In a question period after his illustrated lecture, Trum was asked by Dr. A. H. Quin, Kansas City, president of the American Veterinary Medical association, if rain would remove the radioactivity on pasture grasses and range from a fallout.

Trum answered: "It is never removed. It decays out. In a short time the imminent danger is removed but some (parts) are going to be radioactive. A cow will eat affected grass without knowing it, the radioactivity will go to her thyroid and will be passed on in her milk to us.

"This is another subject we should get into as a profession of veterinarians."

Trum then declined to go beyond remarks already made on the grounds of security classification.

At Oak Ridge he is connected with research on burros to test the lethality of nuclear explosions on animals.

In that connection he said with emphasis and repeated the assertion to be sure his audience understood it that there as yet has not been a proven instance of an animal dying in the United States from the after-effects of a nuclear explosion.

Dr. E. J. Catcott, of the College of Veterinary Medicine at Ohio State University, discussed the incidence in dogs of histoplasmosis, a fungus ailment that attacks both human beings and animals in the Mississippi valley. He said there were no known cases of dogs transmitting the disease to their owners.

Dr. W. R. Sheets of Farmington was installed as president of the association today, succeeding Dr. O. E. Ellis of Paris. Dr. William J. Hayden, Marshall, was elected president for 1956. A St. Louisan, Dr. H. S. Richards, was elected third vice president. The convention ends today.

SEARCHERS REACH WRECKAGE OF BELGIAN PLANE IN ITALY

RIETI, Italy, Feb. 22 (AP)—Search crews used pick axes today to recover the frozen bodies of 29 victims of a Belgian airliner crash on Mount Terminillo, high in the Apennines of central Italy.

The plane, a Sabena Belgian Air Lines DC-6, crashed at an altitude of 4500 feet Feb. 13. All aboard perished. Four of the victims were Americans .

Among those who reached the scene of the wreckage today was the mother of Italy's 1953 beauty queen, Marcella Mariani, one of the 29 killed.

Francesco Mauro, prefect of Rieti province, said there were indications would-be looters reached the scene before the official search parties.

The rough weather delayed finding the wreckage, finally spotted yesterday by search plane and a helicopter.

Americans among the 21 passengers on the airliner were Paul Leroy, geologist of Lake Hiawatha, N.J.; Robert Singer, Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. engineer of Brooklyn, N.Y.; E. J. Suter, of near Brussels; and Mrs. G. Guerrieri, of Rome. She was secretary to Miss Mariani.

NIXON RELAYS NICARAGUA PEACE BID TO COSTA RICA

SAN JOSE, Feb. 22 (UP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon has relayed to Costa Rican President Jose Figueres an offer by Nicaragua to bury the hatchet, informed sources said today.

Nixon flew here yesterday from Managua with what he said were "solemn assurances" from Nicaraguan President Anastasio Somoza that Nicaragua will do nothing to create "further tension and disturbances along its common border with Costa Rica." The touring United States Vice President and Figueres conferred last night.

Costa Rica only recently quelled a revolt which Figueres said was organized and supported by Nicaragua.

REST OF STOLEN GEMS FOUND IN DENTIST'S BANK BOX

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 22 (UP)—Police opened the safe deposit box of Dr. James Brumback, bay area credit dentist, yesterday and recovered the balance of $300,000 worth of jewelry and unset diamonds stolen from a San Francisco wholesaler last Friday.

The box, which had been in a time-locked vault over the weekend, was opened by Chief of Detectives James English. The victim of the robbery, Paul de Vries, checked the contents of the box and said he believed all of the loot taken in the bold daylight holdup had been recovered.

The box also contained several expensive jewelry pieces which De Vries said were not his and $160,000 in cash presumably belonging to Dr. Brumback. The dentist was arrested Saturday after being named as a receiver of stolen goods. Also arrested were Adolph E. Bigarani, Frank Mendes, Steve Sorrentino and Edmond Lindsey.

EX-CONVICT IS ARRESTED AFTER HOLDING UP STORE

Cleo A. Taylor, a former convict, was arrested by two cruising patrolmen last night shortly after he had held up a department store operated by Saul Bixhorn, 927 North Sarah street. Taylor rifled the cash register after threatening the proprietor with what appeared to be a pistol.

Taylor, a Negro, admitted the robbery. A plastic replica of an automatic pistol was found in his pocket together with $72 which he said he had obtained at the store, police reported. Bixhorn reported the loss as $250.

Taylor, who lives at 4322 West Belle place, is a former pugilist. He was apprehended near the store by Patrolmen Herbert Moon and Joseph Becker.

Billy Graham, St. Johns U. Win Freedom Group Awards

841 Prizes Announced by Foundation at Valley Forge — 191 High Schools Honored—$14,000 Distributed.

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP)—Evangelist Billy Graham and St. John's University of Brooklyn were hailed today by Freedoms Foundation for outstanding contributions to the American way of life in 1954.

The awards topped a list of 841 announced by the Foundation at special George Washington's birthday ceremonies at Valley Forge, where America's first President spent the bitter Revolutionary War winter of 1777-78.

In a flag-draped barn of colonial vintage, the Foundation honored American citizens, organizations and schools "for their work in bringing about a better understanding" for the United States's kind of freedom.

Clifford F. Hood, president of the United States Steel Corp., handed out the awards to the top 25 winners, and distributed $14,000 in cash prizes. All told, the Foundation will pay $31,000 to 1954 award winners, besides honoring 191 high schools. Secondary awards will be presented at regional ceremonies later this year.

Freedoms Foundation, a nonprofit, non-sectarian organization, started its project to spread the story of American liberties in 1949. At that time, President Eisenhower, then head of Columbia University, gave out the awards.

The Rev. Billy Graham, who has traveled across the world in his work for God, was cited "for his high resolve, his application of clear strength in the Lord's work and his discernment of the ways to live in Christian dignity in times that have bewildered so many of eminence."

St. John's University citation resulted from a faculty-written book called "Concept of Freedom" which the Foundation's awards jury headed by Dr. George D. Humphrey, president of the University of Wyoming, said "contributes mightily to the knowledge of men who study freedom's hard and glorious path."

General Category.

Three principal awards, worth $1000 each, were presented in the general category to:

All-American Conference to Combat Communism, Washington, D.C., for a "Know Your America Week program" that focused "community thought and action on understanding and rededication to our country's free way of life."

Hawaii Residents Association, Inc., Honolulu, for its anti-Communist program.

Kiwanis International, Chicago, for its "Minutemen for Americanism" project "enlisting 220,000 Kiwanians to 'speak up for Americanism.'"

Prizes of $1000 each were awarded to first place winners in the following categories: Cartoons, community programs, editorials, essays, public addresses, sermons, college campus programs, letters from armed forces personnel.

First place winners in the magazine articles and photographs with captions categories won $500 each, while Washington honor medals only went to top winners in advertising campaigns (national and local); company employe publications, motion pictures, radio programs and television programs.

Fifty awards of $100 each were presented to high schools with the best editorials.

Community programs — Eldorado (Ill.) Community Study and Development Group.

Editorials — J. Oliver Emmerich, McComb (Miss.) Enterprise-Journal.

Photographs—Floyd G. Piper of Streator, Ill.

Swift Evacuation May Have Saved Lives of Americans, Islanders, Doctor Testifies.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 — Prompt evacuation may have saved the lives of nearly 300 Americans and Marshall Islanders accidentally exposed to radiation from the Bikini hydrogen bomb test last spring.

This was disclosed today by Dr. John C. Bugher, director of biology and medicine for the Atomic Energy Commission, testifying before a Senate Civil Defense Subcommittee.

Victims of the radioactive "fallout" were rushed out of the danger area by an American destroyer as soon as instruments showed that high-level winds had carried the poisonous dust to other atolls as far as 250 miles away, Dr. Bugher said.

"With conservative therapy and good nursing, all have recovered, and there have been no instance of jaundice or liver involvement," he said.

Mostly Islanders.

He said that of the nearly 300 persons injured by the fallout, 236 were Marshall islanders.

Hardest hit by the radioactive dust, he said, were 84 Marshall islanders on Rongelap atoll, 100 miles from the center of the March 1 blast, which vaporized a coral island.

They received 175 roentgens of radiation in the few hours before they were evacuated, he estimated, explaining that 400 of the radiation units received in a short time is enough to kill half the persons in an area.

"If they had not been evacuated, might the dose have been lethal," he was asked by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, chairman of the subcommittee.

"Yes, that is our conclusion," Dr. Bugher replied.

Would Have Increased.

He estimated that, if the islanders had been left on the northern tip of Rongelap for 36 hours, radiation would have leaped to 2300 roentgens, more than five times the rate for 50 per cent deaths.

A full medical report on the accidental radiation injuries at Bikini is being completed and is to be published in medical literature in a few weeks, he said.

In some of the 300 injured, he said, "white blood cell and platelet counts reached disturbingly low levels." However, no blood transfusions were used because of dangers of unmatched blood and infectious hepatitis, a liver disease.

Exposure of the whole body to 200 roentgens can cut down the number of disease-fighting white cells so far that antibiotics are required to block secondary infections, Dr. Bugher said. He explained that a reduction of platelets, another blood component, can lead to internal bleeding. Transfusion of platelets has been successful in animals but not yet in man, he said.

Effects Told.

Discussing delayed effects of radiation, Dr. Bugher said victims of the Hiroshima and Nagasaki atomic bomb explosions in 1954 show an increase of cataracts and in a rare form of blood cancer called myelogenous leukemia.

"A third possible delayed effect of radiation exposure which has been demonstrated in animals is a statistical shortening of life expectancy," he went on.

"This phenomenon does not result from any specific cause of death but apparently from a general acceleration of the aging process. Whether this factor can be recognized in a human population is as yet unknown."

Present knowledge of possible effect of radiation of inheritance indicates minor or negligent effect on germ cells, he said. However, he added, it could be concluded that even natural radiation carries "a small but definite probability" for gene mutations.

Officials Know Peril.

Dr. Bugher was asked whether civil defense authorities had been told about the fallout hazard as soon as the AEC learned about it. He replied that civil defense officers were part of the Bikini task force and "were conversant with that picture as it was developing."

The hearing came as an aftermath of the AEC's long-awaited report of last Tuesday, in which the commission said deadly radiactive fallout from the Bikini bomb covered a 7000-square-mile area.

On the committee, in addition to Kefauver, are Senators Henry Jackson (Dem.), Washington, and Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine. Kefauver was the only member present today.

REPORT RECOMMENDS LEWIS AND CLARK PARK

A final report with recommendations for a Lewis and Clark state memorial park south of Hartford, Ill., opposite the confluence of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, has been sent to Gov. Stratton and the Illinois Legislature, it was announced today.

Dr. H. W. Trovillion, retired dentist of Alton, a member of the Mississippi Highway Commission, said the Governor would add the recommendations to his legislative program, giving his support to the project.

The recommendations include a highway, with the McAdams Memorial Highway as part of it, from the proposed memorial park to Granite City, the outskirts of East St. Louis and on to Cairo, Ill., through historical Kaskaskia.

A prize of $100 and a George Washington Honor medal was awarded to Normandy High School for an editorial in its student newspaper and a second place prize of $50 in the community program category was given to the National Council for Community Improvement. Art Prewitt, editor of a company-employe publication at S. G. Adams Co., and John Marston, editor of a similar magazine at Pet Milk Co., were awarded medals.

KANSAS TRUCKS MUST PAY TO USE MISSOURI ROADS

Reciprocal Agreement Ended Because of Ton-Mile Tax Charged by Kansas.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22 (AP)—Starting April 1 Kansas trucks will have to pay Missouri registration fees in order to operate on Missouri highways.

The breakdown of the long standing reciprocity agreement between the two states was announced yesterday by Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

He notified Gov. Fred Hall of Kansas and Lt. Col. Walter Dunn of the Kansas patrol that Kansas truckers will be subject to arrest after April 1 unless they pay Missouri fees and display Missouri licenses.

Waggoner said the decision to crack down had been cleared with Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

"Frankly," Waggoner's letter said, "we are reluctant to take this action, but we feel we have no alternative. We fully realize it will work a hardship on the Kansas owner and also on our Missouri owners, but in all probability the greater hardship will be upon the Kansas owners because of the greater difference in our registration fees, ours being much higher than yours. . . ."

He explained that efforts to negotiate an agreement with Kansas officials had failed. Missouri has continued to allow Kansas trucks free use of the highways, but Missouri trucks operating in Kansas have been required to pay that state's ton-mile tax as well as the Kansas tax on gasoline carried into the state.

Kansas has been collecting an estimated $1,000,000 a year in ton-mile taxes on Missouri trucks.

Waggoner said Attorney General John M. Dalton has ruled truck reciprocity could not exist between the two states so long as Kansas continued to make its ton-mile tax apply to Missouri trucks.

The Kansas tax is in addition to truck registration fees, which are considerably lower than the Missouri fees. A truck registered for $607 in Missouri, for example, can be registered in Kansas for about $350.

BOY, 11, DRIVES AUTO FIFTY MILES, STOPPED BY POLICE

AUSTIN, Tex., Feb. 22 (AP)—"Oh, no, not my boy!" excalimed Pedro Tamayo when state highway patrolmen telephoned that his son had been intercepted at Hunter, Tex., in the father's automobile.

Hunter is 50 miles on a back road to San Antonio. "My boy is only 11 and not old enough to drive," Tamayo explained to the police. "Why, he could barely see over the dashboard."

But then Tamayo looked, and he found the boy and the car both were gone.

The boy, Robert Tamayo, wanted to attend a play at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, where a brother is in school. So he loaded into the car a shotgun and shells, two apples, a loaf of bread and a jug of water.

Robert told highway police at Hunter that he had never driven before but had known how for a long time.

"I just watch my father," he told officers, before his father arrived to take him and the car back home.

ALBANESE PLEDGES CLEAN GOVERNMENT IN CAMPAIGN

Charles E. Albanese, president of the Board of Alderman, who has filed as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the post in the election March 11, last night pledged himself to a platform of "clean, honest, common sense government."

Speaking before the Twenty-third Ward Regular Republican Club at 4704 Hampton avenue, he said: "I have backed and worked hard for the superhighway program, which includes the Third street development and its over-all picture. I have not expressed my stand on the $100,000,000 bond issue, because the screening committee which is to determine the relative merits of each individual claim for funds has not as yet turned in its report.

"There are a number of other things that are very important, such as the installation of voting machines, expansion of our hospital facilities and our civic institutions. All of these matters must be evaluated. I propose to cast my vote for them in the same tradition I have followed for the past 14 years. My record speaks for itself. I am not a 'yes man' for anyone and I take the responsibility for anything I do at any time."

TESTIFIES FOR U.S. IN TRIAL OF 3 OTHERS

Man Involved in Theft From Interstate Shipment Tells of Companions' Roles.

Sidney N. Brilliant, who has pleaded guilty and is awaiting sentence for his part in the theft of $20,000 worth of merchandise from an interstate shipment here in October 1953, gave detailed testimony against three other defendants on trial in United States district court yesterday.

Those on trial are Frank Spinelli, James Johnson and Usiri Buchanan. Johnson and Buchanan are Negroes who worked at a railroad unloading dock at Main and Gratiot streets, where the goods were stolen after they were placed in a truck.

Brilliant also implicated Charles Berns, who is awaiting trial, and Ely Laderman, who pleaded guilty and is waiting to be sentenced. William Cleveland Ivory, who was indicted as a conspirator with the three on trial, also testified for the Government yesterday.

Brilliant told of meeting Spinelli in the spring of 1953, and later seeing him and others to make plans for loading a truck with "the right kind of merchandise, so that everybody would get something out of it."

The stolen goods included typewriters, shoes, machine parts, razor blades and clothing shipped from the East. Brilliant told how it was taken to a rented garige in North St. Louis and stored, and said he drove the truck on and abandoned it. The trial was recessed today because of Washington's birthday, a legal holiday.

PAIR DIVORCED AFTER NOT TALKING FOR EIGHT YEARS

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (AP)—A husband and wife who had not talked to each other for eight years were divorced yesterday.

Judge Edward B. Casey of superior court granted the divorce to Mrs. Eleanor Micele, 44 years old, a laboratory technician, from Benjamin Micele, 46, a truck driver, on ground of cruelty.

Mrs. Micele's attorney at a previous hearing said the couple had not spoken to each other for eight years, communicating by notes pinned on a bulletin board in the kitchen of the home they shared. The husband moved out recently.

Mrs. Micele waived alimony but gets $36 weekly support for the couple's three children.

ROBLES'S GIRL IN CUSTODY FOR HER OWN PROTECTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (UP)—Police held the girl friend of dead triggerman Augusto Robles in protective custody today after she said she received and passed on $200 to the killer.

Investigators said Carmen Guzman told them Martin Yamin, a former Baltimore magistrate, gave her the money for Robles shortly after the murder of Joseph Aronowitz.

It was in Miss Guzman's apartment that Robles, object of one of New York's greatest manhunts, eluded a police trap Friday. He was killed Sunday in a fight with more than 200 policemen.

Aronowitz, found dead in a car in front of a casket company last Tuesday, would have been a witness against Yamin in Baltimore at his trial on charges of attempted robbery of a policy banker there.

Yamin, a New York resident, is being held in $25,000 bail as a material witness in the Aronowitz murder.

Eighty-five Salvation Army officers from the Midland Division, comprising Missouri and Southern Illinois, conferred today at the South Seventh Street Corps, Seventh and Carroll streets under the direction of Lt. Col. Glenn Ryan, division commander. Another session will be held tomorrow.

Today's meeting was devoted to the division's business affairs. Three conferences on spiritual emphasis will be held tomorrow, Maj. Olin Bridgman said.

Guest speakers at tomorrow's sessions will include Commissioner Claude E. Bates, territorial commander, and Senior Maj. Raymond Gabrielsen, who is in charge of Salvation Army youth activities in 11 central states. Both officers are from Chicago.

TRAIN RAMS S. KOREAN BUS, 19 KILLED, 16 INJURED

SEOUL, Feb. 22 (UP)—A passenger train rammed into a bus at a railway crossing near Pusan tonight, killing 19 Koreans and injuring 16 others.

All of the dead and injured were aboard the bus, which was hurled from the tracks by the impact and turned over four times.

BOY SHOT TO DEATH IN STORE ACCIDENT

Shotgun of Confectionery Owner Goes Off in Mishap.

Kenneth Earl Pinson, 14 years old, was shot and killed last night when a shotgun in the hands of Willard J. Holder was accidentally discharged in Holder's confectionery at 2301 Hickory street.

Kenneth, one of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. Everett F. Pinson, 2307 Hickory, and an eighth grade student at St. Henry's Catholic School, was standing at a counter talking to Holder's wife when the accident occurred. Holder had paid the boy a short time earlier for helping clean the store and Kenneth had just finished drinking a bottle of soda.

Holder told police he had planned to leave last night on a hunting trip and took two automatic shotguns, in canvas cases, from living quarters in the back of the store. He said he had removed one weapon from its case and set it, butt down, against a wall.

As he turned to remove the other gun from its case, the first weapon started to fall over and Holder said he turned quickly to catch it. As he did so the butt of the 12-gauge weapon in his hand hit a stool and discharged. The boy collapsed with a wound in the head.

Holder and his wife said they had known Kenneth four years and that he frequently earned small sums doing odd jobs around the confectionery.

The shooting was witnessed also by Dorothy Gilmore, 12, of 2305A Hickory, who walked in just as the weapon discharged.

An inquest will be held.

THAD SNOW MEMORIAL PROGRAM TOMORROW NIGHT

A memorial program for the late Thad Snow, farmer, author and philosopher of southeast Missouri, will be held at 8 p.m. tomorrow at the Freie Gemeinde Hall, 2218 St. Louis avenue. The program is sponsored by the Rationalist Society, an organization for separation of church and state, opposition to supernaturalism and promotion of the sciences.

Martin Lechner, a friend of the saga of "Swampeast Missouri," will speak on Snow's life and personality. A review of Snow's book, "From Missouri," will be given by Mrs. Viola Davies Graves, proprietor of a Clayton book store.

1000 CASES OF LIQUOR DESTROYED IN BLAZE

4000 Cases Saved in Warehouse Fire in University City.

Fire destroyed more than 1000 cases of wines, whiskies and liquors today in the warehouse of the Allstate Distributors, Inc., 6341 Olive boulevard, University City.

Two policemen in a patrol car discovered smoke and flames coming from the warehouse doors about 4:30 a.m. and turned in the alarm.

Four fire companies from University City, 20 volunteers from the city's Auxiliary Fire Brigade and companies from Clayton and Richmond Heights answered the alarms and brought the flames under control in 30 minutes.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, was confined to the warehouse, a one-story brick building 60 by 250 feet. Huge clouds of black smoke billowed skyward. Approximately 5000 cases of liquors were stored there, an employe of the company said.

Firemen were successful in confining the fire to the front quarter of the building. C. A. Noland, president of the company, said he could not estimate damage until an inventory had been made.

At the height of the fire traffic was rerouted on Olive boulevard and Sutter avenue.

SERVICE STATION MAN BEATEN SEVERELY IN $75 HOLDUP

Keith Lowery, attendant at a filling station at 6023 State street, East St. Louis, was severly beaten and robbed of $75 early today by one of two men in an automobile after they bought $1 worth of gasoline and asked to have the oil checked.

While Lowery was examining the oil, one of the men struck him on the head five times with a tire tool and removed $75 from his pocket, he told police.

Despite his injuries, Lowery was able to drive to a restaurant at 2100 State, where a customer drove him the rest of the way to St. Mary's Hospital. He was treated for four deep lacerations of the scalp.

URGES DISBARMENT OF JOHN R. OLIVER

Commissioner Reports Lawyer Guilty of Withholding Client's Funds.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22—Permanent disbarment of John R. Oliver, St. Louis attorney, on charges of wrongfully withholding funds from a client, was recommended in a special commissioner's report filed yesterday with the Missouri Supreme Court.

The proceeding to remove Oliver from the practice of law, instituted by the eighth circuit bar committee, now goes on the docket of the April session of the Supreme Court for argument by counsel and final decision.

Circuit Judge Roy B. Merriwether of Monroe City, appointed as special commissioner to hear evidence in the case, reported a finding that Oliver was guilty of all charges by the bar committee.

Oliver, a former assistant circuit attorney in St. Louis, was charged with falsely reporting to a client, in a damage suit, that he had paid to other persons large sums of money obtained from a judgment, when in fact, it was alleged, he had retained the money.

Oliver was counsel for Mrs. Annie Jones, Negro, of Memphis, Tenn., in a suit for damages in St. Louis circuit court, arising from the death of her husband, Walter Jones, in an automobile accident in St. Louis in March 1952.

This damage suit was settled for $8000. Oliver held a contract for a fee of one-third of any recovery, or $2666.66, but she received from Oliver only $1000, plus a subsequent check for $2.69, it was charged. Oliver contended he had paid out the difference in costs and in payment of sums Jones was said to owe to other persons.

The bar committee charged Mrs. Jones should have received $4850, after proper charges were paid, instead of $1002.69.

PRINCESS IS GUEST OF HONOR BUT SITS OUT EVERY DANCE

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Feb. 22 (AP)—Like Cinderella, Princess Margaret left the ball at the stroke of midnight last night. But unlike the fairy tale princess, she sat out every dance.

The sister of Queen Elizabeth II, now touring the British West Indies, was guest of honor at a charity dance at the University College of the West Indies. Dressed in a strapless gown of rose pink silk tulle and slipper satin, she sat on a dais in front of the open air dance floor, sipping drinks and smoking cigarettes as she chatted with dignatries.

Margaret was met at the university steps by Princess Alice, her great-aunt and chancellor of the university. With Princess Alice, a sister of the late King George V, was her husband, the Earl of Athlone.

Last Saturday Princess Margaret picked Jenny Wren to win on a visit to the race track Saturday and saw the filly lose when three horses fell. She learned yesterday, however, that stewards had disqualified the Jockey on the winner for dangerous riding, and that Jenny Wren was the winner after all.

Text of Eisenhower's Highway Message: 'Network Is Inadequate For Nation's Growing Needs'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (UP)

The text of President Eisenhower's special message to Congress today on highways:

OUR UNITY as a nation is sustained by free communication of thought and by easy transportation of people and goods. The ceaseless flow of information throughout the Republic is matched by individual and commercial movement over a vast system of inter-connected highways criss-crossing the country and joining at our national borders with friendly neighbors to the north and south.

Together, the uniting forces of our communication and transportation systems are dynamic elements in the very name we bear—United States. Without them, we would be a mere alliance of many separate parts.

The nation's highway system is a gigantic enterprise, one of our largest items of capital investment. Generations have gone into its building. Three million, three hundred and sixty-six thousand miles of road, traveled by 58,000,000 motor vehicles, comprise it. The replacement cost of its drainage and bridge and tunnel works is incalculable. One in every seven Americans gains his livelihood and supports his family out of it. But, in large part, the network is inadequate for the nation's growing needs.

Governors' Study.

In recognition of this, the governors in July of last year at my request began a study of both the problem and methods by which the Federal Government might assist the states in its solution. I appointed in September the President's Advisory Committee on a national highway program, headed by Lucius D. Clay, to work with the governors and to propose a plan of action for submission to the Congress. At the same time, a committee representing departments and agencies of the National Government was organized to conduct studies co-ordinated with the other two groups.

All three were confronted with inescapable evidence that action, comprehensive and quick and forward-looking, is needed.

First: Each year, more than 36,000 people are killed and more than a million injured on the highways. To the home where the tragic aftermath of an accident on an unsafe road is a gap in the family circle, the monetary worth of preventing that death cannot be reckoned. But reliable estimates place the measurable economic cost of the highway accident toll to the nation at more than $4,300,000,000 a year.

Second: The physical condition of the present road net increases the cost of vehicle operation, according to many estimates, by as much as one cent per mile of vehicle travel. At the present rate of travel, this totals more than five billion dollars a year. The cost is not borne by the individual vehicle operator alone. It pyramids into higher expense of doing the nation's business. Increased highway transportation costs, passed on through each step in the distribution of goods, are paid ultimately by the individual consumer.

Third: In case of an atomic attack on our key cities, the road net must permit quick evacuation of target areas, mobilization of defense forces and maintenance of every essential economic function. But the present system in critical areas would be the breeder of a deadly congestion within hours of an attack.

Fourth: Our gross national product, about 357 billion dollars in 1954, is estimated to reach over 500 billion in 1965 when our population will exceed 180,000,000 and, according to other estimates, will travel in 81 million vehicles 814 billion vehicle miles that year. Unless the present rate of highway improvement and development is increased, existing traffic jams only faintly foreshadow those of 10 years hence.

To correct these deficiencies is an obligation of Government at every level. The highway system is a public enterprise. As the owner and operator, the various levels of Government have a responsibility for management that promotes the economy of the nation and properly serves the individual user. In the case of the Federal Government, moreover, expenditures on a highway program are a return to the highway user of the taxes which he pays in connection with his use of the highways.

Congress has recognized the national interest in the principal roads by authorizing two federal-aid systems, selected co-operatively by the states, local units and the bureau of public roads.

The federal-aid primary system as of July 1, 1954, consisted of 234,407 miles, connecting all the principal cities, county seats, ports, manufacturing areas and other traffic generating centers.

In 1944 the Congress approved the federal-aid secondary system, which on July 1, 1954, totaled 482,972 miles, referred to as farm-to-market roads—important feeders linking farms, factories, distribution outlets and smaller communities with the primary system.

Because some sections of the primary system, from the viewpoint of national interest are more important than others, the Congress in 1944 authorized the selection of a special network, not to exceed 40,000 miles in length, which would connect by routes, as direct as practicable, the principal metropolitan areas, cities and industrial centers, serve the national defense, and connect with routes of continental importance in the dominion of Canada and the Republic of Mexico.

Scope of National System.

This national system of interstate highways, although it embraces only 1.2 per cent of the total road mileage, joins 42 state capital cities and 90 per cent of all cities over 50,000 population. It carries more than a seventh of all traffic, a fifth of the rural traffic, serves 65 per cent of the urban and 45 per cent of the rural population. Approximately 37,600 miles have been designated to date. This system and its mileage are presently included within the federal-aid primary system.

In addition of these systems, the Federal Government has the principal, and in many cases the sole, responsibility for roads that cross or provide access to federally owned land—more than one-fifth the nation's area.

Of all these, the interstate system must be given top priority in construction planning. But at the current rate of development, the interstate network would not reach even a reasonable level of extent and efficiency in half a century. State highway departments cannot effectively meet the need. Adequate right-of-way to assure control of access; grade separation structures; relocation and realignment of present highways; all these, done on the necessary scale within an integrated system, exceed their collective capacity.

If we have a congested and unsafe and inadequate system, how then can we improve it so that 10 years from now it will be fitted to the nation's requirements?

A realistic answer must be based on a study of all phases of highway financing, including a study of the costs of completing the several systems of highway, made by the Bureau of Public Roads in co-operation with the state highway departments and local units of Government. This study, made at the direction of the Eighty-third Congress in the 1954 federal-aid highway act, is the most comprehensive of its kind ever undertaken.

Its estimates of need show that a 10-year construction program to modernize all our roads and streets will require expenditure of 101 billion dollars by all levels of government.

The preliminary 10-year totals of needs by road systems are:

	(billions)
Interstate (urban $11, rural $12 billion)	$23
Federal-aid primary (urban $10, rural $20 billion)	30
Federal-aid secondary (entirely rural)	15
Sub-total of federal-aid systems (urban $21, rural $47 billion)	68
Other roads and streets (urban $16, rural $17 billion)	33
Total of needs (urban $37, rural $64 billion)	$101

The governors' conference and the President's Advisory Committee are agreed that the federal share of the needed construction program should be about 30 per cent of the total, leaving to state and local units responsibility to finance the remainder.

The obvious responsibility to be accepted by the Federal Government, in addition to the existing federal interest in our 3,366,000-mile network of highways, is the development of the interstate system with its most essential urban arterial connections.

In its report, the advisory committee recommends:

1. That the Federal Government assume principal responsibility for the cost of a modern interstate network to be completed by 1964 to include the most essential urban arterial connections; at an annual average cost of 2.5 billion dollars for the 10 year period.

2. That federal contributions to primary and secondary road systems, now at the rate authorized by the 1954 act of approximately $525,000,000 annually, be continued.

3. That federal funds for that portion of the federal aid systems in urban areas not on the interstate system, now approximately $75,000,000 annually, be continued.

4. That federal funds for forest highways be continued at the present $22,500,000 per year rate.

Under these proposals, the total federal expenditures through the 10-year period would be:

	(Billions)
Interstate System	$25.000
Federal-aid Primary and Secondary	5.250
Federal-Aid Urban	.750
Forest Highways	.225
	$31.225

India's 'Intelligentsia' Spouts Red Line in Everyday Talk

Writer of the following article is a young Negro reporter on the Minneapolis Tribune who spent nearly four months in India, lecturing under the auspices of the United States Department of State.

ALLAHABAD, India.

IT would be difficult for me to tell the many ways in which Communist propaganda has become part of the normal line of conversation in India among the so-called intelligentsia. If the word capitalism meant the same thing in America that it means in India we would have to bar it from the mails.

Even men high in government talk of imperialism as if it were a monopoly of the West. People in equally high places talk of race as if it were taken for granted that all colored men can be trusted while all whites must be distrusted. Thousands talk as if they believe that all America is under the spell of Joe McCarthy and the Fascists.

But all the Communist influence, Red lies and attempts to create chaos were not so worrisome as the "let's be brave" line. The current "criticize America" fad is based on that line.

The 'criticize America" fad is the product of what seems to me to be a national delusion of heroism. It seems to have affected the educated all over India, from Nehru down to the college student.

"We're busy. We aren't worried about Communism. We can take care of them any time," the Prime Minister said to me during our meeting.

Automatically Adopted.

Typical of the left-wing idealists who sing the lullaby of bravery is O. P. Bhatnagar, professor of history at Allhabad University.

In my last speech in India, I spoke and answered questions at length about my concept of American foreign policy. I told them how millions of Americans were reluctant to give up their dreams of a long era of peace after World War II. But I said that events in Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, Austria, East Germany, Romania, Latvia, Lithuania, Indochina, Korea and even in India's neighboring state, Tibet, had forced Americans to admit that world Communism was on the march.

Bhatnagar got up and advised me in so many words that Indians didn't need America or any Western power to worry about her freedoms and liberties, and that America had no right, in his opinion, to worry about the freedoms and liberties of anybody anywhere in Asia.

"America may be afraid," he said, "but we are not afraid. I want to tell Mr. Rowan that these young men here, and even us old men, will take up arms and fight to the death against any aggressor, whether it be the United States or Russia."

Students Applaud.

The students grinned and applauded and looked towards me.

"I want to leave you with just these deep-felt remarks," I said. "Idealistic talk is wonderful. I've had my share of it. College students cut their teeth on it. Some professors go through life living on it. But wherever the problems of mankind have been solved, people have had to mix that idealism with some hard work — applied to problems as they exist today.

Army Teaching Troops to Live, Fight in Arctic, Brutal Proving Ground for Men and Machines

Temperature Ranges From 100 Above to 60 Below Zero—Extreme Cold Affects Equipment and Explosives and Reduces Soldiers' Combat Efficiency.

By ELTON C. FAY

Associated Press Military Reporter.

(FIRST OF A SERIES.)

BIG DELTA, Alaska, Feb. 22 (AP).

ON some tomorrow the United States may have to fight a war in a vast and empty land of blood-congealing cold and paralyzing winds. The enemy would probably be Russia, and the theater of war the Territory of Alaska, which was bought from Russia 88 years ago in a transaction widely criticized at the time as a folly.

Russians have occupied the Arctic and sub-Arctic much longer than Americans. They know how to live—and fight—near the top of the world.

The United States is now engaged in a grim program to equip its military men with knowledge and machines that will enable them to live and fight as well; or perhaps better.

It's a tremendously costly undertaking. Modernizing Alaskan defenses alone will cost at least $600,000,000 by estimate of the Army Corps of Engineers. That does not include the operational costs or any part of the cost of a chain of radar stations being built across Alaska and Canada.

The undertaking is a brutal proving ground for both men and machines. Both are being tested at this big base in the flat valley of the Tanana river, where the winter can bring 60 below zero cold and summer turns the land into water-soaked muskeg.

Moving about or fighting in the sub-Arctic in summer is bad. There are clouds of insects. The muskeg is a vast sponge, on a foundation of permanently frozen ground, called permafrost. Troops sink to their waists. Vehicles bog down hopelessly. Where the ground is higher, there is brush through which paths must be forced. It gets hot. Temperatures as high as 100 degrees have been recorded at Fort Yukon, north of here.

Worse in Winter.

But it is the winter that saps strength, immobilizes and kills.

Experts estimate that for each degree of temperature below zero the combat efficiency of a soldier decreases 2 per cent. Thus, there is a point where the effort of the soldier must be devoted entirely to keeping alive. He has nothing left for fighting.

The Army is attempting, by training and by new equipment, to modify this impact of cold on the soldier's efficiency.

The primary lesson taught the newly arrived student at the Arctic indoctrination school is that man can live in the worst weather the frigid zone can produce—if he has the right clothing, shelter, food and technique.

No man ever is allowed to venture out alone. But in small groups students travel out from the warm barracks and classrooms of Big Delta by ski and snowshoes onto the barrens and into the woods.

They learn that loose-fitting layers of clothes, with air spaces between layers and within the cloth itself, keep in body warmth. The same goes for the 10-man tents used in the field; the outside layer is water-repellent, with an inside lining, loosely attached to the outside, to form insulation.

They learn, too, that cold can be unbearable, even with the warmest clothing, when it is accompanied by wind. At 60 below zero with a 5 m.p.h. wind, the skin freezes in one minute. But at only 25 below zero with a 25 m.p.h. wind, exposed flesh freezes in the same time. At 18 below zero with 35 m.p.h. wind, travel on foot is impossible.

Variance in Clothing.

Clothing good for one type of cold may not be satisfactory for another. The thermos type rubber boot developed in Korea keeps feet warm down to 30 below, with only thin cotton or silk socks. But in dry cold more than 30 below the canvas mukluk, with multilayers of woolen socks, is used because it does not collect condensed frost.

Vehicles become problems in the extreme cold. Special lubricants must be used. Steel is made brittle by subzero temperature. Transmissions shatter. Currently, the Army has in use only two types of over-snow vehicles, the weasel and the otter. Both are track-laying, like tanks, and both travel either on land or water. The difference is essentially in size.

Some explosives become uncertain in bitter cold. Dynamite and other nitroglycerin explosives freeze at about 20 below, becoming temperamental and dangerous to handle.

Firing tables for artillery must be changed in extreme cold to compensate for a difference in propellent charge effects. Mines must be placed on blocks of ice or other hard material. Otherwise they are pressed down into soft snow without exploding.

Problem of Ice Fog.

Firing of mortars and artillery in subzero cold produces another problem — ice fog. The fog, created by condensation of the cold air by the hot blasts of guns, shrouds gun positions in mist, hampering sighting of positions.

Even the usually simple process of finding your way becomes a major undertaking in

COMMONS OK'S BRITISH ROLE IN EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)

THE House of Commons approved last night a treaty making Britain an associate of the European Coal and Steel Community.

Under the pact, approved without a recorded vote, Britain will consult with the organization of production and distribution of coal and steel. The community is commonly called the Schuman plan.

Speaking for Prime Minister Churchill's government, Housing Minister Duncan Sandys told Commons Britain was not committed under the treaty to "reduce our steel tariff or otherwise change our commercial policy."

The six full members of the community have abolished trade barriers for coal and steel products. They are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Springfield's Scopes Case

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The firing of a Springfield junior high school science teacher for alleged atheism seems to be a throwback to the infamous Scopes trial of 1925, in which another science teacher was indicted for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution in his classes.

The charge of "indoctrinating" students after school hours would no doubt be a valid one, if proved. However, I believe that broader and more important questions have come up in this case.

For example, must a teacher profess a belief in God in order to qualify for a position? Does a failure to believe in God imply that a person is not a loyal American citizen? These questions are implied in the firing, and I believe they should be answered if the case is brought to court.

What disturbs me most is the statement by Superintendent Willard J. Graff. If I am not mistaken, his statement is a violation of the constitutional guarantee of freedom of religion and is an attempt to control the thought of members of the teaching profession.

A very important principle of American democracy is at stake here and I hope that something will be done to preserve that principle.

WILLIAM CARRIE.
Lawrence, Kan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Superintendent Willard Graff, in dismissing Leslie Hill from the Springfield (Mo.) school system for saying he did not believe in God, said, "There is no place in the public school system for an agnostic or an atheist."

Presumably there is ample room for liars and hypocrites, for Mr. Hill could have kept his job by answering a question put to him (not in class) with a lie.

Since true belief cannot be turned on and off like a faucet, I am inclined to believe that the young people in Mr. Hill's vicinity cannot be dissuaded from a true belief in God so easily.

Stand for 50 Years

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Ever since it was founded more than 50 years ago, the Missouri Association for Social Welfare has stood for equality of educational opportunity for all Missourians.

The association's studies show that, on the whole, under segregation the public education provided for Negroes in Missouri, including that of college and university level, has been inferior to that provided for whites.

One study shows that under the "separate but equal" fallacy it would cost much more—at least $30,000,000 more during the first six years—to bring the state's Negro elementary and secondary schools up to approximate equality with the white schools than it would cost to integrate those schools. (That this is a conservative estimate is attested by the fact that it includes no costs for Kansas City, since the study covered St. Louis and out-state Missouri exclusive of Kansas City.)

More important than these considerations is, however, the fact that the Supreme Court has unanimously ruled that racial segregation in public education is unconstitutional.

For these reasons the Missouri Association for Social Welfare has indorsed the principle of House Bill 120, which would remove from the books those state laws that provide for setting up the machinery of a school system. The association thanks the Post-Dispatch for its recent editorial, "No Place for a Dead Letter," in support of this bill, which is now before the House.

MRS. HUGH P. WILLIAMSON,
President, Missouri Association for Social Welfare.

Tonsorial Monopoly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

If many of our large corporations are considered monopolistic, what of the barber shops in St. Louis?

Certainly the constant upward surge of tonsorial rates represents a monopoly.

Or should we all have lots of wavey hair like Liberace?

Rats Eat Garbage

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have been on the city's list of contractors who are qualified to do rat stoppage work.

During the many years that I have engaged in such business I have time after time found buildings that were rat-proofed occupied by tenants who permitted garbage and rubbish to accumulate on the premises.

Rats will breed in any part of our city regardless of the age of the building if garbage and rubbish is not properly handled. I was told not long ago that one of our housing projects is infested with mice and that the tenants find it necessary to add additional strips on the bottom of their doors to keep them from running into the rooms.

In order to attack the rat problem properly the rat control division should be increased by 100 men.

My only purpose of writing this letter is to state in my opinion all property owners are not fully guilty of breeding rats, as many tenants fail to keep the premises clean.

J. J. SCHULTZ.

Yet Brownell Is Silent

There ought to be some very red faces in Washington as the professional witnesses and paid liars tell new stories from day to day. And the red ought to be the red that signifies official embarrassment, not the red customarily associated with political radicalism.

This holds for Government lawyers and investigators who have sponsored Harvey Matusow, self described ex-Communist, in some 25 cases in the past. It holds also for all who have accepted the testimony of certain witnesses against Edward O. Lamb in the Erie (Pa.) television license renewal application before the Federal Communications Commission.

Consider first the latest testimony by Harvey Matusow. Appearing before the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, this hired witness who has appeared in some of the biggest cases, now says that Elizabeth Bentley, key government witness in investigations and trials, is not to be trusted. Matusow says that he believes she "gave false testimony" and that he bases this belief, not on hearsay, but on conversations he himself has had with her.

This is only the start of the new stories by Matusow. He says that he unjustly attacked Senators Mansfield of Montana and Jackson of Washington for pay. Under oath he now says he received $600 to $700 for going into Montana and calling Senator Mansfield "a tool of the Communists." He says he was paid $1200 to $1400 for attacking Senator Jackson in his home state of Washington as "pro-Communist."

* * * *

Equally revealing but on the other side of the coin is what the record shows about Matusow's speeches in Wisconsin. There he went on a speaking tour in behalf of Senator McCarthy in 1952. Apparently the rates are better for attacking a Senator than for defending one since records show he received only $350 for plugging the Wisconsin Republican in the latter's home state.

Where does the money come from for such ventures? Matusow does not remember in all cases but he does recall about Montana. There he says he was paid off by one "J. H. Morrow" who was associated with "a Republican-front organization" called the "Montana Citizens for America Association."

At the very time Matusow was telling all this to the subcommittee headed by Senator Eastland of Mississippi, a second witness for the Government was saying he lied in the Edward Lamb television license case. First it was Mrs. Marie Natvig of Miami Beach who said she was "coerced" by FCC personnel. Now it is Lowell Watson of Olathe, Kan., who says he was "coached" by FCC employes. Watson says that as long as four months ago he wanted to retract his testimony that he had seen TV station owner Lamb "donate to Communist causes."

Under oath Watson said he realized he might now be tried for perjury and also that he might lose his "employment" as a Department of Justice "consultant on the Communist party," a post he has held for 18 months.

How can Attorney General Brownell keep still in the face of such statements as these?

How can he continue to pretend that all still is well with the faceless informer?

How can he resist what ought to be the moral compulsion to make a frank, honest statement to the American people that this entire dirty business of hiring professional witnesses has been stopped?

How can he fail to say that he will conduct a searching investigation and that all liars will be prosecuted including any Government employes who may have coached witnesses to tell falsehoods to make cases?

Doris Fleeson, Marquis Childs, Thomas L. Stokes, the Alsops—many Washington writers have described this despicable racket. Yet, as Miss Fleeson said in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, "The Justice Department has not moved against any of its turncoat witnesses so far."

Why not? Whose side is Attorney General Herbert Brownell on anyway? Is he on the side of law and order and decency? Or is he not?

Paging a St. Louis Senator

A bill that could be of immense value to St. Louis has been introduced in the Missouri House by Representative A. Clifford Jones, Clayton Republican. Drawn along lines suggested by Mayor Tucker, the measure would clear away any question as to the city's right to home rule over its "county" layer of government.

Specifically the Jones bill would permit St. Louis, either through a new Charter or by amending the present instrument, to consolidate the 14 independent county offices with the municipal layer of St. Louis government. Many lawyers hold that enabling legislation of this type is unnecessary. But the slight chance that it might be means that St. Louis ought to possess a legislative permit to do what is so clearly in the public interest.

If an important St. Louis Democrat like Michael Kinney would sponsor this proposal in the State Senate, so much the better. This is something St. Louis needs.

A Warm Wind From Chicago

Whatever the outcome of Chicago's mayoral primary, March promises to be a politically warm month for that metropolis—very warm, indeed.

The great issue in the primaries, on Washington's birthday, is whether the Democratic organization can dump Mayor Martin Kennelly. He came into office eight years ago after the organization decided that, for its own good, it had better dump Mayor Edward Kelly.

Political unrest and a spirit of reform filled the Chicago air in those hopeful postwar days. Mayor Kennelly got the nomination on a platter. He had a rare opportunity to write his own ticket, to galvanize the lazy big city, to give it the strong leadership it sought in tackling slums, traffic congestion, urban decay and other metropolitan problems. But Mr. Kennelly proved to be no reformer at heart. As the hopes he had raised were disappointed one by one, his popularity went down until this year the Democratic machine decided as, it had decided 8 years ago, that it needed a stronger candidate.

Given the traditional strength of machines in primaries, all the odds would seem to favor the organization candidate, Richard Daley, who has the support of former Gov. Stevenson and Senator Douglas. He is a better than average organization nominee, having served ably in Gov. Stevenson's administration as well as doing yeoman service in various local posts. Yet Mayor Kennelly with the backing of The Chicago Tribune has made a spirited fight of it.

Whoever wins the Democratic nomination, the real surprise is on the Republican side. For once, the G.O.P. has a strong candidate—36-year-old Robert E. Merriam, son of a political scientist, who went into the City Council as alderman the year Kennelly was elected mayor. Merriam happens to be a Stevenson Democrat, or was until he accepted the Republican nomination for mayor. He has the reforming zeal, the crusading heritage, the independent courage which many Chicagoans once hoped to find in Mr. Kennelly. Whether his opponent is Mr. Daley or the Mayor, he promises to make March a very warm month indeed in Chicago. We can almost feel the heat from here.

Absolutely Necessary

The St. Louis public schools are rapidly approaching their third financial crisis in the last four years. On March 11—less than three weeks from now—the people will vote on a one-year extension of the current $1.15 school tax rate.

Failure of this proposal to receive a simple majority at the polls would have mighty serious consequences. Exactly how serious can be seen from a quick glance at the facts:

The $1.15 rate is 26 cents in excess of the 89-cent maximum that the School Board under the Missouri Constitution is permitted to levy without a vote of the people. If the people failed to extend the higher rate, it would fall automatically to the 89-cent level.

On the basis that each penny of tax rate produces some $160,000 in cash, this would cost the schools about $4,160,000, a figure which represents about 18 per cent of anticipated revenue.

Unless the School Board took immediate steps to trim expenditures in line with this serious loss of revenue, the system could be approaching bankruptcy a year from this coming spring.

Obviously the Board could not permit this to happen. Instead it would have to curtail services wherever it could. How seriously services would be slashed would depend in large measure on how large a salary cut the teachers and other school employes would hold still for.

Superintendent Hickey has talked in terms of killing off such programs as the nationally famous reading clinics, health and hygiene services, the junior college operated in conjunction with Harris Teachers' College, the audio-visual department, the summer playground sessions, and so on. This would be tragic.

In all probability, every educational program not legally required by the state would have to go. Salaries also would have to be slashed. The school system would be in decay.

Clearly nothing of the kind is going to happen—provided only that parents and other friends of the schools turn out and vote. The current tax rate was set two years ago by a margin of more than 2 to 1. It ought to be extended for another year by a similar overwhelming vote.

What Jonathan Bourne Achieved

A shipwreck off the coast of Formosa three quarters of century ago helped give the United States the parcel post system and there is a special reason for telling the story just now.

Jonathan Bourne Jr., of New Bedford, Mass., skipped Harvard College and ran away to sea on one of his father's whaling ships. He was shipwrecked, rescued and taken to Portland, Ore. There he became a lawyer and a business man and entered Republican party politics. After serving in the Legislature at Salem, he was elected a United States Senator in 1906. In Washington, he served one term, 1907-13. In that time he advocated, sponsored and pushed through the legislation that gave the country the parcel post system.

Die-hard opponents denounced it as Socialism, but the bill became law and now millions use the parcel post every day who never heard of Jonathan Bourne Jr. For his centenary—he was born Feb. 23, 1855—the country owes him and Oregon a salute for their national benefaction.

The Score on Tariffs

With the lone exception of Representative Dewey Short of Galena, Missouri cast a solid vote in favor of the Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act extension.

Taken in conjunction with the favorable vote of Representatives Melvin Price of East St. Louis and Peter Mack of Carlinville, Ill., that made a rather impressive score for liberal tariff policy from this neck of the woods. From Missouri and southern Illinois only two Congressmen—Short and Representative Kenneth J. Gray, West Frankfort, Ill., Democrat—voted against reciprocal trade on final passage.

It should be recorded, however, that two Republicans and two Democrats from this area voted on the protectionist side on an earlier and perhaps more crucial test.

This test came on the amendment offered by Representative Daniel A. Reed, leader of the protectionist forces. He wanted to provide that the President in negotiating trade agreements would be compelled to follow the recommendations of the Tariff Commission except when he could claim that national security was involved.

The Reed amendment would have imposed a severe limitation upon Executive freedom to offer tariff concessions in exchange for concessions granted American exports. Its adoption would have been a severe defeat for President Eisnehower and the philosophy of expanded world trade through reciprocal agreements.

Those who opposed President Eisenhower and supported Representative Reed on this amendment were:

REPUBLICANS

Dewey Short, Galena, Mo.
Thomas B. Curtis, Webster Groves, Mo.

DEMOCRATS

Rep. A. S. J. Carnahan, Ellsinore, Mo.
Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, West Frankfort, Ill.

Collectors' Items

What is so highly individualistic, so personal and painstaking, as the collecting of razor blades? Nothing. Nothing whatever, we have the word for it of John FitzGibbon, professor of English at the British Institute in Madrid, and his friend, Pablo Serra, both of them razor-blade collectors. It is, therefore, perfectly suited to the Spanish character, says Senor FitzGibbon.

Stamp-collecting? Pouf. Anyone can do it. It only takes money. Razor-blade collecting, says Prof. FitzGibbon, stropping his subject to a fine edge, takes time and effort. He has himself taken the time and effort to collect 1200 kinds of Spanish razor blades. He says Germany and Czechoslovakia probably manufacture more kinds of razor blades than any other countries in Europe, Russia—on account of nationalization of its industry—the fewest kinds (Senor FitzG. has 20 kinds of Russian blades). His favorite razor blades are from Japan, one of them with three cutting edges and the other with four.

Senors FitzGibbon and Serra are the leading and, so far as we know, the only collectors of razor blades. Both use electric razors, and we understand the field for electric razor collecting is wide open. The line will form at the nearest place for plugging in.

The President for Peace

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Record shows that Eisenhower, the former soldier, has been a force for peace time after time; his 'No' blocked a strike on the Chinese mainland urged by the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of State; this attitude has had world-wide effects.

An Editorial in The Christian Science Monitor

In the long perspective of history we believe recent spectacular changes in the Kremlin will rate well below unspectacular developments in the White House in recent months.

No tough talk by Mr. Molotov is likely to have half the effect gained by Mr. Eisenhower's quiet proofs of peaceful purpose.

Americans close to current events may not fully grasp the power of the peace offensive which the soldier in the White House has been carrying on. But hardly a week goes by without some unfoldment of it—in action even more than in words. In many cases the action has technically been a refusal to react, a firm restraint, but it has had positive effects.

President Eisenhower

For on half a dozen occasions in the last few months rash action or belligerent talk could have meant a long step toward war. Notable was the occasion last fall when the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the Secretary of State urged that American forces strike the Chinese mainland in retaliation against attacks on offshore islands held by the Nationalists. The President said "No."

Then there was the difficult time when Peiping provocatively announced that it had imprisoned American soldiers as spies. Headlines screamed of hate and popular anger rose high.

The White House calmly announced that American rights would be maintained, and spurred the United Nations to a declaration condemning the action—plus a mission to explore practical procedures to effect a release.

There was the occasion when a Soviet plane shot down an American plane off the Habomai islands just north of Japan.

Inaccurate and inflammatory reports were quietly corrected by the President. Without condoning the attack he conceded that the American plane had been off course near Soviet-held territory.

Then came the move for a cease-fire and negotiations with the United States' allies to push such a proposal in the United Nations.

This was in effect a reversal of the policy of supporting Chiang Kai-shek's drive to recapture the mainland. It conceded Peiping's control—a tacit recognition of Mao Tse-tung's regime. It was followed by pressures on Chiang to evacuate the Tachens.

This combination of moves—although covered by a stiff declaration of intent to defend Formosa—constituted a redeployment of policy, a withdrawal of American power from an offensive to a defensive posture in the Formosa strait.

Manifestly, too, the Commander in Chief gave strict orders against any reckless adventures during the Tachens evacuation. When an American plane was shot down American officers properly described the Red firing as defensive and did not retaliate.

Repeated rejection of belligerent projects, coupled with reiterated presidential insistence that hydrogen bomb warfare leaves "no alternative to peace," has had profound effects.

Mr. Eisenhower has not only commended to fellow citizens the "courage to be patient"; he has displayed it when the easy, the cheer-evoking response would have been hateful word or hasty action.

In reshaping policy the President has defied powerful political groups.

Some critics may argue that opponents would have avoided hostilities anyway. That is open to debate. But there should be no debate about the fact that the President's peace offensive has decisively undercut the Red cry of "warmonger."

Witness Mr. Nehru's latest statement opposing Peiping's threats to seize Formosa. Witness the vastly improved views of American aims among European allies.

Around the world the President's demonstrated devotion to peace can have very tangible benefits. In Paris and in Bonn, for instance, confidence in America's firm nonbelligerence can aid the cementing of Western European Union.

Not only is Mr. Eisenhower's peace leadership good diplomacy; it is a faithful representation of the deepest desires, the silent prayers, both of the people for whom he speaks officially and of the millions everywhere who seek a spokesman.

Contrast With California

From the Willows (Calif.) Daily Journal

L. W. Wigmore in the Orland Register expressed concern over the huge campaign expenditures of candidates for high office in California. The danger, Mr. Wigmore pointed out, lies in the fact that much of this money is contributed to favored candidates by interests with special axes to grind. And where big money is given, big favors are expected, often at the public's expense.

In the light of Mr. Wigmore's comments, a recent talk before the San Francisco Commonwealth Club is of considerable interest. It was given by Donald Stokes, San Francisco director of the British Information Services.

Great Britain, he said, enforces rigid limits on the amount of money which can be spent on elections.

No candidate for Parliament, for instance, can spend more than $2400 on his entire campaign. This is based on $1200 plus two cents allowance for each registered voter.

Every candidate must give a full accounting of his entire expenditures under penalty of the perjury laws. Furthermore, the law makes it impossible for friends of supporters to spend additional money on behalf of a candidate.

The British people, Mr. Stokes said, believe huge campaign expenditures are directly responsible for graft, corruption, pressure groups and lobbies.

"It is felt that the key to healthy democracy is an extra close watch on all election spending, direct and indirect."

For evidence to bear out these conclusions one has, unfortunately, only to look at California.

A law similar to Britain's would not only reduce considerably the influence business, labor or other interests could exert on legislators by heavy campaign contributions but it would also tend to restore honest-to-goodness campaigning in political races.

Huge war chests induce candidates to place their campaigns in the hands of public relations firms which employ hand-outs, promotional stunts and high-pressure advertising as a substitute for discussion and debate.

Unlimited campaign contributions have undermined good government and democratic government in California. An effective regulatory law, such as that in Great Britain, would do much to return the state's government to the people where it belongs.

Many Sided Philosopher

NEW LETTERS OF DAVID HUME, edited by Raymond Klibansky and Ernest Mossner. (Oxford University Press, plus 253 pgs., $4.80.)

It is 23 years since J.Y.T. Greig's comprehensive and scholarly edition of Hume's correspondence was published, complete with Hume's account of "My Own Life" and fully equipped with a biographical and textual commentary. At the time it appeared, it was considered definitive; but soon thereafter Professors Klibansky and Mossner (now of McGill University and the University of Texas, respectively) turned up enough further letters to justify a systematic search in European and American libraries that made a new volume desirable. The thoroughness of their search is reflected in their "Acknowledgements," which are another imposing record of the wide-ranging persistence of scholars intent on truth and completeness.

Hume

The editors are sure that there are even more bits and pieces of Hume correspondence still untraced — hidden, perhaps, in private collections and family archives, especially in Scotland. As would any other professorial pathfinders in their position, Professors Klibansky and Mossner can only hope that gradually these remaining letters will emerge to take their place in the truly definitive Hume correspondence. As for the present volume, it contains 127 letters, 98 of which are not in Greig's edition, 27 are there only in part, and two are reprinted for sound editorial reasons.

The new material is not the sort out of which best-selling anthologies of "The World's Great Letters" are made, but the stature of Hume as historian and philosopher, diplomat and statesman, insures far more than merely pallid and cloistered interest in any record that makes him more vividly alive for the spectator at Time's pageant. These new letters, as the editors point out, show Hume applying philosophy, not philosophizing. He walks the small stage of this volume as a many-sided character, but in no aspect more clearly than in his adherence to his own precept, "Be a philosopher; but, amidst all your philosophy, be still a man."

What the Doctor Ordered

If it is an Elizabeth Seifert story there is likely to be a doctor in it because she dotes on doctors and has written about them in most of her many novels. This time it is a doctor in the family, with much personal and professional fineness and his share of the personal faults that, as in most of Mrs. Seifert's doctors, are aggravated by professional exactions.

Dr. Alan Thornton was a credit to the proud and important Thornton family and served with distinction as head of the hospital that his father built for him in the small town of Valhalla in the Missouri Ozarks. He had married Linda Merritt, which was all right because the Merritts, at least in their own estimation, were as good as the Thorntons. They had been married 10 years and there had been no babies. The Thorntons didn't like that because they wanted the Thornton name to be carried on. Especially "Ma'am" Thornton, the doctor's mother, who ruled the Thornton tribe. That gave her a chance to make trouble and she made it with her customary competence.

The doctor was faithful and devoted in his way, which was the way of a doctor, and Linda was content to have it that way, but it gave "Ma'am" an opening to try to pry them apart and give Alan another chance to beget. She almost succeeded but there came a time when the doctor in the family took over the case and treated it himself, as a good doctor should.

His New Tag Fits Eisenhower Better

WASHINGTON.

TWO EVENTS WITH PROXIMITY in time, though not in distance, dramatized what is becoming more clear here daily. One was President Eisenhower's public abandonment of the "progressive moderate" tag for his Administration's domestic objectives and substitution for it of "dynamic conservatism." That occurred at the meeting of the Republication National Committee.

The other event the same day was the formal registry as a Democrat in Oregon of Senator Wayne Morse, once a Republican, later an Independent, and one of the first Senators to declare for Gen. Eisenhower for the Republican presidential nomination. In a speech at Portland announcing his change of party, the controversial Senator said "in the last two years there has been repeated evidence that reactionary forces have taken over the Eisenhower Administration and the Republican party leadership on most domestic issues, and particularly in the field of natural resources."

Morse

Neither man was aware of what the other was doing and saying the same day, one here, the other at the far corner of the country in Oregon. But there is certainly a relationship of cause and effect.

Private Groups Favored.

Any objective and experienced observer here would agree that the President's confession of conservatism was accurate, if overdue. Senator Morse undoubtedly would agree that the manner, at least, in which the change to conservatism has been accomplished has been "dynamic," for it has been done by men of energy and determination who knew what they were about.

In the field of natural resources, which Senator Morse singled out specifically, the intention to relax federal regulation and protection and favor powerful private interests became clear at the very outset of the Administration.

It has proceeded according to plan, right down to the ultimate in the attack on TVA through the Dixon-Yates contract.

But, while all of this was going on quietly and through devious behind-the-scenes maneuvers which have been hard for the public to follow, a glittering facade has been erected out front to divert the public with signs about "social welfare."

School Plan Spurned.

That inspired the gag that the President and his Administration were "New Dealish," a gag peddled around by some Democrats who were always skeptical of social welfare and by anti-Eisenhower Republicans. But anybody who knows what goes on here never took it for anything but a gag.

In the brief life earlier this year of "progressive moderation," the President sent to Congress again his bob-tailed health insurance plan which could hardly be called an answer to the problem involved.

Now, even while he is announcing the change to "dynamic conservatism," members of his own party on the Senate Labor Committee are beating a hasty retreat from his elaborate scheme to build schools by floating billions of dollars of bonds at rates attractive and profitable to investment bankers.

They call this scheme inadequate and ineffectual and say that it must have some cash money on its bare bones if it is to help meet the school emergency.

Political Mumbo-Jumbo.

The fire poured on the Administration program by educators could only be described as "withering."

So the "social welfare" gesture falls short. In his speech at Portland Senator Morse paraphrased a frequent statement by President Eisenhower about his philosophy by saying "there are Republican leaders who try to fool the voters with the political slogan that they are liberal in human relations but conservative in economic policies."

That he called "political mumbo-jumbo."

The real powers in the Administration are recognized in two business men and industrialists. Secretary of Treasury George Humphrey of Cleveland, and Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks of Boston.

Policemen No Longer.

At the very outset, Secretary Weeks let it be known that, as the champion of business which he proclaimed himself to be, he was going to do something about the federal regulatory commissions, some of which deal with natural resources. He has.

All are now safely packed, from top to bottom, by men drawn from the very business and industrial interests which supposedly are to be regulated in the public interest. The consumer already is beginning to feel the pinch, and he will feel it more and more.

Secretary Humphrey leaves fewer tracks as he goes quietly about his chosen task of making this a true "business" Administration.

So it was about time for the President to clarify his Administration's aim. And for Senator Morse, feeling the way he does, to move into the other party.

TIPTON TRIO PLAYS LITTLE KNOWN WORKS

High Standard of Execution of Chamber Music by Ensemble.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN

A program of chamber works little known to the concert-going public was presented last night at Sheldon Memorial Auditorium by a trio, consisting of Albert Tipton, flutist, Leslie Parnas, 'cellist and Mary Norris, pianist. The concert was the second in the "Music for Tonight" series which was organized by Tipton for the purpose of exploring music written for small instrumental ensembles of varying combinations.

Composers represented last night were Rameau, Porpora, Sebastian Bach, Jean-Marie LeClair, Brahms, Villa-Lobos and a contemporary French musician named Damase. What the shifting ensemble played was not only stimulating by reason of its novelty but also because of the high standard of execution that went into the performance. Moreover the program was so arranged that each instrument took its turn in holding the center of the stage.

Tipton scored decisively in Bach's Sonata No. 2 for Flute and Piano containing the familiar and beautiful Siciliano; Parnas gave a fluent, beautifully shaded interpretation of a Porpora Sonata for Cello and Piano and Miss Norris, solo, played four Brahms intermezzi poetically but not always firmly enough.

A particularly arresting novelty was the Villa-Lobos "Assobio A J'ato" or "Jet Whistle" for Flute and Cello. It was tuneful, slyly humorous and at the end required the flute to imitate a whistle that evidently needed repair. The Damase piece for trio followed the old French dance forms, had a high incidence of fresh, graceful melody and was further refreshed by some unusual key changes.

A good-sized audience was highly responsive to the program. The trio played one encore, a pastorale by Vivaldi.

Gen. Romulo Calls Infiltration Principal Red Threat to Asia

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

GEN. CARLOS P. ROMULO, Philippine envoy.

Principal Communist threat facing Southeast Asia is infiltration and subversion, not open aggression, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, special and personal envoy of the President of the Philippines, declared here last night.

He said he hoped delegates to the Southeast Asia Defense Collective Treaty conference, which opens tomorrow in Bangkok, Thailand, would find effective ways of combating the Communist pattern of conquest by means other than open warfare.

Romulo, a former president of the United Nations General Assembly, will address the concluding session of Washington University's Second Century Convocation at 8 o'clock tonight in the university Field House.

Helping to Bring Peace.

In an interview, he told the Post-Dispatch the Southeast Asia defense treaty, ratified at Manila last Saturday, was "helping bring peace" to that area of the world.

Romulo said he did not believe defense against armed aggression would be hampered by the pact's requirement that signatory nations meet aggression in accordance with their respective "constitutional processes."

"This is particularly true because the main problem in Southeast Asia is Communist infiltration and subversion," Romulo explained. He added that the "constitutional proccesses" clause, which would require legislative approval to deal with open warfare, "is less important" for this reason.

Romulo declined to predict what might be the outcome of a second important forthcoming Asian conference — the meeting of 30 Asian and African nations at Bandung, Indonesia, in April. The Bandung meeting was called by the five so-called "Colombo Powers"—India, Indonesia, Pakistan, Burma and Ceylon.

Going to Conference.

Romulo, who will be chief Philippine delegate to the Bandung conference, said he is going to the meeting "to help see to it that the conference will assist in achieving peace."

Red China has been invited to the Bandung meeting, but the United States and Nationalist China were not.

Discussing the Manila Pact, Romulo said it represented a clear warning by the West and the free nations of Asia against further Communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

"For the first time, the signal of warning against aggression was raised by the signatories," he declared.

This meant, Romulo said, "that those signatories, especially the three Asian nations—Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines—for the first time were joined together by an unsentimental sense of danger, and that makes for peace."

Romulo, who represents Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay, pointed out that the nations of Europe and North and South America had been bound together by various cultural ties which were reflected in the North Atlantic and Rio pacts, but that this situation did not apply to the same degree in Asia.

'Unsentimental' Bond.

This, he said, partly explains the significance of the Manila defense pact. For the three Asian nations which signed the Manila treaty, it was the first important "unsentimental" bond, Romulo said.

Romulo, who served as aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1944, won a Pulitzer Prize for distinguished correspondence in 1942. A former editor of Philippine newspapers, he has served in the Philippine cabinet and as his country's chief delegate to the U.N.

TOMORROW WILL BE FIRST DAY OF LENT

Protestants, Catholics Plan Ash Wednesday Observances.

Lent, the 40-day period of fasting and devotions before Easter, begins tomorrow, Ash Wednesday. Masses will be celebrated and blessed ashes distributed at all Catholic churches. Many Protestant churches will observe the day with holy communion.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter will preside at the 12:10 p.m. mass at the Old Cathedral, Third and Walnut streets, as he has for several years. He will give a brief sermon and will distribute ashes.

Christ Church Cathedral (Episcopal), Thirteenth and Locust streets, will observe Ash Wednesday with holy communion at 8 and 11 a.m., and devotions at 8 p.m.

St. Louis Cathedral will have masses at 6, 7 and 8 a.m., and 12:05 p.m., and ashes will be distributed after each mass. Devotions will be at 3 p.m.

Catholic Information Center, 1129 Locust street, will have mass at 7:30 a.m. Ashes will be distributed after this mass, during the noon hour, and at 4:45 and after benediction at 5:10 p.m.

Catholics must observe Lent with fasting and abstinence. Archbishop Ritter, in a pastoral letter to his archdiocese, suggested that Catholics attend daily mass during Lent.

The Churchmen's Forum of St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed Church, St. Louis and Warne avenues, will present its seventh annual dramatization of Leonardo da Vinci's painting, "The Last Supper," at 8 p.m. tomorrow and Sunday. Twelve men from the church represent the apostles.

Lutheran churches will hold special services in Lent, and many other Protestant churches have announced midweek services for the six weeks.

Easter will be April 10. Sundays are not counted in the 40 days of Lent.

ELDORADO GIVEN FREEDOM AWARD FOR RECOVERY JOB

VALLEY FORGE, Pa., Feb. 22 (INS) — The Southern Illinois town of Eldorado was singled out today as the leader of the community project award recipients of the 1954 Freedoms Foundation program. The award includes a $1000 check and the encased George Washington honor medal.

The Eldorado Community Study and Development Group was cited for its "operation bootstrap project" by which the city lifted itself from economic inertia.

When coal fields in the area played out, Eldorado prospected for oil.

The first strike was made in 1953, and in the face of oil men's opinion that the field was a poor one, the town's civic and business leaders went ahead with an all-out effort. Their optimism paid off. The wells came in, one by one. Today Eldorado is humming.

Eldorado has a population of 4500.

HARRY BLACKSTONE BACK WITH SHOW AT THE AMERICAN

Harry Blackstone, the genial, white-haired magician, began his annual visit to the American Theater last night and was greeted by a fair-sized crowd, including a great many children, with whom he is a great favorite.

Blackstone was up to his old tricks again of flavoring magic with fun, and the crowd seemed to enjoy it a lot. There were the more elaborate things like sawing the girl in half, with appropriate blood-curdling screeches, finding a miss cuddling in a crystal casket where none had cuddled before, and running one through with scimitars. But the real Blackstone stamp was in his relaxed kidding of his watchers, the little tricks like making a handkerchief dance, finding a gentleman's missing watch inside a wine bottle tied to the neck of a white bunny, making a birdcage go pouf.

The children, as usual, were eager to be lured up on the stage to serve as stooges. One little girl about 3 years old who raced down the aisle to plead for the baby bunny, was invited up on the stage first. When asked her name, she appeared stunned, then peered into the audience and screamed: "Mama, what's my name?" If it wasn't part of the act, it ought to be. The show stays two weeks. M.S.

75 PCT. OF SYMPHONY FUND GOAL REACHED

$200,000 Sought to Insure Full Concert Season of Orchestra.

About 75 per cent of the $200,000 maintenance fund for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra has been raised in the current effort to insure another full concert season, it was announced today by Irving Edison, chairman of the campaign.

Urging all workers in the campaign to complete their solicitation in the next 10 days in order that plans for the orchestra's 1955-56 season may go forward, Edison remarked that the spirit of giving on the part of individuals, corporations and business firms had been "most heartening."

Pointing out that no symphony orchestra in the United States can be financed from ticket sales alone, Edison predicted the remaining $50,000 would be raised if the present pattern of support continues.

Each of the more than 400 men and women solicitors is pledged to contact five new contributors in order to broaden community support for the orchestra, second oldest in the nation and now in its seventy-fifth anniversary season.

A program of varied selections will be given by the orchestra at a concert for employes of Union Electric Co. in the lobby of the Union Electric Building, 315 North Twelfth boulevard, at noon tomorrow. It is the third in a series for employes of industrial plants and businesses.

The orchestra, conducted by Vladimir Golschmann, will play the suite from Bizet's "Carmen," Schumann's "Traumerie," "Pavanne" by Morton Gould, a Boccherini minuet, "Surrey With the Fringe on Top" from Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma," de Falla's "La Vida Breve," the wedding march from the opera "The Golden Cockerel" by Rimsky-Korsakov and the overture to Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Dudley Sanford, executive vice president of the company, and Alfred Fleishman, chairman of the St. L is Symphony Society's board of directors, will speak briefly before the concert.

Another noon-hou. concert will be given March 15 in the employes cafeteria at the service building of Union Electric Co., 721 South Eighteenth street. Other s were held Dec. 28 at Edison Brothers Stores, Inc., and last Tuesday at Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.

WILL OF MARGARET H. WELSH, FORMER TEACHER, IS UPHELD

The will of Miss Margaret H. Welsh, retired school teacher, which left the bulk of a $30,000 estate to St. Louis University and St. Louis and St. Louis county chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, was upheld yesterday by Circuit Judge David A. McMullan.

Mrs. Marie J. Schoemehl, 7352 Marietta avenue, Maplewood, a niece, and David R. Jackson, 6716 Donald avenue, Maplewood, a nephew, contested the will, alleging that another nephew, A. D. (Bud) Welsh, national Republican committeeman from Missouri and executor of the estate, had unduly influenced Miss Welsh.

After five days of testimony, Judge McMullan ruled there was no evidence of coercion nor that Miss Welsh was of unsound mind when she made the will. She died June 8, 1952.

Tulsa and Kentucky Set for Key Games in League Races

Back to Work.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22.

IN the gray, mild morning, traffic was heavier on the Hialeah bridle path than on Biscayne boulevard. Scores of horses went about their chores singly or in pairs or sets and their riders sang as they worked or scolded or swore, or shouted warnings to one another where congestion was thickest. Turning and cantering back along the outside rail, each of the boys had a word for the small man who watched from beneath a hedge of Australian pine. "Hello, Mr. Fitz." "Morning, Mr. Fitz."

Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons watched his horses at exercise, waited until all were safely off the track, and then his son John drove him back to the barn where Nashua was taking it easy, having had his gallop earlier. Gracious as he always is, the trainer asked Alfred Robertson, who takes care of Nashua, to lead the colt out for visitors.

This was to be Nashua's first day at the races as a three-year-old. At two he was tops in the East and perhaps in the country. In more than half a century on the tracks, Mr. Fitz hadn't won the Hopeful at Saratoga or the Futurity at Belmont until last summer, and then Nashua got both. Over the winter Jimmy Kilroe, the New York handicapper, rated Nashua second in the Experimental Free Handicap, a pound under Summer Tan. He is the favorite-presumptive for the Kentucky Derby and the other big ones for three-year-olds.

Now Hialeah was holding a special race for him, a four-horse exhibition without betting in order that he might have a tightener before next Saturday's Flamingo Stakes. Eddie Arcaro, a gentleman of property whose interest in minor races is less than avid, flew clear across the country to ride the colt for a purse of $7500.

The Youngster Grows Up.

NASHUA is a rich bay with one white hoof. He has grown during the winter to bigger-than-average size but he is beautifully made and gives no impression of massiveness; rather, he suggests balance and power. He tossed his head, nipping at the halter shank by which Robertson held him.

"He's always nipping at you," Mr. Fitz said. "Full of play."

"Does he play rough, Mr. Fitz?"

"All horses do. That's why I take no chances, have one man take care of him all the time."

"How early did you decide he might be a good horse?"

"Last winter down here he was doing more than any of the others we had, and I liked his smooth motion, I told Mr. Woodward then that he might be a good one." William Woodward owns the colt. Last winter, of course, Nashua had still to make his first start.

"Of course," Mr. Fitz said, "I've had hundreds of others I thought the same thing about, and they were nothing."

"Well, it was nice of Jimmy Kilroe to give you only 127 pounds in the Experimental to Summer Tan's 128."

Mr. Fitz flashed his sweet, warming smile. "Horsemen always complain about weights," he said, "but this is one time I have no complaint."

Sparring Session.

NOW it was afternoon, and many in the crowd were caught unawares when the special race went off. Hialeah made no fuss about the Spanish Moss purse, as the mile and a sixteenth conditioner was called. It was slipped in almost surreptitiously between the regular second and third events, yet the drawing power of a good horse was never more clearly demonstrated. Despite Monday and threatening weather the attendance was 26,425, a weekday record here.

Under 126 pounds, Nashua carried nine more than Muenchausen and Uncle Gus and 12 more than Happy Memories, the least distinguished of his sparring partners. Muenchausen was a respectable opponent, winner of a division of the Prime Stakes in Chicago last summer, first or second in six of his seven starts. Uncle Gus had won a race at this meeting, whipping Nashua's stablemate, Ambient.

Properly enough, it was Nashua and Muenchausen all the way, with Uncle Gus making a minor bid. Nashua ran erratically, though, with his head high, half frolicking, half loafing. Turning into the back stretch he was a neck off Muenchausen and Arcaro snugged him back. He moved up again to lead by a neck and was content to hold that margin until Arcaro dug into him with five sharp strokes of the whip and one more for luck.

Nashua sailed out to lead by a length, then suddenly "propped" (thrust his forelegs down stiffly) and ducked in directly ahead of Muenchausen. Arcaro pulled him out and he won by a length and a half.

The Tourist.

"GREEN?" Arcaro said. "He ran like he'd never been in a starting gate. He went wide on the first turn, just gawking around, and then it seemed like all he wanted to do was win by a neck, so I tore into him. I'd like him to take that bit and win by a margin that would give me some confidence. Probably he needed this race.

"Every time I've ridden him he was like that, just satisfied to be a neck in front.

"He's got the will to win, though. When they run up and grab him, he gets to running again. You've got to love him."

Bills and 'Bama Are Their Big Targets

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 — The stage is set for key games in some of the conference basketball races with Tulsa having narrowed St. Louis University's lead in the Missouri Valley and Kentucky and Alabama running neck and neck in the Southeast.

Tulsa drove within a half-game of first place in the Valley by whipping Houston, 69-59, last night as Bob Patterson outscored Houston's seven-foot skyscraper, Don Boldebuck, 28-25. Tulsa meets St. Louis in the payoff game at Tulsa Saturday.

Kentucky, beaten only twice all season, finds itself in the unusual position of being forced to fight it out right down to the end of the season for the Southeastern Conference title and a berth in the N.C.A.A. tournament.

Adolph Rupp's charges have three league games left to play and at the moment they're tied with Alabama for the lead, each with 9 and 2 marks.

The Wildcats refused to play in the N.C.A.A. tourney last year because three of their top stars were declared ineligible. This time, though, Rupp is eager to play in the tourney.

Playing without 6-7 Phil (Cookie) Grawemeyer, who broke his leg last week, Kentucky whipped Vanderbilt last night, 77-59, but 'Bama kept pace with the Wildcats by slugging Louisiana State, 71-51.

Meanwhile, in the Big Ten, Iowa knocked Illinois out of the running with an 89-70 victory over the Illini. The victory kept Iowa's chances alive. The Hawks are in second place, a half-game behind Minnesota, which edged Wisconsin, 71-69.

Iowa never was in trouble after the first few minutes and rushed to a 50-39 lead after a few minutes of the second half. Minnesota, however, had its hands full and Chuck Mencel had to find the range with four seconds left to break a tie. The Gophers, seeking their first undisputed league title since 1919, were behind most of the way.

In other Big Ten games, none of which had any bearing on the championship, Indiana whipped Purdue for the thirteenth straight time, 75-62; Michigan State held on to outlast Northwestern, 71-69, and Ohio State turned back Michigan, 72-68.

North Carolina State clinched at least a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference crown and the Wolfpack didn't even play. Wake Forest dropped Maryland, 75-71. The Terps' defeat means they can't win the league race outright.

Virginia Tech snapped an 18-game losing streak and downed The Citadel, 88-53, in the Southern Conference. The Gobblers, who hadn't won a game this season, might even get into the league tournament if they win another.

In other major games, Notre Dame came out on top of Kansas State, 76-74; Tulane vanquished Auburn, 90-79, with Hal Cervini running his collegiate scoring total to 1009 points; Georgia Tech halted Tennessee, 83-77, and Florida topped Mississippi, 78-72.

Oklahoma, Big Seven cellar team, upset Nebraska, 78-76, on Lester Lane's 25-foot jump shot with five seconds to play.

First place in the Big Seven and Southwest conferences will be at stake tonight. Colorado (7-1) risks its Big Seven lead against Kansas; a loss would leave Colorado tied with Missouri for first place. Texas Christian (8-2) risks its Southwest Conference lead against Baylor, while co-runners-up Arkansas and S.M.U. (each 6-3 clash with each other.

Mavrakos President Of New Sunset Board, Improvements Planned

John Mavrakos Jr. has been named president to head a newly-elected board of directors at Sunset Country Club, it was announced by H. P. Brightman, head of the club's publicity committee.

Brightman said that some refurbishment of club buildings and improvements in the golf course fairways are now being effected following a dispute among members over whether the club should rebuild.

"The rebuilding has been put off until we can look into that further," Brightman said, "but we are doing work on the fairways and what used to be the men's grill will now be changed so that it will be mixed grill after 6 p.m. The idea is that while waiting to decide about new construction we should make some improvements on the buildings we have."

Marciano Works Out.

GROSSINGER, N.Y., Feb. 22 (UP)—Rocky Marciano turned in seven miles of road work and then sparred four rounds yesterday at his training camp. It was his sharpest workout since he defended his heavyweight title against Ezzard Charles last autumn.

Promising Recruit

Rice and Presko Shake Off Another Redbird Dollar Sign

By Bob Broeg

The Cardinals today were down to three unsigned players after Floyd Wooldridge was reinstated to the active list and accepted terms, but Bill Walsingham, vice president in charge of persuasion, still couldn't coax Del Rice and Joe Presko into the fold.

With spring training scheduled to open a week from this morning at St. Petersburg, Fla., Rice, Presko and Tony Jacobs, rookie righthanded relief specialist, are the unsigned Redbirds.

Walsingham declined to consider Jacobs dissatisfied, pointing out instead that the half-pint pitcher had been playing winter ball and was slow answering his mail. Jacobs, close to 30, had a remarkable two-season bullpen record of 25 victories and only four defeats in the International League.

Fourth Pay Talk for Rice.

Walsingham expressed belief, too, that both Rice and Presko would be signed and in camp by March 1, but he acknowledged that the players continued to balk at taking any cut in salary for 1955. He said the Cardinals had offered more money since contracts originally were mailed.

The 32-year-old Rice, who caught only 56 games last season as a result of an ankle injury and Bill Sarni's progress, has had four salary sessions at Busch Stadium, the most recent over the weekend. Presko, only a 4-9 pitcher with a monstrous 6.88 earned-run average in 1954, rejected contract terms in a telephone call to his Liberty (Mo.) home last night after previously saying "no" by letter.

"I'll be in communication again with the fellows and I believe they'll sign before spring training opens," Walsingham said, hopefully.

Wooldridge May Be Darkhorse.

Reinstatement of Wooldridge, who missed the entire 1954 season because of an ugly leg fracture, brought to the Redbird roster a pitcher regarded as the farm system's best prospect before he was hurt.

"And," said Chief Scout Joe Mathes, "he could be the staff darkhorse this year if his leg has come around as well as Bob Bauman believes."

Bing Devine agreed. The strapping Wooldridge, 26 as is Presko, rushed from Houston to Rochester down the stretch in 1953, pitched Devine's Red Wings into the International League playoffs and then starred in post-season competition.

"He's a take-charge guy with confidence in himself and, like Joe Mathes says, a pitcher with courage," Devine said. "He's got good stuff, too."

Walsingham said Wooldridge told the front-office that, favoring his leg until he could round into condition in Cuba this winter, he developed a better change-up to complement his fast ball and curve.

Pro Basketball Comes Courting Here Tomorrow

Professional basketball will pass through town tomorrow night, and its orphaned fans here will be able to get a double look at what they have been missing. The Fort Wayne Pistons and the Minneapolis Lakers will play the first game in the program on the Arena court, at 8 o'clock, and the Boston Celtics and the Milwaukee Hawks will play the second game.

It will have its points of purely local pride. Former McBride star Dick Rosenthal was the Pistons' first draft choice this year and has made them happy he was. Ed Macauley, former St. Louis University All-America, is in his fifth season with the Celtics and has made himself one of Boston's favorite winter citizens.

Fort Wayne is the league's surprise. It is leading the Western Division, something that had been assumed to be a Minneapolis habit. The regular season play is drawing to an end, and the Pistons show no signs of yielding to the Lakers.

Other name players present will be Boston's Bob Cousy; Milwaukee's Frank Selvy and Bob Pettit, the first and second college scorers last season; Minneapolis standouts Vern Mikkelsen, Jim Pollard and Clyde Lovelette, and Andy Phillip, Larry Faust and Max Zaslofsky of Fort Wayne.

Saffa, Lepping Team Wins at Handball

Al Saffa and Ed Lepping came from behind to beat Warren Zelp and Joe Strinni in an opening-round Class A match of the North Side Y.M.C.A. doubles handball tournament. The scores were 10-21, 21-15, 21-15.

In the only Class B match that didn't go three games, Walter Stokes and his brother, Elmer, defeated Ed Wills and Bill Wientge, 21-14, 21-14.

CLASS B—Ham Moore and Bob Fouth defeated Gene Foeker and Jim Knoll, 21-9, 20-21, 21-19; Joe Strattman and Bill Hain defeated Bill Winkelman and Vernon Trampe, 15-21, 21-11, 21-4; John Schultz and Al Baehler defeated Bill McGuire and Bill Dillon, 14-21, 21-12, 21-4.

CLASS C—Warren Jackman and Leo Glickert defeated Warren Smith and Fred Ruhrwein, 21-16, 21-17; Jerry Halloran and Dudley Dean defeated Paul Neudecker and Bob Biehmann, 21-4, 21-13.

Dick Bogdan Dies; Former Sandlot Star

Richard (Dick) Bogdan, former St. Louis sandlot pitching star who turned down professional offers for a college scholarship, died early today of cancer after a long illness. He would have been 23 years old next month.

In 1949 Bogdan, a 6-foot-1, 190-pound lefthander, won a total of 26 games and lost only one while pitching for St. Louis U. High School, the Aubuchon-Dennison legion team and a Muny league ball club. It was then he rejected pro offers and instead went to Holy Cross.

After graduating from Holy Cross with a Bachelor of Science degree in 1953, Dick began premedical studies at St. Louis University before he was stricken.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bogdan, 5094A Page avenue, and an older brother, Bob, an Air Force lieutenant stationed at San Angelo, Tex.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body is at Sullivan Funeral Directors, 2849 North Euclid.

Trabert Plays Richardson in Tennis Final

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (UP)—Tony Trabert and Ham Richardson, the nation's second and third-ranked players, clash today in the final round of the national indoor tennis championships—and both of them might be a bit leg-weary.

The two United States Davis Cup stars both were forced to the limit to win their semi-final matches last night—Trabert over former champion Art Larsen, 13-11, 10-8, 6-3, and Richardson over brilliant newcomer Ulf Schmidt of Sweden, 8-10, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Trabert was rated a slight favorite for today's match, but is generally regarded as an erratic performer on the boards.

Larsen was cheered on by a capacity crowd as he and Trabert held service through the first 23 games of the first set. Then the Cincinnati, O., star broke through Larsen to win the set. Play followed service through the first 17 games of the second set until Trabert broke through again to win.

Seeming somewhat dejected, Southpaw Larsen fell swiftly behind, 0-4, in the third set. But then he rallied to win three straight games, including two service breaks, before Trabert stormed back to win the next two games and the match.

Schmidt, 20-year-old Swede hoping to succeed to the crown won last year by his countryman, Sven Davidson played a fine game to win the opening set as Richardson, Rhodes scholar from Baton Rouge, La., tested him out.

But then Richardson turned on his booming power and swept through the next three sets. Although Schmidt scored occasional passing shots, Richardson kept him generally pinned in backcourt and on the defensive.

Phil Hanna, singer from Jackson Heights, N.Y., won the national indoor seniors championship by defeating Herman Newfield of New York, 6-0, 6-1, in the final round. Newfield won only the third game of the second set.

M.A.C. Volleyball Team Takes Second In Chicago Tourney

The Missouri Athletic Club's volleyball team plans to compete in the Mid-South tournament at Memphis, Tenn., March 5 following its good performance in a recent event at Chicago.

M.A.C. won four of five matches to take second place in the Chicago Lawson Y.M.C.A. tournament. The St. Louis team lost to Chicago Wilson Y.M.C.A. in the final, 15-8, 15-8.

In other matches M.A.C. won from Beloit, Wis., 15-8, 11-15, 15-7, George Williams College of Chicago, 15-9, 15-0 and 15-9, Chicago Lawson Y.M.C.A., 15-9, 15-12, 15-11, and Terre Haute, Ind., 15-10, 15-13.

Boushkā in Shooting Distance Of Macauley's and Own Records

Despite trials and tribulations in his senior season, St. Louis University's Dick Boushka is within shooting distance of creating a number of new records in Billiken basketball.

Figuring that Dick will play in the four remaining games of the regular schedule and likely at least one game in a post-season tournament, the statisticians see these possibilities:

He has a career total of 1310 points and needs 90 to surpass the school four-year mark of 1399 set by Easy Ed Macauley in 1949.

This means that Boushka, currently averaging 19.1, will have to average 18 in five games. The post-season tournament opportunity is probable because even if league-leading St. Louis fails to get the Missouri Valley Conference title and N.C.A.A. spot, it is very likely to go to the National Invitation Tournament. That is, unless the team should collapse badly in remaining games.

Boushka, who got off to a slow start this season, suffered through an off night at New York, and was hurt at Wichita, also is well within reach of his own school marks.

He has a total of 421 points for this season, needs 74 to top his own single-season mark of 494. He has 151 field goals, needs 24 to beat his own mark of 174, and he has 119 free throws, needs 28 to break his mark of 146.

The probably tough defenses of Oklahoma A. & M. and perhaps Tulsa present a hazard. His added rebounding duties of the present season, which have kept down his scoring, are another adverse factor.

But with a good night tomorrow at Bradley U., Dick could get a start on breaking through all of these record barriers.

DICK BOUSHKA.

Aided by a 225-pin handicap, Josephine Mueller and Louise Smith took over first place in doubles with a 1203 total. Mrs. Mueller totalled 505 and her partner 573.

More Top Teams Go In Action Tonight

By John J. Archibald

The 1954-55 basketball season came to an end last night for about one-fourth of the St. Louis area high schools. First-round eliminations took their toll in five tournaments, pretty much the way they were figured, and tonight another chunk of schools will learn that the time has come for the second basemen and pole vaulters to take over.

There will be just as much tournament action tonight, with the Class A regional at Normandy getting off to a delayed start with a pair of games. More first-round games will be played in Class A meets at St. Mary's, Webster Groves, and Clayton, and another set of four matches will be run off in the Class B subregional event at Principia. The Hadley meet skips a day.

The other big-name teams play tonight. Cleveland will meet St. Francis de Sales in a 9 o'clock game at St. Mary's; Clayton will play Ladue at 7 and University City will go against Lutheran at 8:30 in the Clayton regional, and Kirkwood will open against Chaminade in a 7 o'clock match at Webster Groves.

No highly-ranked teams were beaten on opening night. Such powers as Beaumont, St. Louis U. High, Webster Groves and Maplewood went unscratched in the Class A tournaments. Hillsboro, ranked No. 2 in the Class B meet, had unexpected trouble from Franklin of St. Charles, but managed to pull away in the final quarter to win, 59 to 48.

Beaumont suffered only a mild letdown after its spectacular victory over Cleveland Saturday night, as the Blue Jackets subdued McBride, 62 to 49, in the Hadley tournament. It was the Jackets' twenty-third victory without a defeat. In the other game, host team Hadley was upset by Central, 56 to 54.

Don Hake, poured in 33 points as St. Louis U. High defeated McKinley, 77 to 57, at St. Mary's. The home team fared better in the opener there than at some of the other meets, for St. Mary's downed Roosevelt, 52 to 44.

The Suburban League champion, Maplewood, won from C.B.C., 69 to 58, with Jack Pirrie making 29 points for the Leafs. Bob Kohly's 26 helped Brentwood edge Soldan-Blewett, 59 to 52, in the second of two games at Clayton.

Webster Groves, favored in its regional, overpowered Affton, 59 to 40. Hancock defeated DuBourg, 75 to 43.

The only unexpected result in the Principia Class B event was the early departure of Principia. Coach Whitey Schubert's Panthers were ranked No. 7 in the 16-team tournament, but Douglass of Festus overcame a five-point halftime deficit to win, 57 to 51. Waywardness at the free throw line was a large factor in Principia's downfall, for the Bombers made 23 field goals to Douglass's 18. In foul shots, however, Principia made only five out of 20, while Coach Adam McCullough's Trojans were hitting 21 out of 30.

James Penny led Douglass with 25 points. Tom Buttner scored 23 for Principia and Denny McGarraugh 15—12 of them on six field goals in the first quarter.

Douglass, which will play Hillsboro on Wednesday, may not be a mere flash, for the Trojans evened a two-game series with fourth-seeded Kinloch last week with a 77-61 victory.

Wellston needed more than John Jones's 26 points as it lost to sixth-ranked Pacific, 59 to 53. Bob Fischer led Pacific with 16.

The third-ranked team at Principia, Coyle High, ended a recent slump with a 56-30 triumph over Hazelwood. Coyle was able to make considerable use of reserves in the second half against Hazelwood, which was completing its first season of competition. The entire team will return next fall.

The finale of the opening four-game session at Principia was the night's best match, for the Bulldogs from Franklin were far from awed by Hillsboro's No. 2 ranking. Led by husky No. 99, sophomore Ken Clark, Franklin led Hillsboro 14-8 after a quarter, and were caught for the first time at 23-23 in the closing minutes of the half. Coach Gene Steighorst's Hawks managed a 29-23 lead at the intermission, and by battling all the way, stayed a few points ahead until time ran out.

Doug McCurdy, a 6-2 senior, was a scoring and rebounding standout for Hillsboro. After being held to one point in the first quarter, McCurdy scored 14 in the second, seven in the third, and seven in the fourth for a total of 29. Charles McKinney was second-best with 14 points for Hillsboro, which improved its season record to 17 and 10.

Clark made 21 of Franklin's points, and Frank Williams 14. Leonard Mershon is coach of the St. Charles school.

The No. 1-seeded team in the B tournament, Bayless, will open defense of its subregional title against Berkeley in the 9:30 game tonight. Sonny Siebert will carry a 30.2 average into the contest. Fourth-ranked Kinloch will play St. Peter's of St. Charles at 8 o'clock. The program will begin with Valley Park vs. Fairview at 5 and John Burroughs vs. Maryland Heights at 6:30.

'B' Tourney Notes.

Three key members of Principia's starting five have another season of eligibility. They are Tom Buttner, Denny McGarraugh, and Phil Ratliff. . . . Hazelwood's basketball coach, Roy Tanner, will also coach the school's baseball team. Richard Vigil, former star football player at Central College, will coach track this spring and will organize Hazelwood's first football team in the fall.

Hillsboro had good training for Class B tournament play. The Hawks were in the Jefferson County Conference, and the only other B-size school in the league was Douglass of Festus. Hillsboro tied Crystal City for second place. The Hawks defeated Douglass, their Wednesday opponent, twice in league play.

Olympic Visitors May Have to Sleep in Streets, Agent Says

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 22 (AP)—An American travel agency representative said today "Melbourne's hotel accommodations are in a horrible, chaotic mess and visitors to the 1956 Olympic Games may be forced to sleep in the streets."

Sam Mercer made the statement after attending a travel agency conference in New Zealand and later examining Melbourne facilities.

"It is a disgrace, for Australia has a wonder chance to build up her tourist trade," Mercer added in a newspaper interview. "But unless Australia brushes aside her ridiculous reluctance to change, then Australia will be a ruined country.

"Americans will have nothing but contempt for Melbourne's paltry accommodation and shocking liquor laws."

Melbourne is so short of hotel space that the Olympic Organizing Committee said all overseas visitors for the games would have to stay in private homes. The hotels barely will accommodate Olympic officials and visiting writers and radio men.

The city also has a 6 p.m. closing time for all bars.

Mercer said Americans are trying to charter ships which might be used as "floating hotels" in the Melbourne harbor. By pooling, he said, agencies could fill two or three liners holding between 500 and 800 persons each.

The accommodation problem is so acute, the travel executive added, that American transport companies have asked travel agencies to soft-pedal publicity on the games.

The Melbourne harbor is some 20 miles from the heart of town and Melbourne Cricket Ground, where the main events will be staged.

Robinson and Small Will Fight March 5

BOSTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson, whose boxing comeback hit a roadblock in the person of Ralph (Tiger) Jones,, has signed to meet Georgie Small of Brooklyn in a 10-rounder at Boston Garden March 5.

The Callahan A.C. said last night there will be no television or broadcast of the bout.

Royals Protest Game.

It was a bitter scrap while it lasted, a free-swinging middleweight battle that finally was stopped at the end of the eighth because of Nocero's eye cuts. Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission examined Nocero's cuts after the eighth, and advised Referee Al Berl to stop it. Under New York rules, it went as an eight-round technical knockout with Merentino the winner.

Nocero was sliced around both both eyes but a gash over the right eye, that required six stitches, was the decisive factor. It turned out later he had injured his right thumb in the third round. Until he hurt the hand, Nocero scored repeatedly with his long "windup" right-hand punches. He opened up again in the seventh in a desperate bid to pull out the decision but Merentino's punches had taken their toll.

A crowd of 1100 sounded like a political convention in the St. Nick's bandbox, paying $1900. Referee Berl scored it 4-3-1, Judge Artie Schwartz 6-1-1 and Judge Leo Birnbaum 6-2 when it was stopped. Merentino weighed 158½, Nocero 159½ pounds.

Costa Upsets Bobby Bell.

Carmelo Costa, 20-year-old Brooklyn featherweight, has evened an old score with Bobby Bell and needs only a victory over Rudy Garcia to balance the two defeats on his 29-bout record.

Costa was unbeaten in 26 starts until he ran into Garcia last Oct. 25. Then he lost to Bell in his next start Dec. 6. Last night at Eastern Parkway Arena in Brooklyn, he squared accounts with Bell. Costa had a 9-1 margin on the cards of Referee Barney Felix and Judges Artie Aidala and Arthur Susskind.

For Bell, who was an 8-5 favorite, it was the first defeat since April 20, 1951. Costa weighed 130¾, Bell 126 pounds.

Johnston Adds To Pro Baskets Scoring Lead

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Philadelphia Warriors have little to cheer about these days when it comes to winning games and gaining a playoff berth, but they are on the verge of providing the National Basketball Association's individual scoring leader for the fourth straight year.

Rookie Frank Selvy of the Milwaukee Hawks, who held the lead for 11 out of the first 15 weeks, slipped to fifth place with 1168. Boston's Bob Cousy is in third spot with 1179 followed by Milwaukee's Bob Pettit with 1177. Cousy continues to lead in assists with 449.

Stanky Sees Cardinals in Four-Club Pennant Race

Says New Pitching Adds to Strength

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP)—Manager Eddie Stanky today predicted a four-team battle for the National League pennant involving the defending champion New York Giants, Brooklyn, Milwaukee and his own St. Louis Cardinals.

The peppery little pilot, who arrived here well in advance of the start of the training season, predicted his club will be greatly improved over last year because of added pitching strength and a more fortified bench.

"It was plainly evident that we lacked pitching last year," Stanky said, "especially second line pitching. The bullpen was extremely weak. Pitching, or lack of it, was the reason for the trade that sent Ray Jablonski, one of our best hitters, to Cincinnati for Relief Pitcher Frank Smith.

The Jablonski Case.

"If we had an adequate bullpen, Jabbo would still be with us. I doubt whether he'd be the regular third baseman this year if everything I've heard about this kid Ken Boyer is true. But Jablonski is a great man to have on a club. We're going to miss him. Nobody knows better the assets of Jabbo with a bat. He did a wonderful job for us batting behind Stan Musial.

Stanky regards the Giants as the team to beat, but he is conceding nothing to Leo Durocher's club.

"You've always got to respect the champion," he said. "The Giants are a sound, well-balanced club with good pitching, good hitting, a fine defense, a great bullpen and a strong bench. But they'll need one or two of their younger pitchers to come through if they are going to repeat.

"I look for Johnny Antonelli to be even better this year. His great pitching last season did not surprise me. He always gave evidence of becoming a really fine pitcher. Durocher and Frank Shellenback (Giants' coach) helped him a lot last year. Leo is great with youngsters despite stories to the contrary. He knows how to instill confidence in youngsters.

Campy the Key.

"Brooklyn is going to be rough. They've got a lot of fine ball players. Roy Campanella, of course, is the key to their success. He must be in perfect health if they are to win. As for their pitching, right now I wish I had the Dodgers' pitching staff. Maybe in October I'll take mine. But right now I'll take Walter Alston's.

"Milwaukee has the best balanced pitching staff in the league. The Braves also have the hitting and fielding to make things rough for everybody. And if Bobby Thomson's broken ankle is completely healed and he hits the way I know he can, then they can go all the way."

Two More Minor Clubs In Trouble; Bruton And Sid Hudson Sign

NEW YORK, Feb. 22 (AP)—Troubles continued to plague the minors today with Olean of the Class D Pony League and Beaumont of the sprawling Double-A Texas League the latest clubs to face dificulties.

Olean, a little upstate New York city, dropped out of the Pony League at the end of last season. But a local group decided to reorganize the club for the coming season. Now no one knows whether there will be a team.

"Our big obstacle has been the difficulty in obtaining a working agreement with a major league team," a club spokesman said. "As of now our future is in doubt."

The Beaumont problem is resting squarely in the hands of the directors of the Texas League.

Allen Russell, owner of the Beaumont franchise, said he had offers from Wichita Falls to switch the club. Two Beaumont groups are trying to raise cash to keep the club. Therefore, Russell said, he would leave the final decision up to the league directors.

Bennett had 21 points, Uelk 20 and Alcorn 18.

Outfielder Porter Signs Tiger Contract

DETROIT, Feb. 22 (UP)—J. W. Porter, the highly-regarded rookie outfielder for whom the Chicago White Sox offered $100,000 this winter, was signed to a 1955 contract today by the Detroit Tigers.

Terms of the contract weren't divulged.

Porter, who was traded to the Tigers while in the service in the fall of 1952 by the St. Louis Browns, was recently discharged from the Army.

During the winter, the Chicago White Sox offered the Tigers $100,000 for him, but the Tigers turned it down. They consider Porter a vital part of their youth movement.

Nine Horses to Face Nashua in Flamingo Stake

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22 (AP)—Odds went up slightly today on Belair Stud's Nashua to win Saturday's $100,000 added mile and a furlong Flamingo Stakes.

At least nine other crack 3-year-olds are expected to oppose him in the rich feature.

"He didn't scare anybody out," was the concensus after William Woodward Jr.'s star won a special no-betting race at a mile and a sixteenth.

Nashua covered the distance in the good time of 1:44 1-5 and beat C. F. Morris's Munchausen by a length and a half under top weight of 126 pounds.

Munchausen set the early pace and Nashua did not take over until they rounded the turn for home. There Jockey Eddie Arcaro lashed him half a dozen times with the whip and the big bay colt minded his business.

Rival horsemen withheld comment but B. H. Marshall, trainer of Munchausen, announced his colt definitely would go in the Flamingo. Prior to the race, Munchausen was regarded as a doubtful starter.

Odds on Nashua went up from 4 to 5 before the exhibition to even money after it. Trainer Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons said the colt needed the race.

The champion two-year-old of 1954 has won six out of eight races, with two seconds.

Paul Andolino's Boston Doge, winner of eight straight races including two stakes this winter, was 3 to 1 in the Flamingo line. That is the same price on Hasty House Farm's Prince Noor.

Montpelier's Saratoga was held to 6 to 1, followed by Paul Mellon's Cup Man at 10 to 1.

Twenty to 1 shots were T. I. Harkins's Some Question, C. V. Whitney's Little Dell, Eugene Constantin Jr.'s Amber's Folly, Mrs. Elizabeth Graham's Apollo, A. F. Yeorg's Charles A and Munchausen.

It will be the twenty-sixth running of the Flamingo, which dates back to 1926 when it was first run at the old Tampa Downs track as the Florida Derby. It was moved to Hialeah in 1929 and was won last year by Cain Hoy Stable's Turn-to.

All Flamingo entries carry 122 pounds and the race will be broadcast and televised to a nationwide audience from 3:45 to 4 p.m. (St. Louis time) over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Rolling Rams to Play Brooklyn Conquerors Here Saturday Night

The St. Louis Rolling Rams, assured of at least a tie for the western conference title in the National Wheelchair Basketball Association, will seek revenge here Saturday night for last April's tournament defeat at the hands of the Brooklyn (N.Y.) Pan-American Jets.

The 8:30 intersectional game at St. Louis U. High gymnasium, 4970 Oakland avenue, will follow a 7:00 a.m. preliminary between the Kutis and Jefferson girls teams.

Coach Joe Gorke's Rolling Rams clinched their half-share of western honors with a second victory over the Illinois Gizz Kids last Saturday night, this time by a 25-24 score at Champaign, Ill. Jim Greenblatt's nine points paced St. Louis.

The Brooklyn team, which had won 10 straight before losing to the Los Angeles Flying Wheels, will fly in for the game which is expected to pit the hook shots of the Rams' Wally Petro against the Jets' Tex D'Antonio.

Milwaukee Bowler Leads U.S. With 826

MILWAUKEE, Feb. 22 (AP)—Ted Scudder, 28 years old, who had never rolled a 700 series in his life rolled an 826 last night, the country's highest series so far in the season.

Scudder had games of 274, 285 and 267. His previous high in 15 years of bowling was a 692.

His 826 replaces an 813 bowled by Ken Rothermich of St. Louis two weeks ago as the season's best.

William Jewell Wins, Stays in Title Race

FAYETTE, Mo., Feb. 22 (AP)—William Jewell defeated Central College 68-62 last night and prevented the Eagles from taking the M.C.A.U. basketball championship.

Central now has a 9-1 league record while Jewell is pressing at 9-2. Central has games left with Tarkio and Westminster, while Jewell still faces Tarkio.

joined me, in his way, in deploring the violence, tyranny, denial of free speech and suppression of liberties involved in world Communism. But he goes on to suggest that you are a different breed of cats who can take the 'good' of Communism and reject the bad. I ask you and I ask him if these 600,000,000 human beings of the world who came under the yoke of Communism in the last decade were able to take the 'good' alone. . . .

"And please answer my question: have you ever heard any citizen of these Communist-dominated regimes stand in a public meeting here and criticize their country, as I have done?"

I paused—but there was no reply.

Fight Against Nazis.

I reminded the students that their history professor had extorted me and other Americans to remember when we fought against colonial powers, when America used her strength to fight Nazis and fascism, when America stood for freedom and a good life for the common man.

"How well I remember those days," I said. "It is you whom I ask to remember that America. Then ask yourselves honestly whether there are any facts to induce you to believe that the America of today is not the same America."

I started to sit when Bhatnagar shouted, "The same? Then what about McCarthyism?"

I went on to give this reply: "I am glad you asked that, because so much has been said about Senator McCarthy and the way he supposedly transformed America into a fascist state. I think nothing better illustrates the fact that Americans are the same liberty-loving people they always were, than the story of the rise and fall of a guy named Joe.

Abuse of Freedom.

"What you students must realize is that wherever there is freedom of the press, dishonest newspapers will seek to abuse that freedom. Wherever there is freedom of speech, demagogues will try to use it for their own selfish ends. Thus, the test of your belief in freedom is whether you are willing to see it used by the demagogue you despise in order that it might be available to those whom you admire.

"Not so long ago six members of that Senate in which McCarthy sits—three Democrats and three of his fellow Republicans—reached the decision that tells me better than anything where the people of America stand today. They decided that McCarthy should be censured by his fellow Senators as a disgrace to the Senate and American democracy."

This time, when I sat down, there was no cry. I was thankful in my heart that, although it took three long years, Americans made it possible for me to give this answer.

WORLD TRADE CALLED KEY TO FARM PROSPERITY

Farm prosperity depends more on effective action to expand world trade than on farm support prices, Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said today at the Rural-Urban day luncheon of the Belleville Rotary Club.

The Federation, Shuman said, is in favor of "continuing the reciprocal trade agreements program and expanding its scope to include reduction of many governmental interferences with trade which are often even more restrictive than tariffs. We must also simplify our own customs procedures and encourage foreign investment."

Farmers and businessmen are dependent on one another as never before, Shuman said. He said agriculture is the largest single user of steel and, although farmers make up only 13 per cent of the population, they are the largest consumers of rubber, petroleum products, automobiles and trucks. The luncheon was at St. Paul's Evangelical and Reformed Church in Belleville.

ARMY TEACHING TROOPS TO LIVE, FIGHT IN ARCTIC

the artic wastes. For there are vast areas, without terrain features for landmarks, and magnetic compasses are virtually useless in the shadow of the magnetic pole.

Tests are now being made with portable gyrocompasses in which needles are held at true north by gyroscopes, and with a form of location indicator which informs a driver how far he has to go in what direction he is heading.

Building and supply operations also run into monumental problems in the Far North. Labor and materials come high. Shipping costs reflect the necessity for long hauls through often dangerous waters.

Construction in some parts of the territory must be specialized. North of the southern range of mountains, permafrost — permanently frozen grounds — may extend as deep as 1000 feet. Buildings and runways must be insulated from the ground. Otherwise, heat will thaw the upper layer of the Perma-frost, causing construction to settle in the summer, and heave up in the winter freeze.

Along the southern coast and out on the Aleutian chain, the earthquake factor must be taken into consideration. Long, heavy buildings are built with moveable joints which can take up the roll of an earth shock without cracking concrete walls and floors.

ARMED WOMAN GIVES UP FIGHT AGAINST EVICTION

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (AP) — Miss Lelena Davis, a former ballet dancer and now a carhop, has agreed to move by May 15 from the dwelling she has defended with pistol and shotgun.

Miss Davis, 32 years old, signed an agreement in superior court yesterday to get out of the seven-room dwelling on the property of the Chicago Sanitary District on the bank of the Des Plaines river, southwest of Chicago.

The district wants to run a railroad spur through the property but Miss Davis has driven off workmen with pistol and shotgun. She said her lease runs until 1957 but yesterday withdrew her suit appealing the eviction order against her. A district attorney said Miss Davis had only a month-to-month lease on the property.

BBC REPORTED CONSIDERING LONDON-MOSCOW TV LINK

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—A British Broadcasting Corp. official said last night a London-Moscow television link this year has been seriously discussed with Russian TV experts. New York may be tied in later, he added.

Cecil McGivern, B.B.C.'s television controller, made the disclosure at a meeting of the European-Atlantic Group, an organization devoted to European unity.

He explained the London-Moscow tie would involve a series of microwave relays in Sweden, Denmark, France and England.

CZECH ICE STAR FLEES TO U.S. ZONE IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Feb. 22 (AP)—Czechoslovak ice star Miroslava Nachodska has fled to the United States zone of Austria, the American Embassy said tonight. She will hold a news conference tomorrow.

The 29-year-old ballerina on ice disappeared from her British sector hotel on Saturday just before she was due to return to her Communist homeland. She had taken part in the 1955 world ice skating championships. She finished eighteenth among 22 competitors for the women's individual title.

LONDON STOCKS HAVE AN ERRATIC SESSION

Advance Early, Slide Steeply Later, Then Recover Partially.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The London Stock Exchange experienced an erratic session today marked by an early advance, a sharp noon time slide in prices and a partial recovery just before the close.

Many leading industrial stocks registered net losses on the day and the market still seemed to be working through a downward trend that began Friday and continued yesterday.

British government bonds seesawed with the rest of the market. They started brightly, took a fall and then came back somewhat in the last hour. Foreign bonds were dull apart from one or two gains in Japanese.

Industrials generally followed the decline of British government bonds with sellers continuing to come into the market throughout the day.

Store shares, long the favorites of small investors, were among the biggest tumblers. Gussies (Great Universal stores) dipped 3 shillings and 6 pence (59 cents) to 50 shillings and 6 pence ($7.07). This brought the total fall in three days to 9 shillings and 3 pence ($1.30).

Engineering, electrical, shipping and brewery issues sagged. Oils also went down with Burmah dropping 5 shillings (70 cents).

Prices of gold shares were marked down to discourage selling. Coppers closed on a depressed note and diamonds were easier.

Brokers said the small investors were doing most of the selling. Some of them, frightened by the earlier drops, presumably were determined to get out of the market and realize the profits they had made during the long climb of the last few months.

Selling orders were coming in in blocks of 100 to 200 shares at a time. Big investors, such as the insurance companies, were sitting tight.

Buying orders seldom came in blocks of more than 1000 shares at a time.

The news that the American bill rate has advanced from 1.13 per cent to 1.35 per cent added to the jumpiness of the market here. The change was described as hardly helpful to the pound.

LONDON STOCKS AVERAGE

Copper Down at London.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (UP)—Copper on the metal exchange closed today off £2 to £4 with sales of 1200 tons, including 50 tons for spot delivery.

... our guess is that most of the 964 stocks you'll find in our brand new booklet called "DIVIDENDS"—will still be paying them.

Why?

Because every one of these stocks has paid dividends for the past 20 years ... hundreds of them for closer to 50—and a few for more than a century!

Does that mean that we endorse these stocks for investment, or think you should buy them?

Definitely not.

Not when those dividends vary from less than 1% on your money all the way up to 14% or more ...

Not when dividends alone can never make any stock a sound investment ...

Not when your own particular circumstances—your own investment objectives—should always dictate the kind of securities you should buy.

Nevertheless, this booklet is a pretty fair cross-section of investment opportunity ... and does speak well for the basic stability of American business through good times and bad.

TEXT OF MESSAGE BY EISENHOWER ON HIGHWAY NEEDS

highways in the territories and highway maintenance and improvement in national parks, on Indian lands and on other public lands of the United States will continue to be treated in the budget for these particular subjects.

A sound federal highway program, I believe, can and should stand on its own feet, with highway users providing the total dollars necessary for improvement and new construction. Financing of interstate and federal-aid systems should be based on the planned use of increasing revenues from present gas and diesel oil taxes, augmented in limited instances with tolls.

I am inclined to the view that it is sounder to finance this program by special bond issues, to be paid off by the above - mentionel revenues which will be collected during the useful life of the roads and pledged to this purpose, rather than by an increase in general revenue obligations.

At this time, I am forwarding for use by the Congress in its deliberations the report to the President made by the President's Advisory Committee on a national highway program. This study of the entire highway traffic problem and presentation of a detailed solution for its remedy is an analytical review of the major elements in a most complex situation. In addition, the Congress will have available the study made by the Bureau of Public Roads at the direction of the Eighty-third Congress.

These two documents together constitute a most exhaustive examination of the national highway system, its problems and their remedies. Inescapably, the vastness of the highway enterprise fosters varieties of proposals which must be resolved into a national highway pattern. The two reports, however, should generate recognition of the urgency that presses upon us; approval of a general program that will give us a modern safe highway system; realization of the rewards for prompt and comprehensive action. They provide a solid foundation for a sound program.

HOUSE APPROVES ANNUAL SESSION OF LEGISLATURE

Also Votes for Proposal to Increase Terms of Members From 2 to 4 Years.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22 (AP)—The Missouri House approved constitutional amendment proposals today to establish annual legislative sessions and extend House members' terms from two to four years.

Advancement of the annual session plan came on a 91-21 vote. Final passage will require 79 votes.

Then, if passed by the Senate, it would go on either a general or special election ballot for a vote of the people.

The big argument came today on legislative secrecy.

Representative A. Clifford Jones (Rep.), St. Louis county, tried vainly to strip away a present constitutional provision that the Legislature can meet behind closed doors — bar the public and the press—"in cases which may require secrecy."

It was an extension of his attack last week against House rules barring public announcement of the actual vote of individual members of committees. The Senate has been operating under that partial secrecy cloak for years.

'Ridiculous Practice.'

Jones said it was a "ridiculous practice—this secrecy baloney." He said the public has a right to know "everything that goes on here."

But his amendment was defeated on a 66-70 vote. Most Republicans and a sprinkling of Democrats voted with Jones, but the substantial part of the Democratic majority voted against him.

The annual session plan would:

1. Continue the present five-month session each odd-numbered year but add authority for up to 30 days additional if the Governor vetoes any legislation that the assembly's leaders believe should be re-offered to the two houses in an attempt to override the vetoes.

2. Provide for up to 60 days session in even-numbered years and confine those sessions to appropriation matters, taxation proposals and specific recommendations made by the Governor to the Legislature.

Retained would be the present $10-a-day expenses for every legislator who answers the first roll call of the day at any legislative session and the present 60-day limit on special sessions.

Representative Richard Ichord (Dem.), Texas county, author of the proposal, said "it's a lot easier to see ahead one year than two" in appropriating money for operation of Missouri's expanding services.

Now the Legislature has to anticipate the state's revenues for a two-year period and allot money to state agencies for the full two years.

4-Year Term Popular.

There was little argument on the four-year term for House members.

Representative Luna Butler (Dem.), Gentry county, the sponsor, said it would give representatives a little more time to get their law-making feet on the ground—give members "time to find out what's going on."

Several opponents contended that the House is the direct representative of the people and the members should be closer to the voters. If they make bad mistakes the voters should be able to get them out of office before they can do more harm, they said.

"We ought to let the voters have a whack at us every two years," said Representative J. Ben Garrett (Dem.), Jefferson county.

Senators already serve four years and no change in their terms was proposed.

The whole annual session proposal was advanced on a voice vote with most of the dissenting voices heard on the side of the Republican minority.

PAY INCREASES FOR 350 AT STATE PRISON APPROVED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 22—Pay increases for about 350 employes of the State Penitentiary, made possible through an emergency appropriation recently passed by the Legislature, have been approved, it was announced today.

The emergency appropriation of $1,017,000 is an additional grant for operations, including food, equipment, emergency fire fighting equipment and merit pay increases.

The increases vary from $8 to $15 a month, Ralph N. Eidson, acting director of the department of corrections, said. He added that virtually all the 225 prison guards will receive an additional $8 to $15 a month, increasing their pay from $154 to $162. A few others are in higher brackets. Top increase will be from $305 a month to $320 for some of the supervisory personnel, Eidson said.

He added that the pay increases would apply to all of the personnel at the prison, except himself and perhaps two or three other top officers.

SENATOR SMITH IN MANILA, SHE PRAISES CHIANG'S MEN

She also said Philippine President Ramon Magsaysay's support of President Eisenhower's Formosa policy "has increased the strength of the free world."

She will call on President Maysaysay tomorrow, and leave for Bangkok that night.

MARDI GRAS BEGINS WITH RAIN AND RIOT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22 (AP) — Reveling thousands and a tripled police cordon greeted Mardi Gras in a downpour today, watching expectantly for the big parades and uneasily for further rioting.

Mardi Gras is ruled by three madcap kings in Rex, Lord of Misrule and King of Carnival; Comus, God of Gaiety and oldest of the Mardi Gras monarchs; and Zulu, King of Negroes.

Each parades through funbent throngs on the day when things can get out of hand if the thousands are not kept under control. Merrymakers and police became embroiled early yesterday in what was described as one of the worst riots in Mardi Gras history.

Police had to use tear gas bombs and night sticks to subdue the rioting crowd. Police said 14 were injured, including seven policemen, and 20 arrested.

To prevent further disturbances in the French Quarter, the night club district, the usual Mardi Gras detail was tripled.

Police reported relative calm returned to the French Quarter last night, although thousands braved the rain and jammed the narrow streets.

ECONOMIC OUTLOOK IN NEAR FUTURE BRIGHT, M'CLOY SAYS

Prospects are good for a continued strong economy in "the measurable future," or at least through next July, John J. McCloy of New York, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank, said here last night.

McCloy, former United States High Commissioner in Germany, was a guest at a business and industry dinner at the Washington University Women's Building. The dinner was part of the university's Second Century Convocation.

In an interview, he said production indices, new programs of industrial construction and capital expansion and a favorable inventory picture were among the factors leading to an optimistic economic view of the near future. However, a serious international incident which might "cut across the economy of the nation" could change the picture for the worse, he warned.

EX-G.I. SAYS OLSON LIVED WITH CAPTORS

Another Witness Testifies Sergeant Got No Special Privileges.

FORT BRAGG, N.C., Feb. 22 (UP)—A former Cpl. Harold E. Fowler testified before a court-martial board yesterday that Master Sgt. William H. Olson coaxed newly captured Americans to co-operate with the Chinese. The witness, whose home is in Manchester, Ala., accused the veteran Army sergeant of wearing Chinese clothing and living with the Chinese while they were in a prisoner of war camp.

Olson is being tried on eight charges of collaborating with the enemy. His trial was in recess today.

Ralph Butler of Alton, Ill., another witness yesterday, said he borrowed cigarettes from Olson because the sergeant claimed "he could get all he wanted." One of the charges against Olson is that he collaborated with the Communists for "selfish" reasons.

Butler said Olson told him that Olson's wife did not "know how bad off she was in the United States." He quoted Olson as saying all his wife did was "listen to radio soap operas and pay no attention to politics."

Two other former prisoners gave testimony favorable to the 40-year-old soldier. Fred M. Liddel of Eugene, Ore., a member of Olson's prison camp squad, said the sergeant shared cigarettes and food with fellow prisoners and gave them no advice other than to tell the Chinese their names, ranks, and serial numbers.

Richard Caulder, a student at the University of Arkansas, said he did not remember Olson making any speeches to fellow prisoners and said Olson did not "have it any better than other prisoners."

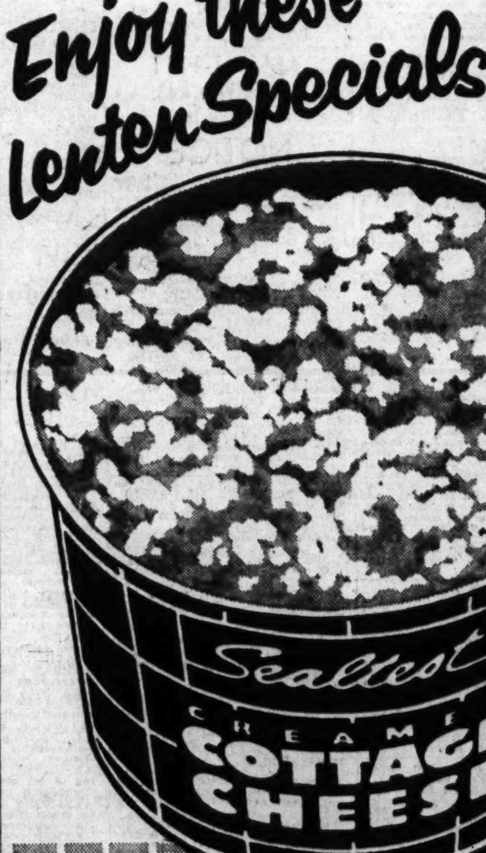

DAVID B. LICHTENSTEIN QUITS AS LOAN COMPANY DIRECTOR

David B. Lichtenstein, whose office as executive vice president of the American Investment Co. was abolished last May, has resigned as a director of that firm, he announced yesterday.

Lichtenstein said he and six other stockholders with their families represent more than 20,0000 shares and are seeking to amend the company's articles of incorporation to permit cumulative voting and give them a greater voice in the firm's affairs.

He and a group of St. Louis associates have been operating the Liberty Loan corp., which has headquarters in Chicago. Lichtenstein is president of Liberty Loan. Both American Investment and Liberty operate small loan offices in a number of cities.

WHERE 3 PERISHED ON EAST SIDE

Charles A. Stewart Jr. looking over ruins of his home at 120 Carver avenue, Madison, after fire in which his three young daughters perished today. Police said the blaze which destroyed the three-room, tarpaper-covered house apparently resulted from an oil heater explosion. Stewart was at work when the fire started. Mrs. Stewart said she went to a next-door neighbor's and returned in about five minutes to find the house ablaze.

Spot-Zoning Eyesores

BACK-YARD PARKING Spot zoning produced this situation in the 3400 block of Arlington avenue. Factory workers park automobiles in yard of 3402 Arlington (right) and 3412 Arlington, wedging in yard with children's play facilities at 3406 Arlington. Over Mayor's veto, the Board of Aldermen rezoned a 75-foot area to allow back-yard parking, skipped the next 25 feet, reclassified the next 100 feet, skipped a 30-foot lot, and rezoned the next 70 feet.

ANOTHER JUNK YARD Example of spot zoning is this junk yard on northwest corner of O'Fallon street and Blair avenue, just east of Carr Square Village, where $4,000,000 was spent in an effort to wipe out a slum and rehabilitate the neighborhood. Around the corner are classrooms of O'Fallon School. Mayor Tucker vetoed the bill reclassifying this lot, but the Board of Aldermen overruled him.

The race was one of the features of the Jaffrey Outing Club's twenty-fourth annual winter carnival, which closed yesterday. Jalopy racing on ice has become increasingly popular in the Manodnock Mountain region in recent years.

PLANE CRASH SCENE

Wreckage of Trans World Airlines plane (in circle) resting against Needle peak in the 10,000-foot Sandia mountains near Albuquerque, N.M., photographed from the air before ground search parties reached the scene. The airliner struck the pinnacle Saturday and burned. Bodies of the 16 persons aboard have been found in the scattered wreckage. The largest piece of wreckage was part of the tail section resting on the edge of a cliff on the peak. The wreckage first was sighted from the air Sunday, but ground search crews did not reach it until yesterday.

The Dean Speaks Up

The Agreement on Brotherhood of Man

By Adele Starbird

CHARLES LAMB once expressed dislike for a certain man. "I didn't know that you knew him," said a friend. And Lamb admitted that he didn't know the man. "I couldn't dislike him if I knew him," he explained.

DEAN STARBIRD

That is fundamentally true. Most people improve upon acquaintance, and so do nations.

It is fear of the unknown that makes provincial people distrustful of foreigners. Andre Maurois tells about his uncle, a French manufacturer, who resisted any suggestion that he might expand his business to include other countries. "No, I beg of you, let's have nothing exotic in this business!"

I used to be amused by my grandmother's attitude, which was typical of her generation and class. Strangers were always under a slight cloud, no matter how distinguished or likeable they might be. But the most ordinary man wore a halo if his family had lived for a long time in St. Louis county.

"Why," she would say as if it were an accolade, "I knew his grandfather!"

"Well, from what I've heard, that was no treat. Does that confer a patent of nobility upon the grandson? Just living in the county for three generations, does that make a family superior?"

IN HER EYES it did. I never won the argument. But knowing her, and loving her, made me more tolerant of intolerance. I know that the fear of the stranger, the disease that is called xenophobia, is chronic with people who have been insulated and confined within their own mental ghetto. There is only one cure for xenophobia—repeated exposure. And great care must be exercised lest it become hereditary!

As people become less primitive and more cultured, they lose their antagonism to what is foreign, and to foreigners. "Civilization," says Ortega y Gasset, "is before all the will to live in common. Barbarism is the tendency to dissociation."

When the German Kelpius came to Pennsylvania around 1700, he wrote in his journal: "I cannot go beyond my country: it is the one of all; no one can be banished outside of this. . . . Into whatever land I come, I come into my own: none is exile, but only another country. My country is wherever it is well." Johannes Kelpius was a civilized man.

"BUT WHY SHOULD I love my brother? Is there any valid reason for loving him?" The question was asked the other day in a discussion group.

There are several answers and they go back pretty far. Asoka said, "Every man is my son."

Aeschylus makes Antigone say, "We were not made to be joined in hatred, but to be joined in love and fellowship."

There is wonderful agreement here. Different peoples have come to understand that brotherhood was built into the heart of man, that mysteriously we form one whole, that we suffer the injury we inflict, that we are healed by the love we give.

"Whoever degrades another degrades me
And whatever is done or said returns at last to me."

The Spurned Lift

By Christopher Billopp

THERE are rare occasions when the offer of a lift in an automobile is convenient to make and is neither troublesome nor disturbing.

There may be plenty of time. The person offering the lift may, therefore, not mind going out of his way to suit the convenience of the person to whom the lift is offered. Or the person offering the lift may not mind waiting five or 10 minutes while the person to whom the lift is offered performs some necessary task.

It may be that the company of another person is very much desired. Possibly the route lies in a forbidding part of the town and company would serve as protection. Possibly the person to whom the lift is offered is familiar with the town and knows the way.

Possibly one tire looks a little low, indicating that it may go flat. In that case it would be useful to have another person in the car to help with the changing of the tire, particularly if the other person is strong and skillful with his hands.

It may be that the person offering the lift has had no one to talk to throughout much of the day and would, therefore, be glad to have an audience. Perhaps there is heavy luggage in the car that must be taken out on arrival at the destination, in which case it would be useful to have two people to handle it.

Or, perhaps, the person offering the lift foresees a time when he himself would like a lift and is, therefore, anxious to put a friend under an obligation.

Why is it that, under these ideal circumstances, when a lift is offered the answer so often is, "Thanks a lot. But I've already got one"?

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER writes: "I would very much like your opinion on the propriety of two girls and two boys, all in the early twenties, going by bus to New York City and spending a weekend. We are all just friends and none of us sweethearts, in case that makes a difference."

Being "just friends" does make a difference of course, but even so I can hardly give unqualified approval of young men and girls going off alone to stay in the city. And yet—if the two girls go to one of the women's hotels in New York, and the men go and stay at a men's hotel or best of all perhaps, at a fraternity club, I doubt very much if anyone will criticize them unless their behavior at home has given gossips cause for chatter.

DEAR MRS. POST: Will you please tell me, first, if it is proper to use unlighted candles (in candelabra) on the buffet merely as decoration? Second, if it is proper to use them, then should the candles be new or should they be lighted and snuffed out, leaving charred ends as though they had been used.

Answer: If by a buffet you mean a sideboard, candelabra are suitable decoration. There is no rule about burning off the ends, but if you did this the candelabra would at least look as though they were sometimes used on the dining table and merely stood on the sideboard between time.

It's the Big Lunch That Slows French

By Stan Delaplane

PARIS

BEFORE France lost confidence in Mendes-France, the Premier proposed to put the French on their feet by getting them off their pistol pockets. If every French workman would spend less time belting the cognac, the wheels of industry would move faster, he said.

This made the French very morose. Nothing pleases a French worker more than sitting in the bistro of a morning. Preparing for work by hitting the old sauce.

If you ask me, however, it is not the bistro. It is the big lunch that anchors you for the rest of the day.

THE OTHER DAY I had lunch at Pierre's in the Place Gallion near the Opera.

"For the hors d'oeuvre, I advise something light," said the owner. "Perhaps rillettes in the manner of Tours. Or a pate de campagne."

Rillettes is a sort of coarse ground sausage. Pate de campagne is a finer grind, usually fowl and liver paste. Both are eaten with hard French bread and butter.

We had coquille St. Jacques. Scallops in butter. "Simplement," said the owner. "Only butter and herbs.

"A light Muscadet with it," he said popping the cork off the white wine and jamming it into an ice bucket. "Nothing strong. One must eat lightly at the lunch, eh?

"For the entree I shall prepare mutton chops epinards en branches? Or a steak au poivre? Steak with ground pepper beaten into it."

We had the pepper steak. On the side pommes souffle, the potatoes that are cooked in deep fat, cooled and then popped back in the fat where they blow up like little golden balloons.

"A light Beaujolais," he said. "A Brouilly, 1949. Nothing heavy. One must be moderate at the lunch."

We had the beautiful red Brouilly between bites of peppered steak. A lovely haze settled over the table.

"Some cheese?" he said. "Very light. A Camembert and a slice of Pont L'Eveque. Followed by fruit.

"Finally, a sweet. A mille feuille. What you call a Napoleon in the United States.

I don't know what the bistro does to the French. But I know what the Parisian lunch does to American production. I went back to the hotel and slept until 6:30.

IT IS VERY HARD to stay away from the five-course, $6 lunch in Paris. For one thing it is so good. For another, there is nothing else to do.

All the shops close for 2½ hours at noon. Everybody goes out and eats the big lunch. At Fouquet's on the Champs Elysees, Alexandre, Ramponneau's, Pierre's, the Relais Plaza, the George V, Weber's in the Rue Royale. In every restaurant in Paris.

"If you want to beat the big lunch," a friend told me, "you want to disappear about 11:30 in the morning. Before your friends can find you.

"Pick a small sidewalk cafe and have coffee and read the papers. At noon, if you go in the back, you'll usually find they serve a smaller a la carte luncheon. Of course, they also have the five-or-six-course jobs, too. A Paris eating establishment always has the prix fixe meal. And it always runs from hors d'oeuvre, soup, fish, entree, salad, cheese, fruit and dessert."

"What if you can't disappear at 11:30? What if you have to work until noon?"

"Nobody has to work until noon in France. It is a matter of self-preservation. Any French employer who wants his help to work in the afternoon, throws them out to the sidewalk cafes at 11:30. Otherwise he would have an afternoon crise. Look what happened to Mendes-France. It wasn't North Africa. It was the bistro."

Diamond Shape

Diamond-shaped biscuits are pretty and quicker to cut out than traditional round biscuits. Just square the edges of the biscuit dough when rolling out, then cut diagonally with a knife to make the "diamonds."

Tips for Teens

A Different Problem

By Elinor Williams

SURPRISE! Dates are no problem with this girl; she wants to be popular with girls:

"My problem is slightly different. I have plenty of dates with boys, but when girls give parties, I'm not invited."

Answer—One of the big causes for icicles between girls is—boys. Steer clear of other girls' dream-dates. Don't even steal the boys' attention when you're together in a group and don't dance cheek-to-cheek with another girl's date if you want her friendship. A real friend doesn't flirt with her pal's partner, even if he's as handsome as your favorite movie star in technicolor.

Instead of using all your spare time for dates, plan to spend one afternoon or evening per week with girls. Begin by sharing your smiles with girls; don't save all your attention and sparkle for boys. Let other girls shine when you're in a group. Talk to shy girls and draw quiet ones into the conversation.

Try to prevent jealousy (always a big trouble-maker) by soft-pedalling chatter about your date-doings. Don't compete too obviously with other girls or brag about your dates, clothes, hairdo, etc.

Show that you like girls by inviting them to your home after school, after a game or for an all-girl party . . . skating, movie, a hot dog roast, slumber party, etc. Try to cultivate friendships casually, not too insistently. Good luck!

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

Answer to Question 1.

TRUE. One psychologist said: "Knowing when and how to neglect children intelligently and trusting them with wholesome freedom is the best way to teach them responsibility." Many children are hounded into moral and mental confusion by over-attention, warnings, supervision of companionship, etc. Co-operation and display of confidence, not accusation and criticism, develop character instead of causing anxiety.

Answer to Question 2.

No, says "Management Information." The boss should encourage a new worker to ask questions while the job is being explained to him. Often the new worker is afraid to ask questions lest the boss think he's stupid. Ability to understand and follow spoken instructions is one of the best single tests of mental ability, even in small children. Parents should watch and try to develop this ability in children.

Answer to Question 3.

Four hundred eleventh and twelfth-grade pupils in 17 schools read a playlet, while a similar group heard it acted out on records. The reading group remembered more immediately afterward, but a week later the hearers had nearly caught up. Investigators thought those who heard the play would soon surpass those who read it in amount permanently remembered, indicating that records probably make a more lasting impression.

LANCASTER, Pa.

WE spent last Friday morning in Knoxville, Tenn., catching up on mail and at noon a young Army officer, Col. Jacob Rippert, and his wife lunched with me at our hotel. Soon we were joined by Mrs. E. Coin Mason, the hospitality committee chairman for the American Association of University Women, who drove me to Oak Ridge immediately after lunch.

There are no more gates as you enter the city of Oak Ridge and you can drive through the whole project except for certain restricted areas which are clearly marked. Only seven years ago this area was a quiet rural valley with wooded hills on either side. The city took its name from the hills on the northern border of the valley, called Black Oak Ridge.

The population of Oak Ridge has gone as high as 75,000, but seems now to be stabilized at about 35,000. The Oak Ridge project covers roughly about 100 miles, though the city itself is concentrated in a rather small area.

THERE ARE nine shopping centers; an old hotel; many churches, some of them fine buildings representing a large variety of sects; good schools, though at present overcrowded; a few isolated and rather pleasant houses near the woods; a great many houses all exactly alike and apartment houses which differ very little from one another. Most of the houses were Government-built and have remarkably little landscaping. So, except for the wooded residential areas, the city is not very attractive, but on the whole the houses and apartments are convenient and livable.

OAK RIDGE is unlike any communities that grow up gradually over a long period of time, and there are disadvantages as well as advantages to this. One school superintendent told me that it was wonderful to have pupils who came from homes such as are prevalent in this area where so many scientists from different countries are gathered

For a layman like myself there can be very little understanding of what really goes on in these great installations. Everyone was more than kind to me, however, and showed me as much as was allowed and tried to explain what went on, and I think I have a better grasp than I had before.

I had the feeling that while much of this work is tied to the development of war material, among the scientists there is also a keen desire to see their work used for constructive peacetime purposes. Experiments are being carried on in co-operation with the University of Tennessee in the agricultural uses of atomic energy, and much has been done with many universities and hospitals in the medical field.

Structural Cracks in Plaster.

AS we've said before, cracks in plaster occur for all sorts of reasons. Sometimes they are due to a failure of the plaster. Sometimes they are caused by someone pounding with a hammer on the wall, and sometimes they are due to the framework of the house doing just too much moving around. Now it's hard to stop a house structure moving when it gets the urge but what you can do is reinforce the plaster to give it a better chance of holding its own.

First thing to be done is to remove the plaster from each side of the crack back to the studding or ceiling joists on each side. You don't have to bother the lath—just the plaster. The next step is to get hold of a piece of metal lath and fasten this over the existing lath. The metal lath should be securely nailed to the framework, either the studding or the joists.

Now you have a pretty solid base over which you can apply the patching plaster. Naturally, the edges of the old plaster should be cut back to form a key and then they should be dampened with water before the patch is applied.

Many of your hard to patch cracks occur at corners and here the treatment is about the same. You remove a couple of inches of plaster from each side of the corner and then you install a strip of metal corner lath. This is nailed to the studding and then the patch is applied.

Structural cracks in plaster usually occur in fairly new homes which take a little time to settle in their foundations. In most cases this movement will stop after a period of a few years, so don't worry too much over it.

Grapefruit and Apple Salad

Ingredients: half cup mayonnaise, one tablespoon Bahama-type mustard, two teaspoons lemon juice, paprika, two medium-sized or large grapefruit, one medium-sized or large red Delicious apple, lettuce.

Method: Mix together the mayonnaise, mustard, lemon juice and a dash of paprika. Peel grapefruit so no white membrane is left; with small sharp knife cut grapefruit segments away from membrane sections; do this over a bowl to catch juice; put sections in another small bowl. Cut apples in quarters and core; do not peel. Slice apple in thin lengthwise pieces into the grapefruit juice to keep from darkening. Arrange lettuce on serving plates; alternate grapefruit and apple slices on lettuce, using a couple of apple slices for each grapefruit segment. Top with dressing. Makes four servings.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

I HAVE just had a terrible shock. I discovered that a very dear friend of mine has been dating a man who I feel quite certain is married. My husband knew him in another city several years ago and now this man has moved here. He met this friend of mine through a mutual acquaintance and they have started seeing each other. She has really fallen for him and I know she thinks he is planning to marry her. Is there anything at all we can do? She will be heartbroken when she finds out the truth.

WORRIED.

What is the truth? It's possible, of course, that he no longer has a wife and is sincerely interested in your friend. Perhaps your husband can make discreet inquiries to find out whether he still has a wife in another city. If so, someone should tell the girl, and if you are her closest friend, I suppose you would be the one to break the unhappy news. Or, if your husband knows this man at all well, he could go to him. However, I would be careful not to discuss it with others, and if there is any chance that you could be wrong about the man's marital status, say nothing at all. It would only hurt your friend unnecessarily to cause her to suspect his sincerity.

Dear Martha:

HERE'S AN ANSWER to Manhater who wrote you the other day, as well as a little advice to other single readers: I'm glad to see that someone else is up in arms over the myriad of fellows who feed a girl a line, get her to fall . . . then . . . brushoff. It's happened too many times to too many girls not to complain once in a while. Do some fellows stay awake nights dreaming up clever morsels of conversation? And how can you ever know when a fellow is honest and telling the truth? Here are two possible solutions: 1. When you begin to hear what you think could be a well-rehearsed line, just turn the tables on him and start repeating all these sweet nothings you've dreamed up. If he's insincere, he'll run for fear he's met his match in the line-pitching game; 2. When he starts emoting about your many charms, when you have barely met, shock him back to normal senses by telling him you'd rather he'd shut up and not say anything because you know it isn't the truth. If he is sincere, he'll stay around to prove just how wrong a girl can be. And if he is deceitful, you're better off without him. I know I'm waging war, but this letter is intended only for the many, many unsuspecting gals who have gotten a kick in the teeth that is hard to forget. It's a shame we have to arm ourselves with an arsenal of tactics to use on all the jerks, while we wait for that one honest, sweet, down-to-earth gentleman to show up. But when?

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

FOR THEIR second production in their depth medium, Producer Louis de Rochemont and the other Cinerama people have again chosen a travelogue, "CINERAMA HOLIDAY," which opened an extended run last night at the AMBASSADOR THEATER. But again it is a travelogue so spectacular, at times so thrilling, but always so varied and so colorful as to beggar the usual sedate description of the term.

The nature of this, and the fact the third production, now being prepared, will be called "Seven Wonders of the World," suggest that the travelogue, sports events and spectacles will be the ideal means for exploiting this revolutionary process of the huge, deeply-curved screen and three cameras and projectors for some time. At least until its defects are eliminated. These are the "dancing" between the three images projected on the screen, caused by imperfect synchronization (although this factor has been somewhat improved by speeding up the film) imperfect color matching in the three images, and the fact that a flat surface seen in panorama curves upward from the center, as in half of a saucer.

It might be annoying for a character's face and body to jiggle passing between the two lines of demarcation between the three images. But seen as a travelogue, these things seem minor indeed in the fact of overwhelming scenic views, the hair-raising chills of being propelled through space as if one were in the actual vehicle, the sharpness and bold reality of scenes of entertainment.

To keep up its spectacular effects, Cinerama can never desert the motion shots. Ordinary scenes, once you became used to the depth and overpowering size, might strike the eye as casually as now does the wide-screen anamorphic process, CinemaScope. But motion is the process's special fillip. As the giant screen unfolds after a foreword and places one in the nose of an airplane amidst the white craggy beauties of the Swiss Alps one's breath is simply taken away. Thrills follow as the plane flies perilously low over ridges or close to peaks. But even these seem minor when you are taken down a bobsled run at St. Moritz with the Cinerama camera as the eyes in the front seat. The sense of vertigo, of danger, of tumultuous speed and violent twisting motion, is tremendous. This stunt is even more blood-curdling than the famous roller-coaster ride of the first Cinerama. I suspect the camera greatly increases the sensation from what actually would be experienced. For instance, at an outdoor ice show at a Swiss resort, there is a much greater than normal sense of motion as one is whisked around and around after two waltzing skaters.

This has a thread of a theme. Two young couples from two continents each explore the wonders of the other's continent. They are John Marsh, Kansas City dentist, and his comely wife, Betty, and Fred Troller, a commercial artist of Zurich, Switzerland, and his wife Beatrice. The Marshes, after their Swiss adventure, go to Paris, where they examine the tourist highlights of that beautiful city, including the Left Bank, the Louvre, a Montmarte nightclub, a high mass at Notre Dame cathedral, a Guignol puppet show for children at the Luxembourg Gardens (some marvelous expressions over the dire fate threatening Little Red Riding Hood), the Arc de Triomphe, a ballet at the Paris Opera, sidewalk cafes, a fashion show at Jacques Fath's, an artists' revel.

The Trollers, who first landed at St. Louis Municipal Airport in an airliner flown directly from Switzerland, journey on a small motorcycle through the Southwest, see the tinsely wonders of Las Vegas, view Chinatown and The Top of the Mark in San Francisco, meet Apache cowboys in Arizona, ride in the dome of a streamlined train through Colorado, visit a New Hampshire county fair and Dartmouth College, and see and hear three facets of original Negro Dixieland jazz in New Orleans. The picture is brought to a close with both couples meeting in New York and, finally, rather irrelevant but very spectacular shots of Navy jet fighters landing on and taking off from a carrier. The aerial acrobats include some pilot-seat views, in one of which the sea clouds and sky appear to revolve around the theater as the plane does a slow roll.

'Your Dating Days'

How to Pick the 'One and Only'

Five Factors of Well-Rounded Attitude Toward Love—What Is Meaning of Engagement?

Third and final installment from the book, "Your Dating Days," published by the McGraw-Hill Book Co., Inc.

By Paul H. Landis

DATING has become an end in itself among modern young people. But any date may lead to romance and any romance may lead to marriage. So dating is really a practice ground for selecting a mate.

When one fellow or girl begins to seem more important than any of the others, we begin to ask ourselves, "Could this be the way it feels to fall in love?"

There is no one definition of love that everyone accepts. We do know, however, that love involves many things—physical attraction, a willingness to give everything for the sake of the person one loves, a sharing of mutual experience.

Often, in our first experiences, we are completely carried away by physical attraction, but when the spell passes, we know that this alone could not have made us happy for very long.

In other cases, it was a friendship rather than a love affair until we gradually came to see that here was a person with whom we could share many things. From this developed a deep and serious attraction.

The first stage in love, often called "infatuation," has been described by J. K. Folsom, sociologist at Vassar College, as "excited love"—the kind of love that leaves one breathless.

It is based partly on novelty and it is the kind of love that cannot last either in or out of marriage. If marriage takes place during this stage, the couple is apt to find that the excitement was all they ever really shared.

Love that comes as a whirlwind or even gradually may be a lasting love. But in any case, it is not a love to marry on until it has been tested by time and reason.

POSITIVE answers to the following questions really tell whether love has permanent meaning, and every couple should give themselves this test before going to the altar:

Do we really respect each other deeply in addition to the physical attraction we feel for each other?

Do we have similar ideas about money? About children? About right and wrong? About give and take in getting along together? About sticking it out through thick and thin?

Can we get along with each other's families?

Dr. Paul Popenoe, director of the American Institute of Family Relations (whose column regularly appears in the Post-Dispatch), says there are five factors present in a well-rounded attitude toward love:

Second, tenderness and affection are requisites of true love. These are an outgrowth of finding emotional satisfaction and emotional security in relations with the mate.

Third, comradeship is also an essential part of complete love.

Fifth, there is a economic factor. Can the man provide security and comfort for his mate? If not, is the girl willing to work and are they both willing to adjust to such an arrangement?

It is only when the individual is willing to sacrifice personal freedom to work for the stability of a home that love has a safe footing. All five of the factors outlined are important to the kind of love on which marriage should be based.

The old saying, "Like attracts unlike" has not stood the test of science. Unlikeness in background, ideals and standards is the basis for most of the conflicts between persons. The more alike the couple is in social interests, in economic and religious backgrounds and in moral standards, the greater the chances of success in marriage.

Enjoying the same things means that the couple will not only be companions in love but will be able to find happiness by sharing mutually satisfying activities. Couples who are both interested in sports or in reading or who can share hobbies can remain real friends long after they have ceased to seem glamorous, exciting or "wonderful" to each other.

Lack of a common background frequently causes misunderstanding and mistrust. Where marked differences exist in moral training, religion or nationality, successful marriage is difficult.

Differences in occupation may also be a bar to a young couple's understanding each other. The family atmosphere of the professional home is so different from that of the unskilled worker. It might be extremely difficult for young people from such different classes to reach a real understanding.

Many people who work with their hands have great difficulty in understanding people who make a living by mental ability. Young people often overcome these differences through education, but not all people are capable of doing so.

A study of 5461 young people who attended rural high schools in Missouri showed that these young people tended to select mates from the occupational class of their parents.

IN a class on marriage and the family, the teacher asked one girl, "What does 'being engaged' mean?"

"Being engaged?" the girl replied, "Oh, it means the fellow gives the girl a ring, and she gets to tell all her friends that she's going to get married."

"And, does it mean that the girl and her fellow are going to be married?" asked the teacher.

"Well, that is something else again," was the reply.

Being engaged, like going steady, means different things to different people. Fifty years ago, when one became engaged, it was a definite, sacred pledge to marry. Very few engagements were broken. Men were sometimes sued for breach of promise when they broke an engagement. Although most people still take being engaged very seriously, all of us know of individuals who have broken an engagement or have been engaged several times.

Some girls are known as "ring collectors." They take great pride in telling of the number of fellows to whom they have been engaged. Such girls attach no real significance to engagements, except as a means of winning recognition from their friends.

To most young people, an engagement is much more serious than this. They honestly intend to marry the person to whom they are engaged. They consider the breaking of an engagement—even when convinced of its necessity—as an unpleasant experience.

But we also know that changing one's mind is far better than going into an unhappy marriage that may end in a divorce court.

Being engaged to most people means: "We are going to be married—if." This if covers a great many things:

If we continue to grow in love and respect for each other during our engagement period.

If we find that we agree on the important issues that affect marriage and family life.

If we find that we can meet and solve problems as a team.

When an engaged couple discovers conflict and serious differences in these and other important IF situations, they are better off to break the engagement. Being engaged gives a period of time in which to get to know each other better. Many couples cannot stand being well acquainted. About one in every three engagements is broken.

How long should an engagement last?—Two months? A year? Two years? There is no one "best answer." The period of time will vary, partly depending upon how long and how well the engaged couple have known each other before. The important fact is that the engagement period has far more meaning than collecting a trousseau, attending parties and showing off the ring.

It must be long enough to make absolutely sure that this is "the one and only." For some couples this may take only a few weeks, but for most it will take six months to a year.

An engagement period, well used, provides the opportunity to make sure. This is the time to discover whether the relationship is solidly based on similar interests, attitudes and background, or whether the attraction is mostly physical.

If the attraction to each other is primarily physical then the engagement will probably prove that the relation is one of romantic love only and not one that promises real happiness.

THE girl may discover that his broad shoulders cannot compensate for his dull personality. The fellow may find that her pretty face masks a childish, selfish way of meeting life.

When, the engagement is based not only on physical attraction but also on real friendship, shared interests, like attitudes and similar backgrounds, the engagement will bring new reasons for wanting to spend life together. Learning more about each other's opinions, ideals and hopes will provide more grounds for love and respect. It will make the couple more sure that their marriage will succeed.

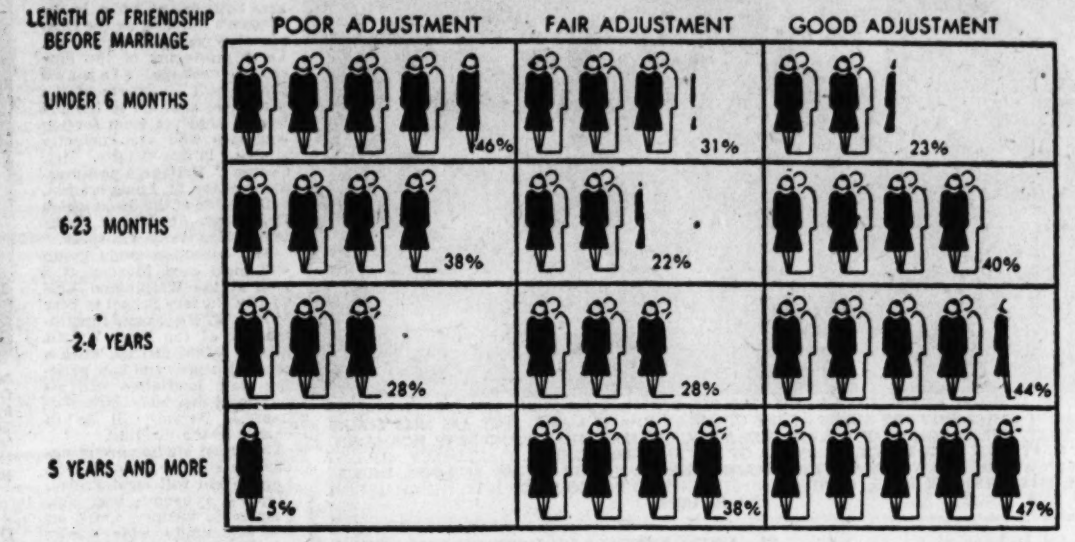

"Isn't it possible," some young people ask, "that a long engagement can cause even a well-matched couple to grow bored with each other?

Secrets of Charm

Fingertip Beauty

BEAUTY EXTENDS TO YOUR FINGERTIPS.

SHORT of sitting on your hands, there's little you can do to hide jagged fingernails or chipped polish. No apologies will make up for their ungroomed appearance . . . only a weekly manicure will keep them lovely to look at.

If your manicure doesn't survive a full seven days, it's a good guess you're not painstaking enough with the process. Here is the professional way — the lasting way — suggested by some charm school instructors.

Remove every trace of old polish with a cotton ball and polish remover. Shape your nails with an emery, holding it at a slant and sweeping always toward the tip of the nail. To develop stronger nails, and prevent callused cuticle, let them grow out square at the corners.

Buff your nails (about 12 strokes will be plenty) working always in one direction. This gives a smooth surface for polish, while stimulating fingernail growth and strength.

SOAK your fingers in warm, soapy water for a moment or two to soften the cuticle. Rinse, dry thoroughly, and gently ease the cuticle back to oval shape with your towel. Now use a cotton-tipped orangewood stick, dipped into cuticle remover, to smooth cuticle from the center base of the nail up around the sides.

Trim hangnails or torn tissue with nail scissors or cuticle snippers. Using scissors to trim cuticle around the nail causes it to thicken, so use only an orange stick here. Run the stick under nails to clean the tips; if they need whitening, use a white pencil or cream.

Apply a clear base coat for smoothness and protection, doing the hardest hand (usually the right) first. Rest your arm for steadiness, from the elbow down, on a table. Spread your fingers out flat and coat the entire nail, moon and tip. Wait 10 minutes before adding polish that matches or harmonizes with your lipstick . . . the base coat must dry completely. While waiting, you might study your nails to decide the shape your polish should take.

IF NAILS are square, make them look oval by leaving the entire moon and a wide, rounded strip at the tip unpainted. If they are round, paint on a prettier shape by polishing the entire surface of the nail except a narrow strip at each side. If your nails are fan-shaped, oval-ize them by leaving the moon, tip, and a small strip along the sides unpainted. If they're oval, accent that fact by covering the entire nail.

Tip the polish bottle and drain your brush against its side. With sure, quick strokes brush polish sideways across the moon, then apply a broad stroke up the center, and cautiously fill in the sides. If polish runs into the cuticle, remove it at once by running your orange stick along the edge.

A second coat of polish means deeper color, longer wear, and better protection for your nails. Wait 10 minutes between coats and each time wipe off a hairline across the top, as insurance against chipping. If you try to wipe off two coats at once, you may wrinkle the first.

Spring Jewelry

Flowers are noteworthy among the themes for spring jewelry. Enameled flowers are used for garlands that form rope necklaces. Yellow and pink are two shades used extensively. There also are flower pins and earrings in a variety of different designs. Some of the colorful effects are accented with pearls or rhinestones.

Contract Bridge

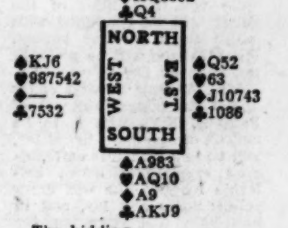

By Ely Culbertson

A DECLARER has "something to scream about" when (a) he gets the one opening lead that can put him in jeopardy, and (b) he then runs up against a terrible break in his key suit. This being so, however, it naturally follows that he should be grateful for not getting the killing lead and should take special pains so safeguard the said key suit.

In short, South had no cause for complaint, except against himself, in this case:

South, dealer.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2N.T.	Pass	6N.T.	Pass
Pass	Pass

North could have taken a more circuitous route to the slam, and six diamonds would have been a safer contract than six no-trump, but, as it happened, it was not the bidding which wrecked the North-South fortunes; it was declarer's indiscreet play.

If West had been second-sighted enough to lead a spade, the outcome would not have been South's fault, but, being only mortal, West elected to open the top card of his long heart suit—certainly the safest-seeming lead. Declarer won in dummy with the jack, and announced with a mixture of confidence and sadness: "Looks like we missed the big boat, partner." Obviously, he was counting six diamond tricks, one spade, three hearts and four clubs, for a trick more than he could use, but when he promptly led the diamond deuce to his own ace, he was in for a severe shock. The six diamond tricks became only three diamond tricks, and the contract became unmakeable.

Granting that the 5-0 diamond break was enough to shock anyone, the fact remains that at rubber bridge—the actual condition—declarer should have used a safety play. When East played low on the diamond deuce, South should have put in the nine as a super-insurance play. He didn't need all six diamonds, hence should have taken every precaution to bring in the suit without giving up two tricks.

Romance on a Ranch

—by Rob Eden—

CHAPTER TEN

LILA was not surprised that Gayl would call Phil in the middle of the night. She was wondering why she hadn't called earlier in the evening.

"There is a phone booth by the dressing rooms or you can take it here," Ramon told Phil.

"I'll take it here."

"I'll run along," Lila offered. "Good night."

"No. Wait," Phil said to her.

Ramon took a telephone out of a box at the side of the pool and brought it to Phil. Lila walked away while Phil talked, but there was evidently a bad connection and he had to shout. She heard every word of the first part of his conversation.

"Talk louder," Phil cried.

Then a little later he said: "That isn't important. It can wait until Monday morning. There isn't any night train I could take anyway. In fact, there isn't any train, period. Don't worry about it."

Then another long pause. "Oh, just sitting here by the pool with Lila," he said.

That will fix it, Lila thought. Gayl will be furious.

PHIL didn't say anything for some time. Then he spoke so low that Lila couldn't hear what he said.

"Thanks, Ramon," Phil said, and she knew the call was ended. She walked back to Phil's chair and sat down near him.

"Well, that's that," Phil said. "Gayl is too efficient, sometimes. Wanted me to hurry home for no reason at all."

SYNOPSIS.

LILA BARD has been living with ANNA OTTOKAR, who seems to have clairvoyant powers, and has quit her job as the secretary of PHIL CARLOT (whom she loves) to accompany Mrs. Ottokar to the ranch of HOAGY NELSON (where Nelson hopes Mrs. Ottokar can use her strange powers to locate oil). Nelson's secretary, VANCE MILO, suggests to Lila that she invite Phil to the ranch to keep DOLLY, Nelson's daughter, from regarding her as a menace who might win the heart of her father. Dolly has trained a panther with which she wants to get a job in a circus. Mrs. Ottokar, not yet able to get an inspiration about oil, does tell Nelson she has the hunch that someone close to him is not to be trusted. Phil comes to the ranch for a visit and asks Lila to come back to work for him. She refuses.

"I can understand," Lila remarked.

Lila didn't reply. She lay back and looked up at the stars.

"You're not angry?" he asked.

"Certainly not."

"Good. I don't want you to be."

"What's the use?" Lila asked.

Phil laughed again. "I don't think you have any complaints," he said. "I saw Hoagy looking at you at the table tonight. That man is clear gone. You have certainly charmed him. And he's loaded. I looked up his rating in D.&B. Man, he's cleaned up for a guy of his age. You can do it quick in oil, or you can do it quick in oil, or you can go flat broke overnight. He's been lucky, and smart, too, I guess."

"I'm not concerned," Lila said.

Lila was broken-hearted. She was not sure Phil meant what he said, but she was afraid he did. Urging her to fall for Hoagy.

"Why did you want me to come down here?" he asked. "Did you want to make Hoagy jealous?"

Lila lost her temper. "How can you say such mean things, Phil?" she cried. "You know I wouldn't do anything like that."

"Well, why did you want me to come down?"

"If you don't know, there's no use of my telling you," Lila said.

"O K" Phil replied. "I'm sorry I brought it up. I guess it's about time to turn in."

"I couldn't sleep if I tried."

"Let's take a walk then," he suggested.

THEY left the pool, strolling toward the barns and bunk house, some distance from the main ranch buildings.

There was no trace of a moon. Once they were away from the pool lights, which burned all night, the darkness was almost oppressive. Lila walked close beside Phil, and his nearness comforted her.

"Isn't it dark," she exclaimed. "You get so used to lights in the city, you forget what darkness is like."

"It's wonderful out here," Phil replied. "I'd like to be able to get away for a weekend every month. It sort of recharges you and gives you a new start."

Then, in a burst of confidence, he said: "You know, Lila, Gayl keeps driving me. She wants me to move to an expensive suite of offices, hire a receptionist who will also operate the PBX board and spread out. I don't want to do it."

"You're foolish if you let her push you around, Phil," Lila replied. "See what she has cost you in extra office expense already. Gayl has champagne ideas. She knows nothing about business. Don't let her rush you."

"I guess you're right. I need a suite of offices like I need a hole in the head. But I have to be careful with Gayl. Her Dad is my best client."

"Better lose him altogether than let Gayl ruin your chance of making profits."

"I couldn't do that. But I'll be firm with Gayl. I'll have to."

Lila wondered if he could be firm with Gayl.

They were walking through a lane, along a wire fence. It was bordered by trees and even the starlight was shut out. In the dense darkness a form loomed at their side. Lila screamed and grabbed Phil by the arms.

Then he took her by the shoulders, bent down and kissed her firmly on the lips.

Lila gasped in surprise. She clung to him for a moment, then drew away.

Suddenly they heard a siren, then bells ringing.

"Do you hear what I hear?" Lila asked, "Or is that the delayed reaction to the kiss? I hear bells."

Turning about, Phil grabbed Lila by the arm and started to run. Lila stumbled and fell.

"Just a minute. Let the burglars wait. I can't see well enough to run in this dark lane."

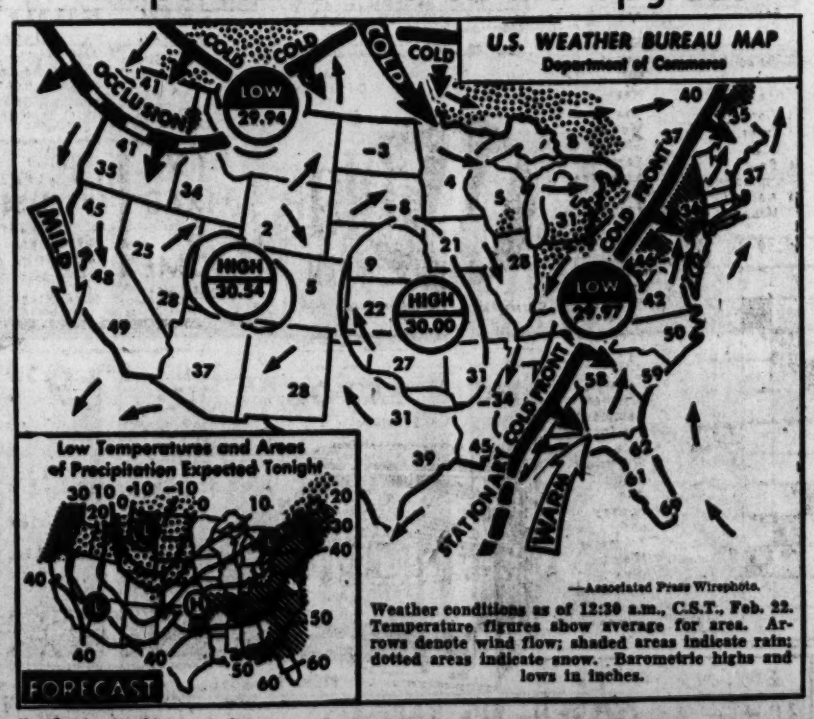

Phil slowed down. By the time they reached the bunk house, several cowhands were running toward the big house.

"Panther's loose," he replied. "Boss rigged up that alarm on the garden walls and gates. Be the heck to pay now."

Temperatures Are on the Upgrade

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Weather conditions as of 12:30 a.m., C.S.T., Feb. 22. Temperature figures show average for area. Arrows denote wind flow; shaded areas indicate rain; dotted areas indicate snow. Barometric highs and lows in inches.

Partly cloudy skies were forecast for tomorrow by the Weather Bureau with temperatures expected to climb to near 40 degrees. The weather will continue to get warmer during the week unless the cold air mass now in Canada reaches this area, A. A. Rausch, assistant meteorologist, said.

A high pressure area extending from Canada at Lake Superior to southern Texas has brought mostly clear skies to the Midwest, Rausch said. The only rain in Missouri yesterday was at Mauldin, which reported .09 of an inch.

On the other hand, the stationary cold front extending the length of the country through the Eastern states is bringing cloudy skies and rain, he said.

The nation's lowest temperature today was at Fraser, Colo., where a reading of 27 degrees below zero was reported. Leadville, Colo., and Bemidji, Minn., reported 16 below. Zero temperatures prevailed in the eastern Dakotas, Minnesota and parts of Colorado.

Cross City, Fla., with 80 degrees, had the high for the nation yesterday. Rainfalls of over an inch were recorded in Tupulo, Miss., Nashville, Tenn., and Lexington, Ky., the Weather Bureau said.

Uncle Ray's Column

FIBERS of cotton must be turned into thread before they can be woven into cloth. This means the human race had to learn the art of spinning before anyone could make clothing out of wool, linen or flax.

If you study a freshly-picked ball, or bole, of cotton, you will find that it contains many seeds. After the seeds are taken out, the cotton fibers still stretch in several directions.

To make thread, cotton workers twist several fibers together. Before this is done, the fibers are put into order as well as possible, being made to lie alongside one another.

A MODERN spinning mill has big machines, but people in the past used instruments of simple types. Women did most of the spinning. The word "spinster" grew from the fact that a woman, before marriage, was likely to spend the greater part of her working time in spinning thread. After she was married, much of her time was taken up by the care of children.

Before the spinning wheel was invented, people used spindles. One of the spindles was a rounded piece of wood about 12 inches long, with a point at one end and a hook at the other. At the center was a disk made of hard material, usually stone or clay.

THE HISTORY of the spinning wheel has been lost in the mist of time. Very likely it was invented in India or some other part of Asia. A picture which was drawn about 600 years ago indicates that one form of spinning wheel was known in Europe at that time.

About 190 years have passed since a much better method of spinning was devised by James Hargreaves, an Englishman. Hargreaves invented what was called the "spinning jenny." This invention made it possible for a person to spin several threads at the same time.

CHAMPION MILK DRINKERS

Cowboys have been among the world's champion milk drinkers. A milking cow was usually led behind the chuck wagon or else a cowboy roped and milked a lady bovine from the herd.
